Surplus Held No Basis for Tax Relief

President Reported to Feel Margin Too Small for Cut

WASHINGTON (UP). President Eisenhower has warned that the Treasury's anticipated $1.8 billion budget surplus is too small to justify a tax cut now, in-formed administration sources said Saturday.

The President, according to these informants, feels the present fiscal year surplus would have to be substantially largerat least a billion dollars moreto make a personal incomé tax cut a serious possibility,

L.a.C. Says: Multiple Drives

In an endeavor to solve the problem of multiple drives for health organization funds over the nation a St. Louis newspaper made a careful survey. Since we are now in between national drives it is a good time to take a look at the report. It points out that the causes with the greatest needs are often getting the least money or personnel support in communities. The suggestion is made that all such drives be incorporated into United Fund-Community Chest drives. Or that these national organizations cooperate in one national drive a year.

As an example of the unbalanced fund-raising efforiz and results the following figures are given for 1954.

million in 1954. Of this amount, 47 per cent went to the Infantile Paralysis Foundation. During that year only 38,714 new cases were reported.

It is pointed out that the cost of raising funds for polio is more than it spends on research. But because it has been so well publicized it has no trouble in getting volunteer workers. In St. Louis in 1954 40,000 volunteers turned out for the drive, Only 7,000 could be recruited for the Heart drive.

These eight organizations are but a few of those seeking money by mail or personal solicitation. No sconer is a Community Chest drive over than another drive starts. It is apparent the system is breaking down because of the overburdening of workers. Many work in several drives a year. At least one solicitation, of one kind or another, is going on in this city each week.

In Southern California the problem is being solved for many agencies by the AID program. Under that program all agencies willing to cooperate are included in the AID program. It operates in stores and factories. Workers are asked to sign up for payroll deduction of one-half of 1 per cent of their wages or salaries. When they sign up deductions are made until the worker asks to have it discontinued. The worker is given a receipt and window sticker for his home. All agencies participating agree not to make solicitations in the homes or place of work of the person contributing.

Most of the national agencies are a part of AID. They have found they get more money from the groups than they did under separate drives—and the cost is about half what it costs for separate drives. Polio is the only important national agency refusing to cooperate.

The funds collected are distributed to agencies by the AID board of directors made up of representatives of workers, employers and the public.

It is apparent AID or some such organization is the only answer to the terrible wastefulness of the multiple drives. All unions and business organizations should join in making such an organization successful. By no other means can these health organizations hope to be properly financed in the future.-L.A.C.

Dentist Highly Praises Transparent Materials Now Used and Featured in His Office

Credit Dentist

No Appointment Mecassary for Examination

Over 18 Years in Dentistry - 10 Years at 1st & Pine

Few people are aware of the many improvements made in the past few years in denture materials," Dr. Raymond said. "Transparent Material now used in dental plates is the finest and best material available to dentists." The doctor pointed out, "the material is very light in weight, yet dentists find the material is strong and durable." Dr. Raymond wishes to point out that, "regardless of the low price now charged for dentures, he will feature this splendid material in his only office under his personal supervision." The samples set with New Translucent Teeth will be on display all week.

Public Invited to Learn of Sincere Friendly Credit Plan

A special effort is now being made to demonstrate how simple and easy it is to get the terms no money down, as long as 21 months to pay, according to Dr. Raymond.

"I want the public to know that when I say 'you can pay later for your dental plates, on approval of your credit,' I mean exactly that," said Dr. Raymond. "I actually prefer that you pay for your plates in this manner. I have confidence in people's integrity and honesty, especially when they are given their money's worth, and I have confidence in my work. The public has not yet let me down and the popularity and success of my credit operation is proof in itself that I have not let the public down."

DIFFICULT CASES

AT NO EXTRA COST

"Just because your case is difficult don't be afraid, that you will have to pay more than someone else. My pay more than someone else, My large volume keeps my low prices uniform," Dr. Raymond says. Till pass the savings on to every one of my patients whenever possible."

It is pretty generally known that the larger the volume in any business the less it costs to produce each item—the same applies to dentistry.

Revamped Aid Policy

WASHINGTON (P)—A revolu-tionary shift in United States oreign aid policy is foreshadowed by studies now being made in key agencies of the Eisenhower administration under prodding from the White House.

The switch, if carried through as now indicated, will mean a reduction in the military forces of some Allied countries, paricularly on the frontiers of the ree world in Asia.

OFFICIALS SAY their thinkng tentatively indicates such reductions would be justified on wo grounds:

First, the real security of all ree World countries in the atomic age rests mostly on the protection of the United States nuclear striking power.

Second, the dangers of even small wars have been diminished by Russia's new policy of presenting a more friendly face to the non-Communist world.

THE IMPLUSE behind the new look at foreign aid policy lies in large part, however, in the field of cost. There is evidence that Congress and the country are becoming increasingly rejuctant to vote the funds necessary to do the job the administration thinks necessary. The program now before Congress had a rough time this week at the hands of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the administration is being compelled to retreat from some of its posi-

For example, President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles have laid heavy emphasis on a need for new authority this year to commit the United States to long term foreign aid spend ng on specific projects.

THE HOUSE committee enocked out that provision and substituted a general statement of intent to carry on foreign aid which gives no real new power the president. The administration had decided, this reporter was informed, not to make a further fight for the long-range proision in the House.

The problem of costs is simply defined. Eisenhower has stated that foreign aid spending should -between four and five billion dollars-for a good many years At the same time his principal advisors on cold war strategy are generally agreed that the United States must spend considerably more in the next few years than it has in the last six on economic assistance, especially to Asian countries.

Hoover Praises Sen. Kennedy's Reform Drive

WASHINGTON (U.E) - Former resident Herbert Hoover Saturday commended Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and his Sente subcommittee on government reorganization for "carrying the on government reforms

The subcommittee is considering many bills suggested by the bipartisan Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report, of which Mr. Hoover is honorary chairnan. The subcommittee aiready has reported five bills favorably and two have passed the Senate on records management and handling of non-military surplus property.

"I just wish to express my appreciation for the way you have been carrying the ball," Mr. Hoover wrote Kennedy. "We may not always agree on secondary matters but that you are keeping the necessity of reform and economy before Congress and the public is the main thing.'

More Salk Shots Released by U.S.

WASHINGTON (U.E)-The U.S. Public Health Service Saturday announced release of 1,198,791 shots of Salk polio vaccine for immediate use.

The vaccine, made by Eli Lilly of Indianapolis and Wyeth Lab oratories of Philadelphia, brings to 57,629,829 the number of shots: eleased since the polio program began a year ago.

Why Dr. Campbell says pay NO MONEY DOWN

"I don't have to worry about paying my expenses as a dentist if I am interested first in giving service," Dr. Campbell said, "I have found through trial and error that every one of my offices must give a lot of credit to be prosperous. In the past, when one of my offices curtailed credit, this office became less

Adlai Stevenson on their party ballot.

Oregon voters may have given a hint as to what to expect. Many Democrats there just didn't fill in the part of the ballot pertaining to presidential preference.

Of course, the Democratic campaign in Oregon was a write-in affair. No names of presidential candidates appeared on the Democratic ballot. Eisenhower's name did appear on the GOP ballot. But there are two possible balancing factors: Republicans are outnumbered in the Oregon registration lists, and there was no warm contest such as that on the Democratic side.

★ ★ ★ WHATEVER the analysis, President Eisenhower got a vote far larger than the combined vote of Kefauver and Stevenson. It was another confirmation of the President's popularity, which has now been evidenced in primaries on both coasts and in the midwest.

A most notable event of the Oregon primary was the enthusiastic vote for Vice President Nixon. His name was not on the ballot, and he had not campaigned, so the reaction could have been nothing but spontaneous. Oregon Republicans went out of their way to indicate that they, like Republicans voting in previous primaries, resent the smear campaign against the Vice President.

On the Democratic side, Adlai Stevenson gave Estes Kefauver a sound trouncing. While it was not perhaps a turning-point victory in Stevenson's struggle for a comeback from previous painful losses, it helped a lot. Just what the influence, if any, on California voters might be is hard to say—though it has appeared that sentiment among California Democrats swings back and forth between the two men, depending on their showing else-

FORMER SECRETARY of the Interior Douglas Mc-Kay, who once held the post of governor in Oregon, demonstrated that he still has a following in the home state. He shouldered aside Phil Hitchcock to take the Republican senatorial nomination by a comfortable margin, while Sen. Wayne Morse was piling up an overwhelming vote in the Democratic race in which he had but token resistance.

Sen. Morse is the man who was originally elected as a Republican, became an Independent, and finally moved over into the Democratic party. Oregon Republicans have never forgiven him and have waited for 1956 to plow him under. With Douglas McKay they have a good chance of doing just that to Morse, but the returns suggest it is going to be a close one in the final. In any event, McKay Republicans and Hitchcock Republicans have always been agreed on one principal point-whatever their own intra-party differences, the big target is Morse, and they will join hands in the effort to defeat

THE OREGON PRIMARY was one of the last of the series of primaries which are supposed to give some indication of popular sentiment on presidential candidates. Eisenhower and Nixon have clearly been the Republican choices, with no other GOP hopefuls emerging or making serious challenge. The pendulum in the Democratic campaigns has swung somewhat eratically. What happened in Oregon only served to heighten interest in the Florida and California primaries, which can be much more decisive for the political tortunes of "Adlai" and

JOHN S. KNIGHT

He's Got Spizzerinctum but Just What is That?

WASHINGTON-The White House staff looks relaxed these days. Serious Sherman Adams, THE assistant to the President (capitalization not unintentional) is positively cheery and good

Even Jim Haggerty, the President's press secretary, manages an occasional grin and the rest of the assistants, secretaries and other functionaries are fairly beaming. For things are going their way.

The widely publicized farm revolt seems to have lost its force: not much public attention is being paid to Sen, Stuart Symington's investigation of alleged deficiencies in airpower; the Democrats are feuding among themselves and business, while levelling off, is

But the spring tonic which is producing such evident exhilaration in the White House is the state of Ike's health as given to the press in great detail last Saturday.

THE PRESIDENT, to borrow a phrase from Sen. Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, is "full of spizzerinctum." Sen. Wiley explained to puzzled newsmen that "spizzerinctum" was coined by a banker in his home town of Chippewa Falls to describe someone full of pep and vitality.

Way back when, I had heard the word used by former Gov.

Kim Sigler of Michigan when he promised "to put spizzerinctum into the Republican party." But now comes the editor of the Portland Oregonian to remind me that Sen. Wiley may have committed a blunder, just as Kim Sigler blundered in the Michigan gubernatorial campaign He points out there is no evidence to prove that the word, used for more than a century, originated in Chippewa Falls or that it describes a person full of energy and ambition.

When Michigan's Kim Sigler told reporters that "spizzerinctum" means "the old get-up-and-go," the nasty Democrats countered by saying that "spizzerinctum" also meant "tawdry adornment... as on a building; gim-crackery."

Wisconsin Democrats will be sure to bring this less favorable interpretation to the attention of the "Forward" state voters when Sen. Wiley begins his campaign for re-election.

BUT THIS IS NOT the time to argue over definitions. The President's medical checkup resulted in a most favorable report that was not only pleasing to his staff but re-assuring to the entire country.

Whatever "spizzerinctum" may mean, it's the Sen. Wiley version that we hope like will continue to be full of.

NEVER QUITE CATCHES UP

(One in a series of Sunday reproductions of the timeless cartoons of Jay Darling)

HERE WE GO AGAIN! Ding (Jay N. Darling) drew this cartoon nearly two decades ago, in 1937. These were the things that were pushing prices up then . . . and they still are. By now, though, the poor little fellow doing the measuring has had to get a longer ladder. But one thing we didn't have in those days has been added to the unsteady pile. It's called "fringe benefits." Those who read the news about wage negotiations between labor and management know what they are . . . paid vacations, pension plans, hospital insurance, even coffee breaks. ALASKA WILL ELECT 2 SENATORS, compromise of 1850.

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Party platform writers should be spared one slight chore this ear-that of fashioning fresh pledges of statehood for Hawaii and Alaska.

The old 1952 promises "immediate statehood" will do just as well, for neither Democrats nor Republicans expect to redeem their pledges before Congress adjourns, according to a survey by Congressional Quarterly.

MEANWHILE, Alaska is taking matters into its own hands. On April 24 the territory's voters not only endorsed a draft state constitution, but approved a plan to elect two Senators and one Representative next October 9. If history repeats itself, these officials will arrive in Washington next January and demand in vain to be seated as members of Congress. They will then launch a high-pressure campaign to push statehood bill through both chambers.

Almost 100 years have passed since a prospective state picked its Congressional delegation before being admitted to the Union. All told, six states-to-be have done so, the first being Tennessee in 1796. Others were Michigan (1835), Iowa (1846), California (1849), Oregon (1858) and Kansas (1859). In all cases, the states were admitted within two years of the premature elec-

In May, 1796, after the House had voted to admit Tennessee but the Senate had refused to concur, Senators-elect William Blount and William Cocke claimed their seats. But the Senate refused to recognize them and voted instead, 12 to 11, that they "be received as spectators, and that chairs be provided for that purpose. In January, 1850, Califor-

Stevenson, Kefauver Talk Lots; Say Little About One Another

REPORTERS who have interviewed Estes Kefauver and Adlai Stevenson during their current campaigning in California have had little luck getting either man to say in so many words why he thinks he's better qualified than the other for the vote of California

In their speeches, the two candidates have likewise avoided such discussion.

Stevenson and Kefauver have had plenty to say about the Republican Administration and President Eisenhower. But the GOP Administration is not the issue in the California Democratic presidential pri-mary. The issue is a choice between Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver.

Whether gallantry, reluctance to get into a battle that might leave scars, or some more obscure reason lies back of it, the fact is that the candidates are avoiding a discussion of the things that count most in California primary—their comparative qualifications. When Stevenson was here, he sidestepped

a question as to what he thinks of Sen. Kefauver as presidential timber. He just didn't answer the question and talked of something else. In the San Francisco Bay area, according to the Oakland Tribune, Stevenson twice brushed aside similar queries from newsmen. KEFAUVER LIKEWISE has been cautious in remarks about his opponent, and has gotten more cautious as the campaign advanced. Early in the California campaign, Kefquver gave out some strong talk about "bossism" as related to Stevenson's candidacy in the state. But on the last trip to this area, the Tennessee Senator didn't mention that subject. Stevenson, asked about it when he was in Long Beach, said it apparently had faded out es an issue, or at any rate, he wasn't hearing any more about it.

In general the active supporters of Steven-son and Kefauver have been following the line "restraint" exemplified by the two candidates. The main idea seems to be to ignore the other candidate.

As the day of reckoning approaches, it may be the candidates and their aids will find it difficult to keep to this line.

TT IS HARD TO SEE how they can avoid, right to the end, discussion of the main issue of the contest. And it is certainly a question as to whether their present policy is serving the best interests of California Democrats who have to make an important decision June 5 and need to know more than just that Stevenson and Kefauver agree that the Republican Party, Eisenhower, Nixon and some others are just terrible.

In the U. S. Senatorial race on the Democratic side, State Sen. Richard Richards has been following about the same policy as that of the presidential candidates. Richards has been pounding at the Republicans, but he has studiously ignored Sam Yorty, the other Democrat who is fighting for the Senatorial nomination.

Yorty doesn't go for that type of pale campaigning. He has been lambasting Richards and has been trying to draw the State Senator out into a sparring match. Yorty wants to debate Richards face to face here and there "to give Democrats a chance to make up their minds which of us they'd rather have representing the party in the general election."

Bitter, mud-slinging campaigning is not desirable. But certainly the public interest will be whetted, the turnout for the election will be larger, and the public will be better informed, if competing candidates have the courage to compare their qualifications and platforms in straightforward language. If the present pace continues, there's small chance of getting a majority of the voters to the polls

Animal Life Lesson for Men

TO THE EDITOR:

Probably the biggest unplumbed paradox in our national life today is government subsidy, and where it is taking us. Many a thinking farmer feels a loss of individualism and self-respect as he sees his life vocation being put on the auction block to win an election. He has an ominous premonition that his destination is a loss of his freedom and eventually the Welfare State, Mankind might well learn a lesson here from the animal kingdom. Some of them have had communistic or welfare state systems for millenniums. Dr. Horace W. Stunkard a distinguished biologist at New York University, made this observation some months ago in an article in the magazine Science. He sums the results of these systems in one word-"degenercy." Trading freedom for security, such animals have lost something far more precious than they gained.

Dr. Stunkard puts it this way: "Independence, with freedom to explore new vistas, has been the essential condition of progress." He adds that "the welfare state - security with contingent subjection, offers an easy way of life, but it is a slippery path, which by a slow gradual process leads to loss of integrity, greater bondage, and eventual degradation,"

It may not seem exactly fitting to press an uncomplimentary comparison of men to animals, but I incline with Dr. Stunkard to believe that there is a lesson here for mankind. Individual man has the inalienable right to freedom and self government. This is essential to his progress, and can be surrendered to a paternal state only at the risk of losing his individualism and self respect. FLOYD RALSTON

What a shame that the law is reaching back in time to make a case out of Mrs. Hazel

Morris and her daughter.
The idea of implying they are freaks, which they are not, is repugnant.

I found them very interesting. Instead of take the livelihood of these persons who have harmed nobody, officials ought to look around and clean out some of the dumps and dirty places in the Nu Pike Buildings should be cleaned painted in order to make it attractive for the many tourists. There are some parts of the Pike I wouldn't think of taking a visitor to.

Anyway, I hope the powers that be will do something and allow the mother and daughter to continue on the Pike. What harm are they doing.

Now Voters Know Where They Stand

TO THE EDITOR:

We voters now know where we stand. The ADA (Americans for Democratic Action), have endorsed and are ready to back, any one of the following named candidates for the Presidency of these United States: Adlai Stevenson, Averfauver. If and when the Democratic convention nominates one of these three men we get the same package deal from all, at least in a modified form.

First, and before we see where the candidates stand, we should check the backers, Walter Reuther, the gent who gave the citizens of India a scathing denunciation of American policy, is a member of that organization. Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt is the honorary chairman of the ADA.

As for the candidates favored by the ADA, poor Adlal is without a doubt the most handicapped. He is forced to come from that high altitude of a cross between self-satisfaction and intellectual superiority in order to appear social to the masses of the people. He doesn't like it but after all socialism calls for a leveling of the classes and the masses.

. . . . AVERELL Harriman, as Mr. Truman will tell you, is the best bet for he can take orders. He was a follower of FDR and continued to be a "Yes-man" with Truman. The ADA would really love him.

Estes Kefauver, a country boy with city instincts. A would-be reformer-if he knew what to reform. Like Averell he would follow orders to a point. When that point was reached he would kick over the A little too hard-headed for the ADA masters, still he really doesn't have enough on the ball.

Buck had probably thought of himself before championship games with the Browns or league meetings with the Bears and figured if he'd ever been that loose and relaxed, the game would have been in the bag for the Rams.

HOT WEATHER SEASON HERE

Beware Poisoning at Potluck Affairs

Potluck can be unlucky in the form of food poisoning, now that the hot weather season is here.

 This warning was issued Saturday by Dr. I. D. Litwack, city health officer, who pointed out that the danger can be reduced greatly by observance of simple precautions. He emphasized these seven rules for safe food:

1. Keep cold foods cold and hot foods hot. Don't let foods stand at room temperature.

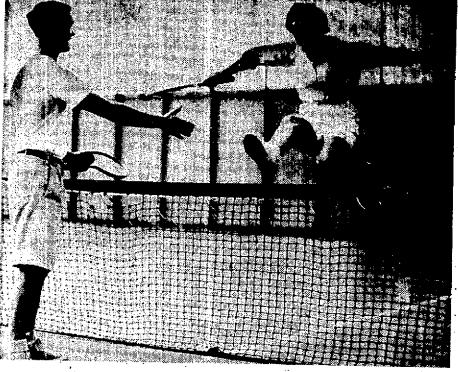

2. Keep hands clean and touch food with hands as little as possible. 3. Don't let anyone with a skin infection or a cold handle food. 4. Keep kitchens, dining rooms or food sale booths free from flies and other disease spreaders. 5. Protect foods from sneezes, handling and dust.

6. Be sure poisons are well labeled and kept far away from the place where food is prepared. 7. Wash dishes, glasses and silver by methods recommended by the Health Dept. Use paper service when possible. Anyone planning to serve food to a large crowd is invited to inquire at the department for advice from a sanitarian. Any serving of food to large groups by persons not skilled in that activity is likely to be more or less dangerous, depending on the degree of care taken, Dr. Litwack noted.

He pointed out that family meals can be prepared and served promptly, which isn't always the case with potluck dinners and similar events.

"My age," said the white-haired gentleman. "Why I just don't think about my age."

THE DEATH of prominent Richard Dilday as a result of an explosion of a patio barbecue directs attention to this little-recognized hazard. Dilday had used inflammable fluid to soak charcoal in the barbecue, a common practice.

Deputy Fire Chief William A. Head says that this method is dangerous, because explosive fumes rise from the soaked material. People should figure out safer ways to start the stubborn charcoal burning, he avers.

There's an electrical charcoal starter on the market now. It may be slower than kerosene, alcohol, gasoline, lighter fluid, etc., but it is a lot safer.

Hap Park, an old hand at starting barbecue fires, tells me he has good luck using the pasteboard from old milk containers. He cuts this material into strips and puts it in the bottom of the barbecue, piling the charcoal loosely on top until it gets going.

USUALLY at such intersections there are buttons for the use of pedestrians, and Dier said he is concerned that so few pedestrians use these.

The buttons, says Dier, have the effect of holding the green signal for a longer interval to give a pedestrian a chance to walk across the street.

Where the signal functions for motor traffic only, it may not hold the green long enough for foot travelers.

But many people, seeing the light turn green, regard it as unnecessary to push the button. Dier says he's considering setting out signs that more clearly explain the purpose of the

"Don't take my nightown - that's all I've got eft!" cried the lady from Wyoming.

That was her good-humored reaction to the California plant quarantine inspector rummaging through rear-scat parcels-on the spoor of apple maggots, plum cerculio or European corn borer.

Her mock-serious declaration of bankruptcy also illustrated a noment of truth; thousands are locking house and hearth to move here.

The affable inspectors at the Blythe quarantine station stop thousands of pests at the border at the same time they're welcoming thousands of guests. So this seemed to be a good spot to query the guests. Why have you come? Where are you going? Where did you come from?.

IN ESSENCE, the headlong flight into California is the landlocked `Midwesterner's attempt to crack the barrier of tedium; the Easterner's abandonment of intemperate season; the Southerner's reach for opportunity; the Western neighbor's peek into descension; the Floridian's trea-

THIS VETERAN IS SORRY!

He qualified for a $14,025 house, so he bought it. Now he realizes an Award Home at $12,025 would have given him just as much. He had to move into his new home with his dingy old furniture. That $2,000 meant "No furniture!" His monthly payments are so high that his budget is straining at the seams. No fun for his family!

THIS VETERAN IS HAPPY!

He could have qualified for a $14,025 home, but he chose an Award Home for only $12,025 Now he finds that the size, construction, and luxury are at least equal to costlier houses. With the $2,000 he saved, he bought new furniture. His monthly payments are less than rent for his new Award Home-only $61.93. Plenty of money left over to enjoy life!

It takes a heap o' livin' to know the good points and drawbacks in a home. Folks who've owned homes before know what to look for. Experience has shown them that a home is more than four walls and a roof. They've found how accumulated furniture and a growing family can make a home that once seemed adequate-too small, too soon. They've discovered, too, how much easier it is to maintain a home that has been quality built-to last!

Practical experience is why so many second-home owners now live in KATELLA PARK. For here there is more room for living ... greater convenience...casier accessibility to and from all sections of Greater Los Angeles ... and a sounder investment in a community of fine homes on custom sized lots on gracefully curving tree-lined streets that assures a high resale value in the future.

Coffee Hour Slated

In a spirit of casual informality, typical of a friendly private club, the seventh annual party for wives of University Club members will be order of the day next Wednesday. Breaking from its usual pattern, this year's affair will be a coffee hour in place of a tea as in former years and will be from 10 to 11:30 a. m. in the University Club's new quarters on the ocean bluff at 1150 E. Ocean Blvd.

Mrs. J. Richard Shelley, wife of this year's club president, will be the hostess in the tradition of the affair. Committee members assisting her are Mmes. Paul Hull, Ernest Lockwood, Paul McClaughry and Robert Driscoll. Joining the committee to serve as assist-ing hostesses for the gay event will be Mmes, William Six, Donald Sullivan, Jack Cooper (she is chairman of women's activities) and Robert Mulvey.

Designed as a get-better-ac-quainted party for wives of old members, it is versity Club men. Most of the morning's festivities will take place around the club's lovely pool. A spring theme will be used with seasonal blossoms keynoting the fresh and airy decorations on the refreshment buffet and throughout all but the men's "sanctum sanctorum" of the clubhouse,

The most adorable seven dollars and fifty cents worth available in New York these evenings is a ticket to "My Fair Lady." This delicious affair must surely rank with "Oklahoma!," "South Pacific" and "Guys and Dolla" of the art of the restriction of th Dolls" as one of the greats of musical comedy. It's got everything—wit, beauty, lovely music, graceful actors, the whole topped off with a gem of a performance by Rex Harrison. As the self-centered, erudite and vulnerable Professor Higgins, Harrison is irresistible. In the art of selling a song without singing a note he has no peer. He does have enormous acting skill and an uncanny sense of musicianship.

First Nighters Share Alohas

As romantic a graduation as anyone could imagine took place Satur-day night beneath Japanese lanterns, fans and fragrant, satiny gardenias. A social graduation rather than scholastic, it marked that period when high. school senior members of First Nighters trade their affiliation for a cap and gown to make way for younger high school members of the popular dance group.

First Nighters was organized 11 years ago to give high school young people the oppor-tunity to enjoy dinner dances in a suitable environment heretofore possible only for adults. The function last night took the Lafayette Hotel and brought to a close a series of seven dinner dances that began in the fall.

Busy chairman of the group was Mrs. Sidney Exiey, efficiently aided by patrons and Mrss. patronesses, Messrs. and Mmes. William H. Clemo, Lauren Conley, John Graye, Lynn Hossom, Jack Reid and Charles Stratton. First Nighters, who suddenly realized they were now "last nighters" were Marilyn Akin, Judie Baum, Patti Braun, Joan Clark, Glenda Corey, Dayle Craig, Sue Exley, Jo Garverick,

Georgia Lee Higgins, Marian Hodge, Aletha Huston, Jerrilyn Johnson, Claire Liebenguth, Fran Mansey, Betty June Mott, Patricia Odell, Donna Parsley, Becky Perry, Letitia Reid, Sandra Richey and Kay Stelten-

BEFORE THE dance began, these First Nighters practiced a few of the latest dance steps in the patio of Dr. and Mrs. Siebert C. Pearson, 5350 El Prado Ave. Morganne Arnold and Ben Wissler watch from the sidelines as Caroline Gibbs and John Trammell take to the wax.

VACATION PROM of the Junior and Senior Cotillion is still a sweet promise of the future. Virginia Country Club on June 8 will find Lon Peek, left, asking Sharon Spawr for a dance as Betti Munholland and Carlton Waters engage in chit-chat. All are members of the Senior Cotillion. Mrs. Lon E. Peek is chairman of the formal dinner dance, and Mrs. John Rowe is patroness.

JUNIOR COTILLION members share a private chuckle over the program held by David Fenwick. Onlookers are George Loveren, Sharon Arkush and Carol Cabe. Chairman of their formal dinner dance the same night in Virginia Country Club is Mrs. John Arkush. Mrs. H. J. Pritchard will take over patroness duties.—(All photos

If you're tired talking about the weather (its really gone from soup to nuts hasn't it?) then here are a few other subjects to take you out of the sky-watchers corps. Guests of Ruby List, Virginia Allen and Lorraine Root weren't the least concerned about thermometers, rain gauges, wind socks or fog horns Thursday. They had much too much fun at the three hostesses bridge luncheon to give a second thought to the unpredictable! Given in the Dubonnet Room (that may not be its official name, but that's its color!) at the Hacienda Hotel, with its elegant marine view, the hostesses planned the affair as a just for fun, informal

Edith Thompson, Evans Mong, Maude Taylor and Cecille Cafferkey assisted keeping guests from Long Beach, Rolling Hills and Palos Verdes in jolly mood.

"Smash hit!" "Best movie we've seen in years!" "Terrific cast." These were some of the remarks heard around Betty and Wally Arntzen's home, 272 Granada last weekend when just about the entire membership of Singers Workshop had a get-together to see colored movies of scenes taken at random by Dr. Jim Kimber of the Workshop's last production, "Bittersweet." The movies were accompanied by wire recorded show excerpts. Jim has been making movies of all productions and "movie nights" are among the most enjoyable the tal-

If you've been among George Badenhausen's work party "victims" you'll be glad to know its safe to take those fake splints off your right arms now. Those presagers of moving day—rugs rolled up and curtains down—spelled the state of affairs at Florence and Ed Iliff's 1107 E. 46th St. house up until yesterday. That's the date they began putting the curtains up and rolling the rugs down in the new manse they've taken a pink slip on at 1045 E. 45th Way. Word of warning. Don't make any facetious remarks to Florence about moving again or you may wind up with a mouthful of excelsior! She accomplished the most rugged of pre-moving chores right smack in the middle of our heat wave!

"Waiting for the Robert E. Lee," apparently, is akin to waiting for reservations to come true on the Lurline. Take it easy, Mr. Matson. We're kidding. Sort of. Gist of this item has to do with Nell and Mark Taylor and Mark's wonderful mother, Katie Taylor. They want to go to the islands for a summer vacation and last we heard they were waiting for confirmation for mid-July travel, with confirmation hinging on cancellations! All sold

Hot tea and buttered scones are daily fare for Connie Brown and Dolly Lamm. That and trying to "feeghure hout wat the nyetives har talkin' habout hover there in Lunnon." The two took to the top of the world May 7 for one of those polar flights to Copenhagen then to London. Just to show you what a small world it is (when you have the where-with-all to travel-telescope it) cards began arriving here from them on May 14! Connie and Dolly will spend most of the six weeks they'll be gone in England where each has friends and relatives.

The speed of life is approaching the speed of light and people, once out of circulation for awhile, discover its difficult to find all those flying-about-space orbits we call friends. Just ask Beverly (Thomas) and Dick Curtis. Bev and Dick are living in Long Beach again after three years Navy duty and Bev has been trying to track down old friends to let them know they're back in town. The Curtis family (it includes six months old son, Kevin) is ensconced at 5157 Anaheim Rd., Park Estates and the welcome sign is out, as Bev would say, "to every-

Get your calendar out, grab a pencil and write down the date June 1 if you are former friends of James P. and Brim (Vrang) Carroll. That's the day (or very close to it) they'll arrive in Long Beach after two years in Talara, Peru. Accompanying Jim and Brim will be their four children, including year old Colleen, born in Peru. They'll spend their two months States-side vacation with Jim's folks, Rose and Charles Carroll, 4518 Linden, and with sister Marybelle and husband, Jim Russell, 3519 Shipway, Lasagna, as only those with warm hone fide Italian blood coursing through their veins can cook it, was served (hot, rich and wonderful) by Betty and Frank Riga to a gang of current and former neighbors the other night. Among those whose appetites leaned toward the table with a tilt like the Towar of Pisa were Ruby and "Curly" Bemis, Mildred and Morris Hinds, Hannah and Rolland Sacchorn, Helen, and Louis Angures. Hannah and Rolland Sagehorn, Helen and Louis Anfunson, Irene and Ned Rudd, "Impy" and Dr. Bernie Pelton and enough others to total up to 30 delighted guests.

A long time in the building and the planning, Mayme Balke-ma finally was ready for a "christening" party for her new patio just completed at her East Second St. home. So steaks thick enough to make a Texas steer turn blue with envy were charcoaled to perfection and those who will sign affidavits they were the best ever tasted were Jerry Season of Santa Monica (it was his birthday and he shared honoree privileges with the patio), Audie Voll, Cathy and "Tex" Ervin and Libby and Bob Newspaper space is like water in a pail with a hole in it. Sometimes you don't have any left before you get it poured! That's the way it was last Sunday when we tried to tell you about "Rosie" Nicholson's pert birthday party for Jim in their home at 269 Argonne. Conversation and laughter were bosom companions that night as friends gathered to say the usual and mean every word of it!

The play: "How Did We Lose in the Ensenada Races." The time: Two Weeks Later. The cast: Gordon Dougherty, Don Hunter and THEIR ALL MALE CREWS. The scene: Alamitos Bay Yacht Club. As the curtain rises we hear the mumbling of male voices. Occasionally over the crowd noises a single voice emerges in puzzled anger: "How could a bunch of women beat us in that race?" or "Our sails were perfectly handled, why couldn't we catch them?"

For two weeks—ever since the annual yacht races to Ensenada, this scene has been repeated over and over. The bitter truth the men keep trying to digest is their defeat by Rolly Kalayjian's craft and his ALL WOMAN crew composed of Joan Bescos, Bunnie Riley, Nancy Carrol, Fran Dixon, Jean Nancy Edited Filips August 1988. Norris, Ellis Ayr Law, Marge Hanson and Dodi Corono. Rolly, villian of this play or hero-skipper of his own boat, depending on how you look at it, really had an able crew!

Soroptimists' Silver Tea Today's Bright Function

Soroptimist International of Long Beach, leading women's service club, will be hostess this afternoon at its annual and always fash onable silver tea to take place in the home of member Mrs. Bradford Cook, 5505 Anaheim Road in Park Estates from 2 until 5 p. m.

One of the major fund raising events of the club year, contributions will be allocated to the many philanthropic projects sponsored by local Soroptimists including scholarships at both Long Beach State and City Colleges; paying expenses of a woman medical student in India (who graduates this year); Long Beach Philharmonic student awards; and, most important of all to Soroptimists this year, toward the financing of Scroptimist House on the campus at State College. Ground breaking ceremonies for this charming, modern building, to be used as a recreation hall as well as for lectures and group meetings, took place three weeks ago.

The beautifully appointed tea today will be attended by many Soroptimists from surrounding Southland clubs as well as local guests and club friends. The occasion will also honor new members of the Long Beach club who have joined within the past year. Mrs. Alvern Swanson, ways and means chairman, is in charge. She will be assisted by Gladdes Neff, president.

Highlight of the afternoon will be the presentation of Eugene Pridonoff, talented 13year-old planist, who began studying at the age of four and who is one of the winners of the Youth Audition contest sponsored recently by the Long Beach Philharmonic.

Alumnae Entertain

Traditionally in the month of May, Tri Deltas all over the country gather in chapter and alumnae groups to honor their graduating seniors. This custom was observed locally when the Long Beach Alliance and Phi Kappa Chapter of Delta Delta Delta met at the Greenbrier Inn last week for their Pansy Breakfast,

Mrs. Robert H. Hartt, Alli-ance president, and Miss Valerie White, chapter president, welcomed guests. Introducing the seniors, Mrs. Charles Burch, alumnae adviser, gave a resume of the collegiate activities and honors of each, as Mrs. Hartt presented corsages from the AI-

Seniors present were Misses Lynn Brown, Carol Diffley, Cecilia Dennis, Helene Gorman, Linda Leyhe, Fredna Moore, Violet Pleso, Joan Werhaus, Elynna Wilson, and Mrs. Mary Pat Leahy.

Mrs. Hartt pointed out that without a strong alumnae group, there would have been no chapter at Long Beach State College, and so she wished to pay tribute to the past presidents of the Alliance,

A surprise feature of the program was the presentation three scholarship awards, one to the senior with the best grade average, given by the Alliance to Miss Joyce Niederberger; one from the advisers to the chapter member with the best record, which was won this year by Miss Jan Andreson; and one in the natural science department which went

Browning and his orchestra. Preceding the event was a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Fort Alcorn, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Irish, Mr. and Mrs. Bart Kean and Dr. and Mrs. Julian Knutson. Many of the club members stayed over night at the hotel, enjoying a party breakfast and swim on Sunday morning. Tuesday was practice night for the organization, with members concentrating on their newest dance, "Blue Or-chids," with Byrd and Vern Garten instructing. Also a party night, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Houser and Judge and Mrs. Beach Vasey served refreshments.

Andrews would be quite right in either resenting or considering such criticism worthless, but these are the tricks that memory plays.

Along with its curiosity, bronchitis and gloves-that-areabout-to-be-lost, any adult audience inevitably totes its past into the theater too, and actors become the targets of reactions over which they have no control. Take, for instance, that drumming song in tango rhythm, 'The Rains in Spain Stay Mainly in the Plain." The audience yells with delight right in the middle of it. They are just as elated as Higgins and his chum Colonel Pickering that Eliza has mastered those blasted vowels.

My own pleasure was on two planes; direct reaction to what was going on before my eyes and ears and, implementing it, the memory of another stage when Ethel Barrymore, "The Corn Is Green," sat so still willing her young coal miner student to pass his college board exams.

It is at this point in this dis patch that your correspondent came in for a rude shock. A few nights after "My Fair Lady" wen went to "The Most Happy Fella." I had thought that the two hits, dealing with the sophisticated world, the other with those simple peasants tramping out the an amusing contrast. Amusing,

"The Most Happy Fella" is as long-winded, tedios aid prehope to sit through. That this great man, Mr. Frank Loesser responsible for "Where's Char-ley" and "Guys and Dolls," " should come up with this ponderous mass of unrisen dough is a sorry break for all of us.

The Long Beach State version of the "Spectacular" hits the boards of the Little Theatre next Thursday night with a six-performance stand of W. Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Complete with Hi-Fidelity stereophonic sound effects giving forth with selected passages from Mendelssohn's "Incidental Music," and a cast of 15 (count 'em) dancers, the play is probably the most ambitious dramatic undertaking yet attempted Choreography for the play has been under the supervision of Albert Ruiz, who has been working with Dr. Sievers, director, and Dr. Robert Tyndall of the music department.

Opening night is next Thursday, with performances scheduled for Friday and Saturday, and then a one week break until June 1, with matinee and evening performances closing the play.

Tickets for the general public are on sale in the Little Theatre Box Office, Monday through Thursday, from 10 a, m. until 2 p. m., and from 6 to 7 p. m.

Selling for 15 cents, the magazine is put out annually by a dedicated staff that works for the pure and simple joy of putting out a literary magazine for LESC. If you're curious, the name "Hornspoon," comes from an instrument used by the gold rush miners. It was fashioned from a cow's horn, and was used to pry loose nuggets from rocks.

Mother's Day may be a week past, but Zeta Tau Alphas are making sure that it comes more often. Formation of a Mother's Club has begun, and yesterday members of Zeta Tau and their mothers had luncheon at the Hawaiian Restaurant. The mothers got to know one another and the members of Zeta Tau Alpha Everybody has a sweetheart, so maybe it's only fair that the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity should have six pretty candidates to be their sweetheart. One of the six will be named as "The" Sweetheart of the Red Carnation Ball at Balboa Bay Club.

Long Beach State College now has five religious clubs. All the clubs are very active individually and working together. The second lecture in the clubs-sponsored "This I Believe" series was held last week, with Dr. Robert Smith addressing the audience composed of the members of five different denominations. This is the first project of the organizations, but LBSC looks for more and eagerly.

Folk and square dancing, and the Miss Universe Contest would ordinarily be thought to have little in common. In this case, however, the contest will have the Folk and Square Dance Club from Long Beach State College performing in the opening contest ceremonies at Memorial Stadium. Although the date for the swing-your-partner set is not until July 14, practice has already started for novice and expert. All students interested are invited to join the club. Check at the activities office, building K-2, for time and place.

New officers took over at the business meeting of Psi Kappa Alpha last Tuesday. Ronald Long won the presidential spot and Harry Carr has filled the vice presidency. Bob Hoting is the new treasurer; Ed Ungerman has the job of secretary.

Bids for next Saturday night's dance may be purchased from members of Delta Delta Sorority, Plans are being made to sell tickets in the LBSC ticket booth on the lower campus. ### Wedding Lines Read for Couple

In a mid-afternoon ceremony May 5 in Emmanuel Presbyterian Church, Miss Lillian Bates exchanged wedding vows and rings with Kenneth Raymon Woods.

The bride, niece of Mrs. George M. Gordon, 237 Nieto Ave., walked with her brother, Carlton U. Bates, to the altar to meet the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth William Woods, 304 Obispo Ave.

Her Cahill gown of tulle and point lace over taffeta was floor-length with a bouffant skirt of tulle and deeply scalloped overskirt appliqued with and medallions. Soft folds on the lace bodice accented the off-the-shoulder line. A Juliet cap of lace, edged with tiny petals of tulle and seed pearls, held her fingertip length veil of illusion. She carried gardenias and stephanotis on a white Bible.

In the bridal party were Mrs. Carlton U. Bates, Carol Servance, Janet Warren, Paul Garrison, Tom Preston, Harold Chase, and Cynthia and Bev-

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: I am sick over my problem.

I have been going out with a months. He has asked me twice to go steady, but I had to refuse him because of the problem I have at home.

This is my problem. My father is an alcoholic and comes home drunk three or four times a week. He sleeps the living room on the couch, and when my boy friend comes over, my father is always asleep there.

to at least sit up, but he gets very angry and says he can sleep in his own house. I'm very ashanted to bring my friends over, because he is always rude to them. I am 18 years old. I would like to go steady with this boy, but I'm ashamed to bring him over. I would like to tell him the truth, but I would feel ashamed to do so. So, please, Mrs. Mayfield toll me what I can do .- HOPE-

DEAR HOPEFUL: You do have a sad problem, and I know how much it distresses you. Is it possible you or your mother could persuade your father to take the needed medical treatment? I know sometimes this is almost impossible with an alcoholic, but with tact and kind-ness, you may be able to. Meanwhile, I think you ought to tell your boy friend of your problem. I have a feeling he will understand your feelings if you explain much more than he will understand your repeated refusal to go

You might lose him if you don't explain. And I'll bet you'll find your father's condi-tion won't make much difference to him, if he really cares about you .-- M.M.

'Kicks Over the Traces' on Entering College Life

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case R-360: Irene L., aged 18 is a college freshman. "Dr. Crane, Irene has gone wild since she entered college," her faculty adviser informed me." I understand she came from a splendid family where morals were stressed and liquor taboo.

"But here on the campus she kicks over the traces alarmingly. Why do teen-agers from good homes often violate the precepts which their parents have taught them?"

Many factors are involved, but one basic question to ask is this: "Was the college stu-dent intimidated at home by dominant parents who forced sobriety upon her? Or did she shun liquor, tobacco and wild parties in high school because she herself logically disapproved of them?'

When you see girls smoking cigarets on campus, it often means their parental training was of the "domineering" instead of the "persuasive" sort.

If, however, your children refrain from liquor and tobacco on the campus, it generally means they were selfreliant personalities even at high school. Their behavior was thus not a matter of parental dictation, but a voluntary choice on their part. Employ this new cigaret test, therefore, and you can make shrewd guesses as to the family background of young folks. Repressed, overly dominsted teen-agers kick over the traces when they get away ome, even though they lived in parsonages.

There is also a tremendous amount of unwise advertising pressure exerted on college youth to stampede them for commercial purposes into smoking and drinking. The advertisers have long tried to make it seem "smart" and sophisticated to suck on cigarets.

So teen-agers who come from small towns and villages are often afflicted with a "small town" inferiority complex. They think it is a disconfess a village background. So they avidly

Why Grow Old?

List of Modern Beauty Aids Is Almost Endless

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Today women have so many beauty aids. For instance, waterproof mascara has only been available for a comparatively short

Now we even have waterproof lipstick. This will keep the line of your lips clear, and the color stable, whether you dive into the water or sip iced tea. There is also a waterproof make-up.

To continue some of our beauty first aids: There are creams which hold the moisture in dry skins. There are deep pore cleansers; spill-proof nail polish bottles; a cream which lightens shadows; heel, hand and elbow mitts; nail polishes which do not spread when removing polish from our nails; disappearing creams (or those which leave grease); hairsprays, which are of great use in hot, wilting weather; all kinds of deodorants (one you just roll on without ever touching your hands to it); superfluous hair removers, even for the face, and eyelash curiers. The list goes on and on.

The parent or teacher who overrides a child's plea for help or consideration is setting in that child's mind quite the opposite from the idea he hopes to instill. If he listens, hears a child's story out, talks it over with the child in the same good-mannered, considerate fashion he would assume toward an adult, he has set the right idea of getting along with people.

"Mother, why can't I have a new dress for the prom? Alice is getting one, and so is That child has taken long strides toward getting along with people, facing a fact and making the best of it. "Mother, will you please go result of the two stretches was that South was in a slam with only 31 points in the combined hands. This is not as bad as it sounds. If we never get to a worse slam contract, we should feel satisfied with our bidding.

"Dear me. Being that Miss Anne lives down the block, that's a large order. What's the trouble? "Oh, she's always after me.

After all, only the spade lead gives South any trouble. Put the queen of spades in the East hand, and West wouldn't dream of leading spades away with balanced distribution and from the king against a slam

As the cards actually lay, West opened the king of spades. South saw that he could win the ace of spades, five diamonds, and five clubs. This would be enough for a meek down one. East would signal his ace of hearts, and west would save the queen of spades and a heart to the end. The only chance was to win the first trick and lead a spade right back. South did so, and West took the queen of spades. East had to follow suit and could only hope that his partner would suddenly develop mental telepathy in order to find the heart shift.

As is usually the case, West didn't develop new gifts. He was afraid to lead a new suit for fear of giving declarer a free finesse. West therefore led a third spade, and South gratefully took his 12 tricks.

Chef of the Week Civic Assistant Adds Cooking to His Skills

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

He has assumed his best professorial attitude for this cooking venture. His powers of concentration are profound. Both are in keeping with his vocation, however, for Chef of the Week S. M. (Sam) Roberts plays a dual roll in our city government. He is administrative aid to City Manager Vickers, and his chief adviser on finances.

In a streamlined operation, accounting, assessing, purchasing, treasury-tax collecting. budgeting and research all come under his supervision.

He was born in Evanston, Ill. La Jolla provided his early childhood and his high school education. Following an AB degree in political science and economics from Stanford, he received his M.A. degree in public administration from SU, Syracuse, N. Y.

His first real position was as staff representative for League of California Cities. It was in San Diego, however, that he put his budgeting talents to work. From 1941 to 48 he served that city as budget officer-preparing the annual budget and assisting the city manager in a management research program.
In 1948 he betook himself, and his experience, to Kansas City, Mo., where he performed in the same capacity. He stayed there until 1951 when he came to Long Beach.

Roberts applies his aptitude to his civic activities, also. Finance chairman and member of the Board, Long Beach Area Council Girl Scouts, he chairs the budget committee Community Chest, and has for the past five years acted in that capacity for National Municipal Finance Officers' Assn. He is immediate past president Long Beach chapter National Officer Management Assn., and is a member Long Beach Kiwanis Club.

do-it-yourself man of sorts, Roberts is no mean interior decorator. He's a distance swimmer, having a trophy to prove it. He came in first in his division in rough water swim meet staged each year at La Jolia.

A devoted dad, his interesting little family consists of three adopted children, two of whom are of mixed race. They are age three, two and twentyone days. Mrs. Roberts was his teen-age sweetheart, they having attended 9th grade, high school and college together.

Your Baby & Mine The 'Horse Phase'

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

This column has to do with the little girl who so badly wanted to be a horse that she ate her food like one, galloped around on all fours most of the time and whinnied. Even the suggestion that she sleep in the barn was met with delight and she had to be coaxed back into the house by her parents.

Mrs. D. P. writes, "I am the mother of a 4½-year-old (this child was five) who loves horses to such an extent that most of her play involves horses and most of the time she is pretending she is one.

"However, she confines this strictly to play, where it belongs. If a child insists on carrying this over into all her waking time, it could be that she finds it more desirable to be a horse than a little girl.

"A girl of five has a desire for grown-up, feminine things, so why not buy her perfume and jewelry, bubble bath, lovely, breath-taking, fancy dresses, an adorable hat, a purse set, or other things she could not resist? 'On the other hand, being a horse could have its drawbacks. The oatmeal or other horsy foods might become very monatonous. Whoever heard of a horse eating cookies, candy, ice cream, favorite foods with little girls

"The horse craze started in our family after seeing so many cowboy movies and TV stories where horses showed an ability and intelligence which is very much exaggerated. I'd put a censorship on this type of movie for the time. And whoever heard of a horse watching TV?"

Mrs. E. G. H. writes, "I found the horse interest lasted with all of my children and their friends until the third grade. Our little girl played horse despite suitables despite and my children and horse despite suitables despite suitables. little girl played horse despite swimming, dancing, music and parties. Finally we bought her a small pony which she dearly

"But her imagination now shows in other ways and she is in demand in high school for skits, introductions and toasts. I feel sure it all started in her imaginative horse play."

Olde English Tradition

THE ENGLISH have always had a faient for good food and drink so that's why there's a ruddy British character to the new oil paintings in the Stag Room at Paul's of Lakewood Restaurant, Carson St. at Bellflower Blvd.

Recently redecorated, the Stag Recently redecorated, the stag Room features three paintings of merry olde England painted by the versatile brush of Allan Woods, a local artist. Included are gentlemen with fat, full stomachs, voluptuous blond bar-maids and contented dogs munching bones on the floor. Paul Hoover, owner of the restaurant, has added other new touches to the room, such as a smart green-figured wallpaper, Hi-Fi music and a six-foot high display of fine wines.

The food at Paul's is right in keeping with that olde English tradition. One of the house specialties is choice roast prime rib served au jus with a polatepleasing mixture of creamed horseradish. The prime rib slices are thick and juley slices are thick and juley — medium or rare according to the guest's choice—and positively delectable. Also served with the rib (which is $2.50 per person) are large crisp salads with Roquefort dressing, mammoth baked potatoes with melted cheese sauce and chives, another vegetable and hot fresh rolls.

EQUALLY POPULAR at Paul's is tender grenadine of beef at the same price. It consists of generous portions of choice meat prepared with wine and then grilled. It is served on toast with a rich mushroom sauce. All the trimmings of a big complete dinner go with it, such as fruit eocktail or tomato juice, choice of soup or salad, potato, another vegetable, rolls, choice of beverage and dessert,

A long time favorite of the patrons is old-fashioned chicken and dumplings served on Sundays and Thursdays. It is real, grandma-style chicken, served with tremendous fluffy dumplings. It's $2 on the large complete dinner. The foregoing items, and numerous others, are also featured at Paul's of Santa Fe Springs Restaurant, Telegraph Rd, at Orr and Day Rd.

CCSTAY WEST, Vacationer" is the new adaptation of Horace Greeley's traditional ad-

Horace Greeley's traditional admonotion to young men.

Back in the East and Midwest, many folks are planning for that vacation of a life-time.

After months of eager planning, they'll be chugging off in the family jalopy or buying tickets on a train, bus or plane for that cross-country trek.

AFTER A $,000-MILE trip, re quiring as much as half their total vacation time, they arrive total vacatio

Very happily, this promised vacationland of the 11 Western states and Canada is right in the backyard of those of use who live in the Long Beach area.

While easterners must plan and save for months and years, we can enjoy these western attractions on even the shortest of vacations with a fraction of the travel time or experience.

We can vacation among the redwoods of California, the mountains and playgrounds of Nevada, the Grand Canyon of Arizora, the forests and pueblos of New Mexico, the Rockies of Colorado, the national parks of Colorado, the national parks of Colorado, the national parks of Utah, the lakes of Washington, along the beautiful coastline of Oregon, the glaciers of Montana, the Yellowstone of Wyoming, the rugged western beauty of Idaho and the bit of old England that is British Columbia's.

WHILE OUR EASTERN friends must travel for days, most of these vacation attrac-tions are within a 1,000-mile ra-

GUIDE TO VACATIONLAND

New Door Opens to Land of Manana

By Vivien Keatley

SOUTHLANDERS are fast discovering a new trip to Mexico, almost in their own back yard,

With the completion of the paved highway from Nogales, Ariz., to Mexico City, some are making a "circult tour" of Mexico, entering at Nogales and visiting much of the land below the border, including the capital, and then taking one of the central routes to El Paso, Brownsville or Laredo, Texas, for re-entering the U.S.

re-entering the U.S.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS of the trip are Mazatlan, Sinaloa, "the Pearl of the Pacific," San Blas, Nayarit, a fishing jungle on the Pacific where tropical plantations grow almost at the water's edge, and Guadalajara. Mexico's second-largest city, and capital of Jalisco, Guardalajara is the true "gateway" between the better known, populated plateau of Mexico, and the "new West" which is opened up by the new highway. Its magnificent "hospitality gate" on the western entrance to the city commemorated, in 1942, the city's 400th anniversary on it present site.

The trip is best made any time of the year except during the late summer rainy season. All bridges are in except at three rivers. For two of these the railroad bridge is being used temporarily. At the other, when water is low the river is forded; when water is high, a ferry operates for a nominal charge.

THROUGHOUT THE STATES of Sonora, Sinaloa, Nayarite and Jalisco tourist accommodations are being rapidly developed. New gasoline stations, modern motels with every modern convenience including air conditioning are being built. Good restaurants are operated in connection with the hotels and motels, and others are operated as just good places to eat. In most of the restaurants both American and Mexican dishes are served.

To make the trip to Mexico a "turista" permit is required, costing $3. This can be obtained at the neurest Mexican consulate, or in Nogales, where one may be subject to considerable delay in case of an accident. When reentering the U.S., proof of recent 3 year smallpox vaccination may be required.

If you are going to Mexico.

If you are going to Mexico, when you cross the border (between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.) your luggage will be inspected by Mexican customs officials, and you'll get your automobile tourist permit. This is free, but you'll need certificate of ownership of your car. If you intend to take expensive foreign cameras—and you'll certainly find your self trigger-happy with a camera in Mexico—it is well to register them with U.S. customs before crossing the border. That way you'll make sure you aren't charged duty on them when you come back.

IF YOU STAY in Mexico 12 full days or more, not including the day of leaving or returning, you may bring back $500 in merchandise for yourself or for glfts without paying any duty. If you stay less than this, you can bring back $200.

You're going to find so many colorful and interesting things to

The Long Way Up the Coast

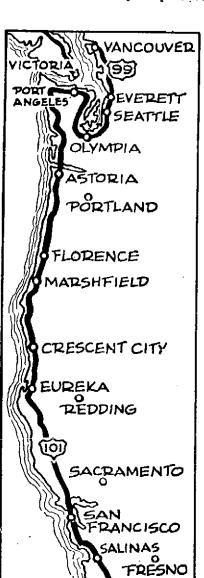

1. One of California's spectacular vistas on way north is Golden Gate Bridge, San Francisco.

World renowned as a vacation resort, the tri-state sweep of America's west coast—California, Oregon and Washington—beckons the seeker after leisurely, comfortable, variable recreation. An abundance of outdoor activities—surf bathing, hiking, riding, beachcombing, fishing, bicycling, golfing, swimming in heated resort pools, rivers and sea, hunling—these are a few—await the casual traveler. Trailer parks, hotels, motels, camping sites, top-flight resort facilities and plain—all these offer a choice that can be altered as the vacation goes along. Scenic beauty abounds in ever-shifting panoramas and of the vast scope only the West knows.

Rugged shores and jutting headlands lend variety to the seascapes of Oregon's green coast. A restless surf picks out beautiful patterns.

Vacations Are for Children, Too

By Nancy Vogel

F YOU HAVE children, you are familiar with the limiting of vacation time to the summer months, when the schools are closed. You are probably familiar, too, with some of the inconveniences and annoyances that seem to be inevitably connected with taking children out of their accustomed routine to strange and exciting places.

They get tired; sometimes they become ill. Discipline and good habits seem to disappear along with the first spurt of dust under your tires as you set out. If the children fought occasionally at. home, in this new close and constant proximity to one another as soon as the initial novelty and exuberance of being on vacation wear off — they begin to quarrel almost constantly. A vacation is not always a time of real pleasure for them,

Vacations are usually planned by parents, with the children listening in eagerly, craning their mecks for a glimpse at the road maps under discussion, and be-ing shushed if they interrupt. Mother has always wanted to visit the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City; this will be a good time to do it. Daddy has always had a yen to go through Hoover Dam; there's no reason for not taking it in this trip! Mother wants to start out by way of Phoenix, because she has a cousin there whom she hasn't seen for 15 years,

THAT SUITS Daddy fine, because he has an old friend just outside of Phoenix that he'd like to look up, too. And there's another old buddy in Spokane that he wants to look up some time before they come home, too.

A vacation can be a lot more A vacation can be a lot more fun, not only for the children but for the parents as well, if it is deliberately planned as a vacation for the children. In the first place, the children can share in acctatic weeks of propagations.

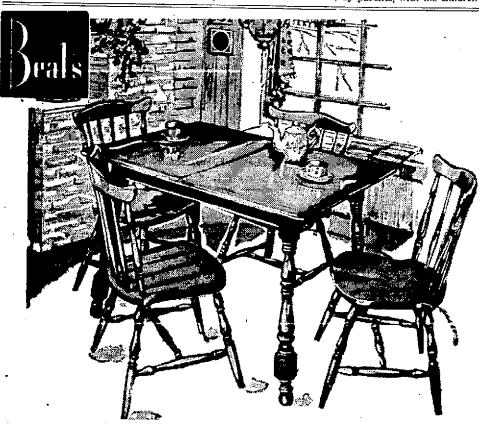

the first piace, the children can share in ecstatic weeks of preparation, with each child, regardless of his age, being given an equal voice in the planning.

Whatever they want to do on this "children's vacation," why not let them do it? This is the time for all those vague someday. I'd-like-lo's to find follow. day-I'd-like-to's to find fulfillment. Inevitably, a lot of the children's desires will coincide with those of their parents, any way. Boys have just as keen an interest in Hoover Dam and other supreme works of human engineering as their fathers have. Children, like adults, are thrilled and enticed by the mystery and beauty of underground caves and caverns, the icy crystalline sta-tacites and stalagmites, like langs in giant gaping jaws. Children love fairlyand wonders like Yellowstone National Park, where for miles the ground steams and bubbles, shooting up geysers here and there, seeming to be about to end its long sim-mering by going up in one vast and glorious explosion.

COMPROMISES can be worked out, of course. There may be a few things that parents won't want to miss which would be unsuitable or boring for children. This is the time for a bubysitter, but the evening's program should include special treats, popcorn, ice cream, games, a late bedtime.

A children's vacation planned, but casual and careless can mean for everyone in the family a vacation that is more genuinely enjoyable and relaxing than any has ever been before.

Library Books Need Surgery, Too

EW OF the thousands who daily seek knowledge, mental stimulus and reading enjoyment from the shelves and racks of the Long Beach Public Library are aware of most of the activities that go on behind the scenes. They are appreciative of the excellence of the cataloguing system, the courtesy and efficien-cy of the staff, the completeness of its many divisions of research, science in all its forms, drama, literature, fiction (including widely circulated whodunits and hoss operas), blography, history, religion, statistical data of all kinds; in short, the works.

Some of them know there are well over 300.000 volumes available to card holders, who pay nothing for the wonderful privileges of reading. And also for their use are hundreds of newspapers from all over the world. papers from all over the world, magazines, maps, charts, pamphlets, etc. If one limited himself to two to four books a day—and some of the weightier tomes would require a 40-hour week to consume — it would take him more than four centuries to go through the library provided no new books were added during that vast span of years. That would be a period approximating the time that Coronado sought the gold-paved streets of Quivera down to the Eisenhower regime down to the Eisenhower regime and the upsurge of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Oklahoma Sooners and the belated fame that has come to Bridey Murphy.

THE MAIN OFFICE of the library, as everyone here knows, is in Lincoln Park, and there are nine branches, with the tenth at Los Altos coming up soon. All these are under direction of Li-brarian Edwin Castagna and his

COULD YOU LIVE alone and like it on a mountain top all your own?

"Who wouldn't?" you ask.

Marie Richter does, though her house is a target for every lightning bolt that strikes. It is the "crow's-nest" of the Park Ridge Fire Lookout in Kings Canyon National Park, where she has manned the fire finder for eight years.

"I call it my summer pent-house," she says, her brown eyes crinkling with quiet fun, "I come up Decoration Day and don't go down again till October."

TO REACH HER eyrle, turn off the General's Highway beyond the forest ranger station. A nine-mile road stretches to-ward Panoramic Point, then twists south up the ridge to a 7,500-foot elevation. The last part is unpaved, rough and extremely narrow. Edging past a down-coming car is precarious. The motorist holds his breath skirting hairpin curves under overhanging bluffs, clinging to the trail between earth and sky. But Marie's cordial welcome is worth it.

"I'm always gind when people come," she smiles.

Her slight figure precedes you up to the tiny, glass-enclosed room where she and her invalld husband, Oscar, live four months of the year. Housekeeping is of the year. Housekeeping is primitive, with camp slove, cots, table, a chair or two. Clothes hang on nails. An old style "cooler," with water dripping over burlap, hangs outside. Twice a week the ranger delivers supplies by truck.

IN THE MIDDLE of the room is the "fire finder," set on a sturdy table bearing a topo-(Continued on Page 32.)

Balboa's Swank 'Strip'

N SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, where recreation and vacations are a major industry, smart clubs dol the shoreline from San Diego to Santa Barbara.

One of these is the swank $1,000,000 Balboa Bay Club, built on a strip of sand between beautiful Balboa Bay and Coast Hwy. 101. Its 2,000 members enjoy a half-mile-long private marina, a spacious bayside dining room with a capacity of 700, a massive kitchen annex, tennis courts, two swimming pools, a playground for children (now being developed), a separate junior clubhouse, meeting rooms, cocktail lounges, apartments for 130 families, and a beach area of imported sand.

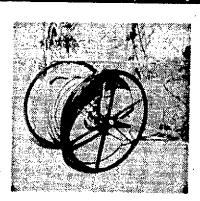

BAY CLUBRERS PLAY TENNIS, swim in fresh or salt water, sail or cast off on fishing expeditions from the club's back door, enjoy excellent cuisine prepared by a French chef, attend highly original monthly parties organized by member committees, entertain social friends and business associates, play cards and watch fashion shows. And they can stay at the club or put up their guests when accommodations are available.

President of the club is Edward J. Crowley, Wayne Ferrell, formerly manager of the Wilton Hotel in Long Beach, is general manager.

Organized 8 years ago, Balboa Bay Club's prestige stems from a membership of names well known in business, the professions, arts and societies, and its philanthropic activities which include such events as the Headdress Ball and Debutante Ball.

Tropical in its decor, this intimate cocktail lounge is a part of the Balboa Bay Club's original building.

SUMMER IS COMING, and to many residents of the Long Beach area that makes a trip to Santa Catalina Island a MUST.

Visitors to Avalon, Santa

A VARIETY of entertainment is offered at Avalon. Principal entertainment of course is swimming, and Avalon boasts that the island lies so that bright sunshine never glitters in the eyes of swimmers. A small pool offers splashing sports for the small fry.

ashore. There is a glass-bottom boat ride synonymous the world over with Santa Catalina Island, and boats of various sizes may be hired or borrowed for exciting

CATALINA GOLF COURSE is popular and there also is tennis. Horses may be obtained for trips into the hills. And trails lure hikers to high points where the island and the far coastline may be seen. The Country Club has been remodeled and the golf course is in good shape and green after the spring rains.

A House Adjusts to Changing Times

Bar, built in conjunction with new family room, adds pleasure to entertaining; has a sink, retrigerator.

By Eileen Ball

SEVEN YEARS AGO John and Joyce Dixon built a pretty, 1400-square-foot home on a Belmont Heights hill where they since have enjoyed south breezes and view.

The house, located at 776 Havana Ave., enjoyed from the start an efficient kitchen and a large living room which the Dixons outfitted with comfortable modern furniture. Dining room, two bedrooms and bath complete the plan. Landscaping complemented the architectural lines and provided outdoor space for casual entertaining in the rear garden.

But with the passing of time, changes came about in the living pattern of this family and these had the effect of shrinking the house to the extent it no longer functioned adountably.

sion, it presents gorgeous colors which seem to change as the sun moves across the clear blue western skies. Ruins of Indian villages, as well as modern reservations where you may buy silver and basket crafts, are other attractions.

Varied attractions lure visitors to Nevada. Virginia City, the ghost town which looks like a movie set, presents the contrast of old while Las Vegas, with its plush hotels, represents the most modern.

Time seems to stand still in the Carlsbad Caverns, one of the vacation lures of New Mexico. Limestone formations and scemingly endless caves make it one of the most popular of western typical Spanish architecture, historic buildings and surrounding attractions. Santa Fe, with its Indian reservations, is another tourist mecca.

Bus Tours Ready

The escorted bus tour is one of Greyhound's contributions to the 1956 vacation picture, and advance reservations for tours announced show that this type of vacation has a strong appeal. For instance, escorted tour leaving San Francisco for the Canadian Rockies and Glacier National Park on July 9 has been almost completely sold out, and reservations are now being made for the Aug. 6 departure from San Francisco. Canadian Rockies-Glacier Park escorted tours from Los Angeles leave that city July 22 and Aug. 19, and reservations for these special tours are also being made rapidly. No additional tours to this area can be arranged because the hotels have set aside for Greyhound only enough accommodations for the four tours.

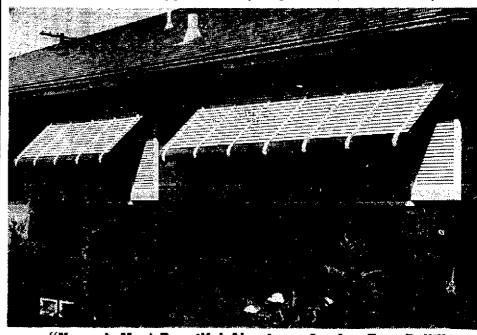

The situation on other escorted tours is better, chiefly because there are more of them. The 18-day Mexico tour, for example, leaves Phoenix every ample, leaves Phoenix every other Manday through Sept. 24. The tour of the Pacific Northwest. Vancouver and Victoria, which is described as Greyhound's most popular escorted vacation, will leave from both San Francisco and Los Angeles every Sunday, beginning June 24 and continuing through Aug. 26, a total of 20 escorted tours from the two cities. In addition there are six escorted tours from Los Angeles to Yellowstone and Grand Teton national parks. Five escorted tours to Utah Parks and Grand Canyon are scheduled from Los Angeles.

Colorful new folders describing these escorted tours are now available at Greyhound depots, travel bureaus and from travel agencies, Kirkpatrick said.

T'S TIME AGAIN to polish up the outdoor, grill and plan some meals for dining in the sunshine or under the stars. The meals can be just as glamorous as those served in the dining room and much more fun.

Picnies, whether in your own backyard, patio, at the beach of packyard, pato, at the beach of atop a mountain, are the most fun when they're properly planned. Here's a good picnic tip: plan out the things you want to take with you the night before. Otherwise, somebody will forget something that will put a damper on the whole day.

EVER SIT DOWN to grilled hamburgers, and hear somebody say, "But I thought YOU packed the ketchup?"

Or, "Honey, didn't you put any salt in the basket?"

Yes, systematic planning pays big dividends, so today we're devoting the column to the fundamentals of picnicking. At a later date, we'll do another article and include motions you'll like include recipes you'll like,

ORGANIZING: It's the little things that are easiest to forget, but big or little, there's no need to forget anything if you plan your picnic in a systematic way:

1. Planning on hamburgers? Make them into patties the night before. Get out an insulated picnic bucket such as the one in the picture, and in the morning all you have to do is pack the ham-burger patties on the bucket's plastic tray. Don't forget the small cans of frozen refrigerant to keep them cold and fresh.

If you're planning on having a picnic where stone grills are not provided, you'll want a handy, easy to manage portable grill that will cook a good supply of hamburgers. The grlll in the picture contains an enclosed charcoal fire, weighs only a few pounds, and is one of the cleanest, safest you can buy. You est, safest you can buy. You carry the charcoal right inside it, so there's no mess.

2. PUT YOUR BOTTLED goods on ice the night before. Along with the refrigerant, pack them in the morning in an in-sulated bucket so they'll be nice and cold when you want them. If you want hot coffee or if you want to take along unbottled lemonade, make them fresh and pour them into an insulated jug with a built-in pump dispenser. with a built-in pump dispenser. No need to carry them in an old-type jug that you have to lift or tilt to pour from. A rubber bulb is squeezed and the liquid is pumped through a spout at the top. Even a child can get a drink when he wants it without danger of tipping over the inc. danger of tipping over the jug.

3. Make sure you have enough of everything. Appetites go up as the result of strenuous outdoor activity. Best way to estimate how much to bring is to calculate more than you think anyone can possibly eat, then multiply by in a scaled plustic container and store them in with the soda in the cooler.

The food supply should now be

NOW MAKE A CHECK list; your planning has got to be carethose little items that are important to making a pienic a success. Include the following:

1. Plates, cups and silverware. Put them in the insulated bag if you like. There's plenty of room.

2. Salt, pepper, sugar, mustard, cream or milk, catsup. Put the cream in the cooler with the other bottled beyerages.

3. Don't forget a bottle opener, a good sharp knife, and a flash-light (it's liable to be dark when you pack up to leave).

4. Take along a can of char-coal lighter. It will help the fire get going ever so much faster.

That's all there is to it. If you think of anything else that you usually like to take along on a picuic, by all means add it. But plan it out.

Pikiniki, Hawaiian Style

LIKE TO GET OFF the wellnotched visitor trail at Waikiki Beach while in Hawaii? Then you can have the fun of exploring some of Oahu's 32 lesser-known public beach parks.

化基本取代的数本并多处理提引取复形式 一世都中華發展心理問題教養者

Spotted around the 40-milelong, 26-mile-wide island of Oahu (site of Honolulu), each beach has its own following of islanders who picnic and sun themselves on serene, uncluttered sands.

Very few visitors get to know Oahu's excitingly varied range of beaches because Waikiki surf laps the doorsteps of big resort hotels. But anyone adventurous enough to rent a U-drive car or hop a bus can whizz out to Hanauma Bay beach park in half an hour from Waikiki proper,

THE SEA-HUGGING, modern, paved highway winds by some of Honolulu's most handsome nomes, surrounded by giant monkeypod (rain trees), golden showers and plumerias. Man-high torch ginger and bird of paradise flowers blaze near the gates and orchids bloom from lanais shaded by hau trees. The sea panorama, by not trees. The sea panorama, from the parking area above Hanauma Bay, is worth the trip alone. Below, a palm-shaded crescent of white sand is walled at one end by black lava cliffs adjoining Koko Head crater.

If it's Saturday or Sunday, you'll probably follow a queue of laughing, barefooted Hawaiian and Oriental youngsters — bur-dened with swim fins, fishing gear and lunches, down the 300foot ramp to the beach. If it's a week day, you may share the view with the black seabirds of the same species that once donated plumes for feather insig-nia of Hawaiian kings.

BECAUSE THE QUIET, startlingly translucid green water is sheltered from waves by a collapsed crater wall several hundred yards off-shore, Hanauma is a favorite spot of island keikis (kids) and skin divers. Food for which the island is famous is available in a pavilion that houses comfort facilities and showers.

Like to take one of the most scenic two-hour drives in the world? Then you might plan to picnic at Hauula beach park on the windward side of Oahu.
It is just a few miles from 87foot high Sacred Falls, steeped in Hawaiian legend, and a great Mormon temple, often called the Taj Majal of the Pacific.

A PERFECT STOPPING place for visitors circling the island, Hauula park has wide lawns for games and picknicking. Hikers make it to the nearby spectacular gorge in about an hour from the parking area, a short drive from the beach.

If you wear a bathing suit under your aloha shirt, you might want to take a plunge in the icy pool where smoking water flumes down the narrow 50-foot

Rather than lug your lunch up the criss-cross river trail to the falls, you'll do better to enjoy it in the seaside picnic pavilion at the park (all major Waikiki Beach hotels put up picnic lunches for guests).

Islanders bring up lobsters and squid 50 yards off-shore from Hanule pavilion

AN HOUR'S DRIVE on down the road, past an abandoned sugar mill converted into a church is Waialae beach park. Sprawling lawns and shade trees invite loafing, while novice swimmers splash in the safe, quiet water. Spear and torch fishing center about the coral reef—a good spot to get friendly with islanders not found at Waikiki.

Anywhere you go, you can light small cooking fire, as long as it does no damage to grass and trees. It's especially fun to gypsy along until you come to an uninhabited stretch of sand that looks inviting—then stake out a claim. You can usually find wood along the wooded roadsides. Charcoal is sold at mar-kets and country stores near pienie areas.

If your family is the outdoor type, you might like to consider tenting at one of Oahu's many beach parks. (Permits must first be obtained from the Board of Parks and Recreation in Honotoo nervous to feed them. And sometimes puppies are orphaned and must start life on cow's milk if no foster mother is avail-

The most difficult thing in raising orphans is to find a nipple they will accept. Doll bottle nipples, baby bottle nipples and chinchilla bottle nipples can be tried. These failing you will have to resort to a medicine dropper, If the orphan swallows the milk as it is slowly squirted into his mouth, no harm will come, but should he hold the milk in his mouth then cry or wheeze and inhale the liquid, he may develop pneumonia. So watch this factor carefully.

A NEW-BORN ORPHAN of a small breed needs about five dropperfuls six times daily. A large orphan needs twenty dropperfuls six times daily. Pups in between in size need to be fed accordingly. Orphans under one week usually must be fed every three or four hours.

For the orphan, a spray-dried baby milk may be used. Mix one ounce with six ounces of water and add one ounce fresh eream and add one ounce fresh cream for a stock solution. Older puppies can usually digest a solution of one cup good milk, one tablespoon lime water, and one tenspoon of Karo syrup. Keep any solution refrigerated, shake when ready to use, and warm to body temperature.

PUPPLES SHOULD NOT be permitted to nurse after six weeks, or they may ruin the appearance of the dam. And the babies' needle-like teeth and growing toenails can make life exceedingly miserable for the mother. In protestation, the dam may regurgitate her own meals as a signal for you to start her offspring on solid foods.

Young puppies (and kittens) readily learn to lap milk from a saucer. Only a little railk should be offered at first, otherwise vomiting may occur or the digestion become more seriously upset. When accustofied to the milk, the pets may have frequent feedings still in small amounts.

SOLID FOODS to be offered gradually include scraped raw beef, cooked meat, commercial puppy foods and biscuits, baby pablum, raw egg yolk or soft-boiled eggs, cooked non-starchy vegetables, with the addition of wheat germ oil or cod liver oil and recommended minerals. Some salt is needed, but at no time feed sweets, chicken, fish or rabbit bones, potatoes, chocolate or any rancid fatty food.

If the pupples need a good stomach tonic, acid neutralizer or slight laxative, give milk of magnesia. For diarrhea, give milk of bismuth twice daily, a teaspoon or more according to size of animals, and be certain the meat for the pup is cooked. Fresh water must always be available.

The mother's milk secretion will diminish naturally as wean her puppies. If milk does remain in the teats, give her a full purgative dose of milk of magnesia every other magnesia every other day until she is dry.

You may have stopped at the Valerie Jean Date Shop in the Coachella Valley.

They tell you that their sturdy structure is made up of old (1877) Redwood telephone poles for rafters; and railroad bridge timbers of the same age for the posts and beams,

In 1905 the overflowing Colorado River washed a channel thru the Imperial Valley and began filling the Salton Sea, covering the railroad tracks. The ties, poles and bridge timbers were removed and lay on the desert for another 30 years. Then they were used to build the date shop, contributing their age-weathered beauty.

Tips for Better Vacation Pictures

By the Shutterbug

A FOREIGN VACATION is an irresistible magnet for many era fans. For those who want to cut the expenses, time and red tape involved in making the big hop overseas, there are many foreign lands to visit right here in our own Western Hemisphere. In today's air age, many of these Old World outposts are only hours away from several American cities.

Camera fans who plan an extended vacation trip of any sort should heed several precautions and remember time tested rules for all-around successful picture

Before going away the camera should be examined and cleaned to make sure it's working properly. If the camera is new or borrowed, it should be tested in advance so that you are familiar. vance so that you are familiar with its operation.

YOU SHOULD CARRY an am-YOU SHOULD CARRY an ample film supply . . . and a little more . . to avoid local shortages. In black-and-white, you should carry one type with which you are familiar from past experience. In color, too, have only one type to avoid confusion. Keep a spare roll in your pocket when spare roll in your pocket when you're out with the camera.

With color film especially, a light meter is a wise investment.

EN ROUTE, the camera should be handy, not tucked safely away in the baggage. Road markers, local signs, landmarks make good titles and easier identification of people and places later.

Picture interest is heightened by variety: 1. Get low and high angles besides the normal eye level view. 2. Use side and backlighting as well as front lighting.

3. Shoot long, medium distance and close-up.

Look for natural framing devices to aid your composition—archways, columns, branches and leaves at top.

Now's Time for Asters

By Walter Finch

NOW IS THE TIME to get your asters started, and here are a few tips on varieties

It you want the biggest, fluffiest flowers of all, then look for "Super Giant" wilt-resistant Super Giant' witt-resistant strains. They are named for California cities, such as El Monte, Los Angeles, Beverly Hills and so on. These giants have only recently attained wilt resistance, recently attained wilt resistance, and it is a good idea to check the packet to make sure you are getting the new, wilt-resistant type. The plants are large, sturdy, and produce long, heavy stems to go with the giant, ostrich-feathered flowers. Maturity is on the late side, with blooms appearing in late supports blooms appearing in late summer and continuing to frost,

IF YOU WANT earliness, it is still hard to beat Queen of the Market asters. Plants and flowers are not so large as the giants named above, but you can expect to have good double blooms for cutting at least a month earlier. Heat doesn't seem to bother this

Another type that resists heat and has a wonderful plant and flower type is a new one called Powderpuffs. These asters grow in a very distinctive manner which makes the class known as Bouquet asters, and Powderpuffs is a mixture of colors in this class. The Bouquet name comes from the fact that you can pick an entire plant at one time, and the flowers are arranged nat-urally on the plant in ideal bou-quet form. The flowers themselves are medium sized, with an extremely double characteristic that creates centers so dense that they are actually quilled. The plants are upright in nature, about 2 feet tall, with as many (Continued on Next Page)

The most important factor concerned with watering is get-ting the moisture down where it will do the most good . . . deep into the root zone. Botanists will tell you that the method of watering determines the depth of the root zone. Light sprin-kling, which is undesirable, encourages surface rooting. Flood-ing the lawn forces the water down several inches and that is where you want the roots.

During the warm weather period let your grass grow fairly long. Set the mower so it cuts at a height of no less than one and one-half inches; actually one and three-quarters inches would

SQUARERIGGER sailing vessels ply the seas no more but they nurtured a breed of men whose tradition still lives. Such a man is Hjalmar Rutzebeck who ran away from home in his native Copenhagen to become a sailor. The story of his life, as told in his book, "Mad Sea" (Greenburg, $3.75), is an almost unbelievable yarn that bears out the old saying that "truth is sometimes stranger than fiction." The facts bear out the author's story, and one who is inclined to dispute them should remember that he is a man of gargantuan Nordic build with many a water front and shipboard fight behind his first which and a survey whose a contract of the sail which is a man of the sail which is sail which a sail which is a man of the sail which is sail which is a man of the sail which is sail which is a sail which is sail which is a sail which is sail which which is sail which is sail which is sail which which is sail which which is sail which which is sail which Nortic build with many a water front and shipboard fight behind his fists, which a columnist once described as "made for throwing paving bricks."

Rutzebeck, who tells his story in the eyes of an alter ego, Svend Norman, who has been with him all of his life, had a penchant for getting into trouble. But his life for 10 years under sail and ashore is typical of the men who followed the sea. He knows the brutality alloat, the boardinghouse masters in league with the police, the women of far ports, the IWW, life-and-death struggle of a castaway, in fact, the whole intolerable life of the men who followed the sea and sail. He quit the sea to see the sea of the sea followed the sea and sail. He quit the sea to rise to respectability as an administrator for former as an administrator for former Gov. THE METAMORPHOSIS of a shy, puny, wife-dominated gov-ernment clerk into the reincarernment clerk into the relicarnation of one of Napoleon's most reckless and swashbucking generals makes for top entertainment. But in "Double Exposure,"

AS ILLUSTRATIONS ABOVE show, a good plant box doesn't need to be claborate. But strength is needed to hold 75 pounds or more of soil, so don't skimp on bracing. ## A light in the darkness

by DR. ALBERT SCHWEITZER

THE AUTHOR (right), world-renowned physician, musician and humanitarian, sent this tribute to PARADE from his hospital in Lambaréné, French Equatorial Africa.

In my childhood, I heard many conversations about the Red Cross. At the time, this great international organization was relatively new. Yet people were already speaking enthusiastically about it. The hope they held that it would help put an end to the horrors of war, and thereafter to war itself, has not yet been realized. However, it has justified its existence in two horrible wars, and in peacetime moments of need.

To the Red Cross, millions of human beings owe their very existence. Thanks to it - and institutions like it a humane concern for others continues to exist, even in the moral confusion of today.

For me, the Red Cross is more than an institution. It stands for an ideal - one in which humanity must think, feel and act with compassion toward the world's suffer-

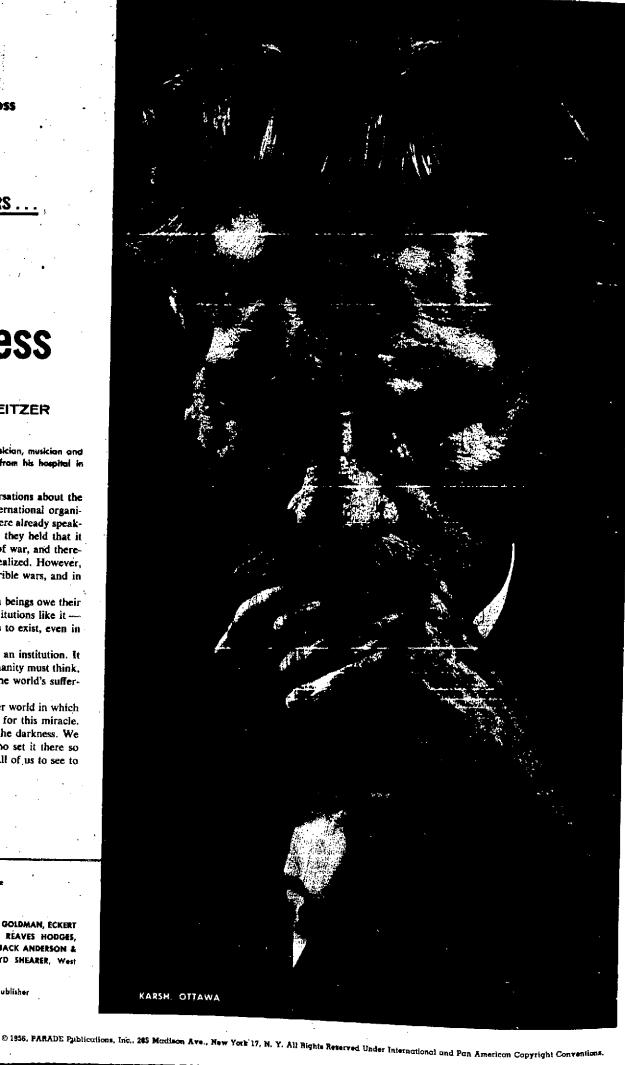

It encourages us to aspire to a happier world in which all are brothers -- to continue to hope for this miracle.

To me, the Red Cross is a light in the darkness. We all owe a debt of gratitude to those who set it there so many years ago. And it is the duty of all of us to see to it that it does not go out.

How Tall Will Your Baby Grow?

Food tips for trips

Does your baby sit safely?

WHEN he's fully grown how big will your baby be? Growth studies answer this fascinating question with remarkable accuracy: The average 2-year-old boy and 1¼-year-old girl'are about half as tall as they'll be when adults—given nourishing food and good health.

AGE	BOYS	QIRLS
Α.	рргох. %	dult height
Ž yrs.	49	52
1½ yrs.	46	49

o Hew many inches long is your baby now? Add two zeros. Then divide by % shown for your baby's age and nex in chart above. For example, if your 6-month-old boy is 27" now, divide 2700 by 38. He'll be about 71" when fully grown—almost a 6-footer. This is no estimate based on approximate averages. Slow- or fast-growing babies may shoot up or slow down later.

• He suits you big or little—and he knows it! When you smile and talk happy-talk at mealtimes, that makes him feel good—helps him want to eat all his tummy can hold.

• No new foods on trips—good rule for travel-with-baby. Stick with his favorites. If your baby's tiny, try to go someplace and stay. Don't tour around. On trips, baby food in glass jars is handier than ever. Especially Heinz better-tasting dinners: Strained Vegetables and Lamb, Beef or Bacon—each a meal-in-a-jar.

Little baby, soft and new— The whole world smiles because of you.

• If baby rejects cereal the first time your doctor suggests it, try another flavor next time. Heinz makes four precooked cereals—Rice, Barley, Oatmeal and Mixed Cereals (wheat, oats and corn)—all fortified with enriching iron that baby needs.

• Giving baby a safe piace to sit helps prevent falls. Safest: a sext-in-a-table. Next: a broad-based high chair. Let Dad feed baby sometimes. People get better acquainted fast over good food.

This daily diet for babies 6 to 9 months is merely a menu guide. Make your own substitutions. If haby is tired of vegetables, offer fruits for a while. Many better-tasting Heinz fruits contain similar minerals and vitamins and the same amount of roughage as vegetables.

1 Quart Milk • 1 Heinz Teething Biscuit

WASHINGTON.

Because atomic warfare offers so many new problems, U.S. Army planners here are coming up with some of the darnedest aircraft ever conceived. On this page are artists' conceptions of three which will be flying within 18 months (and which also may well be the forerunners of tomorrow's private planes),

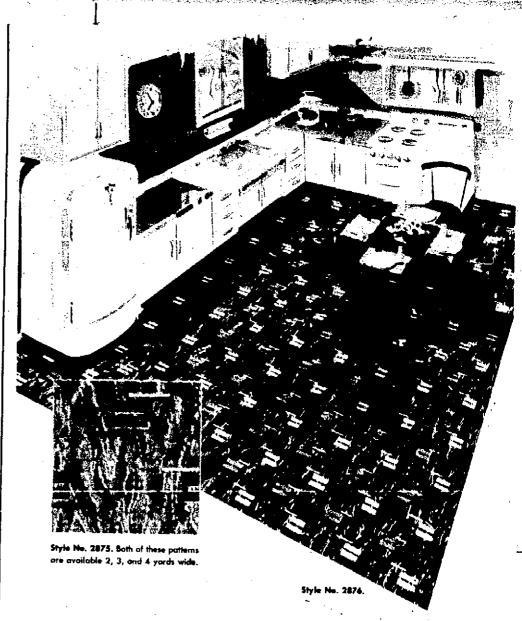

As Army strategists see it, future battlefields will extend for hundreds of miles; that means troops will be scattered over a vast area. "We must be highly mobile," a spokesman told PARADE. "To concentrate troops for any length of time could be fatal. If an atomic shell landed -" He didn't need to finish.

Our new, dispersed atomic Army must be supplied by fast, lowflying planes freed from formal airfields with their long runways and fixed installations. Thus, Army designers have produced the weird but efficient "family" of planes illustrated here - the "jeeps" of atomic warfare. They will be rugged, maneuverable, versatile; cheap to produce, easy to operate and maintain. They will fly faster than a helicopter. For tactical purposes they will hug the ground, hopping over obstacles like giant grasshoppers.

Two scientific breakthroughs have made these new planes possible: 1) development of small gas-turbine engines which produce twice as much horsepower for their weight as conventional small piston engines; 2) development of high-lift devices, such as ducted fans and double-hinged flaps, which make possible near-vertical takeoffs. The planes may be made of nonmetallic materials, such as plastic or rubber, to speed up manufacturing time - and reduce odds of radar detection.

Such a plane can land in a small clearing, be hidden under the nearest available tree. Adds an Army colonel: "These planes could quickly move an artillery battery - say, our guided-missile site. They could deliver agents behind enemy lines, fly medical supplies to isolated places, evacuate wounded, carry a TV camera to spot enemy targets, deliver atomic warheads to our atomic artillery sites."

Army officers stress: "These planes are no competition to the Air Force. We believe the top speed doesn't have to be more than 350 mph. At that speed and the treetop altitudes, they'll be immune from anti-aircraft fire. While the Air Force is flying as high as she can, we want to fly as low as we can. But we'll both be fighting the war in our own way."

The untold story of

You know him as the No. 1 star of 1956. Now meet the proud, shy, hard-working man behind the star... First of two parts

by LLOYD SHEARER

UDGING BY THE early box-office returns on The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit and the advance ballyhoo on the soonto-be-released Moby Dick, the most popular motion-picture star of 1956 will almost surely be Eldred Gregory Peck.

And deservedly so. At 40, after 21 profitable films (not counting these two) and 13 eventful years in the movie game, this gaunt, inscrutable leading man has come to be recognized as one of Hollywood's most careful, conscientious and industrious actors.

During the filming of Flannel Suit, for example, Peck stayed awake nights devising what actors call bits of business -- mannerisms, movements, even lines to make the characterization more interesting, more complete. If called upon to play a scene which he considered trite, he would politely insist that a more original approach be taken.

"Greg is one actor," says Nunnally Johnson, who wrote and directed the picture, "who simply refuses to take the easy way out. He just will not act a part in a hackneyed way. He tries to make it different, to infuse it with dimension. He's a meticulous crafts-

"In Flannel Suit we had a flashback in which Greg hurls a hand grenade that kills, his buddy. He refuses to believe the soldier is dead until he himself can carry him to a doctor in the rear area. Now, I was willing to let Greg carry his dead buddy in a Fireman's Lift, the body slung across his shoulders. He wouldn't have it. It would be much more effective, he insisted, if he carried the soldier cradled in his arms. It was backbreaking that way, but it also was more dramatic and more effective, and Greg sized that up instantly,"

Peck's painstaking dedication to detail is famous here. Directors and players who have worked with him - John Huston, Alfred Hitchcock, Ingrid Bergman, Ethel Barrymore, Ava Gardner, Charles Laughton -agree with Johnson's assertion: "Greg Peck works harder than practically any other actor in the world,"

An intelligent, somber and sensitive man with a simple credo - "I take my work very scriously" - Peck is so fiercely proud of his reputation as a cooperative and hard-working actor that the only time he ever threatened to sue anyone was two years ago when he felt that his reputation had been jeopardized.

The occasion was a Hollywood trade paper's erroneous report that Peck had been fighting with Johnson on the production of Night People in Munich, Germany. George Chasen, Peck's watchful agent, cabled him a quotation from the paper. Peck read it, and his face crimsoned. Marching to Johnson, he thrust the cable in front of him and demanded: "Have you and I ever fought?"

Johnson glanced at the cable, then advised Peck to forget it.

"Not on your life," Peck reportedly stormed. "I'm going to sue for libel. I think I can collect. They're damaging my reputation as a professional actor. I've never fought with a director or held up production in my life."

"If you feel that strongly about it," Johnson conceded, "I'll be your first witness."

Later Peck relented and reluctantly dropped the idea, but the item roiled him for weeks.

Just why he feels so strongly about this is something of a puzzler to his colleagues here. Some feel that Peck—a rangy, virile man who stands 6'3", weighs 185— is actually a complex, bedeviled personality, filled with self-doubt concerning his basic acting ability. They point to a significant fact: that no critic of recognized stature has ever described any Peck performance as truly great. "Good" and "adequate" are the two adjectives most frequently employed to praise his work. Inevitably, this must evoke a reaction in Peck himself.

Says one director who has seen Moby Dick, "It's a wonderful picture. But the role of Captain Ahab gave Greg one of the choicest dramatic opportunities of his life, and he flubbed it. He's good instead of being great.

"As Melville wrote him, Ahab is a terrifying, vengeful man with a mind as twisted as his one-legged body. He's drowning in his hatred for Moby Dick, the white whale that cost him his leg and scarred his face. It's a role that calls for fire, sweep, unbridled emotion. But Greg simply is not up to it. The man just cannot let himself go. There's a weight, a stone inside of him that holds him down. It's not that he underplays where underplaying is uncalled for, it's simply that he cannot break the stranglehold inhibition has put on his emotions.

Actor in Gray Flannel

"In The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit, he is much better. Better because it's a case of type-casting. Gregory Peck happens to he by nature the actor in the gray flannel suit. He's stolid, conservative, hard-working. He gets $300,000 a picture, has organized his own production company, picks the best properties, hires a high-pressure press agent, insists upon the top directors, plays it cool and calmly.

"Technically, mind you, he's a darn good actor. But he's not in the same acting league with Brando or Donat or Steiger or Tracy or March or any of the really first-rate people. And in his heart I think he knows that."

A dramatics instructor, who taught him the rudiments of acting in New York 16 years ago after Peck had finished working as a World's Fair. "talker" and a Radio City sight-seeing guide, offers a succinct wrap-up of the actor's histrionic ability. "Peck's performances," he says, "are exactly like Peck—honest and workmanlike, humorless and uninspired."

The public, of course, views Peck differently. To the average film fan he represents a handsome cross between Abraham Lincoln and Gary Cooper. He is the romantic young American who dies 'gloriously or who surmounts all obstacles in a manner designed to stimulate the female while not antagonizing the maie. He inspires confidence and trust.

As one Los Angeles theater manager puts it: "Peck's name on our marquee is the best box-office insurance we can have. Thousands of women in this neighborhood, I guess in every neighborhood, feel that here is one guy who would sooner chop off his right arm than cheat on his wife. He seems so romantically righteous."

The Hollywood View

In Hollywood, however, Gregory Peck the man is held in no such venerable light. He is considered an intelligent individual of quiet talent who lives within himself, a humorless actor who has few close friends, a wonderful father and a moody husband, an introvert who has never shared his pleasures or pains with the press or the public and never intends to.

When Alfred Hitchcock was asked if he knew or could recall anything warm or humorous about the actor, his reply was that Peck was "probably the most anecdoteless man" in the motion-picture industry.

Nunnally Johnson, one of this town's leading humorists, when presented with the same question, hedged with, "Greg is not a gag or joke man. His outstanding traits are integrity, honesty and conscientiousness. While these are not the most lovable or quotable characteristics, they are extremely admirable."

Women interviewers for the fan magazines report that it is easier to mine diamonds than to get quotable sentences out of Peck. Usually they approach a star and say, "Do you mind if I ask you a personal question?" Peck's stock answer is, "Not at all, if you don't mind my not answering it." Currently he refuses to, let his new wife, 24-year-old Veronique Passani (left and cover) — whom, ironically, he met when she interviewed him in 1953 as a part-time journalist for the Paris Presse—be interviewed at all. As one result, precious little truth is printed about his private life.

Yet there are those who know him well and don't mind venturing comment. One friend, who attended the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York with Peck, says. "The only time I recall this guy ever letting loose, I mean giving vent to his feelings, was years ago in Manhattan, around 1940 or '41

His childhood was rugged. Maybe it explains the kind of man he is now

when he was a struggling young actor. He was in love for a week with a very rich and homely girl. I think her name was Betty.

"Anyway, he was riding on one of those Fifth Avenue double-decker buses. He was on the top deck. All of a sudden he slid down the pole, to the bottom deck and started shouting, 'Look, Ma, I'm a blue-boid!' That saying was very popular at the time, and Greg felt so good, so much in love that he just had to sing it out.

"That's the only time I ever remember his being genuinely exuberant. Ordinarily he's a fellow who keeps his emotions under lock and key. When Greta, his first wife, was pregnant with Jonathan, their first child, Peck figured out five ways on the map he could rush her to the hospital when the time came. He's that kind of methodical fellow who always keeps himself in check.

"My own opinion is that he's been carrying a monkey on his back for years." (This phrase, originally used to describe dope addiction, has become a show-business equivalent for "something is bothering him.") "It may be that he has a guilt complex about straying from the Catholic church, which he did when he married Greta. Or it may be that he resents his father, who was an outstanding athlete while Greg was not. Or maybe the monkey can be found in his childhood ..."

It all began in La Jolla, Calif., a section of San Diego. Born there April 5, 1916—"He was a big baby," claims his mother. "Weighed 10 pounds"—Eldred Gregory Peck became the child of divorced parents when he was fittle more than 6.

Why Did They Split Up?

His father, Gregory, a former crack athlete at the University of Michigan who owned and ran-a drugstore and captained the San Diego rowing team in his spare time, was a tall, good-looking pharmacist who somehow couldn't get on with his St. Louis-born wife. Some say the marriage foundered because Mrs. Peck had converted to Catholicism and then had come to resent the conversion. Of this, she herself maintains, "It's ridiculous gossip. Mr. Peck and I were just incompatible. Catholicism had nothing to do with it. One of Mr. Peck's brothers is a priest in Porterville, California. And my conversion was considered necessary by the family for our marriage."

Once the divorce was granted, in any case, Bernice Peck took young Eldred to Los Angeles. There she enrolled him as a resident student in St. John's Military Academy and got herself a receptionist's job in an advertising agency.

Of these formative years when he lived in military school, saw his mother on some week ends, visited his father on others, Peck understandably dislikes to speak. His father failed in business, later went to work for a drug house. His mother, living with a girlfriend to keep expenses down, earned very little money. At best, Peck's life was insecure and lacking in day-to-day affection.

At St. John's he was "an above-average student who liked to play baseball." One sister remembers him as "a little on the shy and moody side, tall for his age, with a high forehead, and his hair plastered straight back."

While still at St. John's, Eldred (he never called himself Gregory until he was 24 and had decided on an acting career) learned that his mother was marrying again. Her new husband, Joseph Maysucci (now Maysuch), took the family back to La Jolla. Eldred was sent to San Diego High School, where he played baseball, sang in the glee club and showed no dramatic ability whatever.

After graduation he enrolled in San Diego Teachers College. For two years he took premedical courses — his father wanted him to become a doctor — then quit to drive an oil truck and earn a few dollars. When he was told one day that after 20 years with the oil company he might earn as much as $300 a month, he followed his mother's advice, quit the job and returned to school. This time he enrolled in the University of California at Berkeley, where he waited on table, lived in an off-campus boarding house, went out for crew (making second string) and fell in love with a coed.

"When it came to girls," remarks a former college mate, "Peck knew nothing. Today, despite his position, I understand he knows only slightly more."

SOCIAL SECURITY

by SIDNEY MARGOLIUS EXPERT IN FAMILY FINANCES

It's your money — but what do you know about it? Congress is considering further improvements in Social Security - but do you know what benefits you are entitled to now? This quiz is designed to tell you.

Social Security undoubtedly is the average family's biggest financial asset, with a potential value of as much as $40,000 to $50,000 to some people reading this. But Cornell University researchers found that in a representative industrial city, Elmira, N.Y., four out of five wage-carners had only a poor knowledge of Social Security, and the Government reports that some people entitled to benefits fail to apply for as long as 10 years after they become eligible -- losing out, in many cases, on badly needed payments.

So test yourself on the questions below. Have your wife try them, even your older children. For this is one quiz that really will win you a prize some day if you know all the answers.

On each question, check the answer you think is right. Correct answers are printed on next page.

ANSWERS

1 False. This is the most costly misunderstanding. Besides retirement benefits, Social Security makes monthly payments to the surviving widow and dependent children, or dependent parents, if a covered wage-earner dies.

- 2 False. You or your family must apply for payments.
- 3 True. Benefits are payable no matter how much savings or investment income you have. But there are limits on how much you can earn through employment.
- 4 True. A funeral reimbursement of up to $225 is payable to the spouse or, if there is none, to whoever paid the funeral expense.
- 5 $200 a month.
- 6 True. The length of coverage needed to be fully insured for most retirement and survivors' benefits depends on the wage-earner's birthdate, ranges from 1½ to 10-years of covered work. But a widow with children under 18 can get payments even if the wage-earner was only currently insured; that is, had six calendar quarters of coverage within the three years preceding death.
- 7 False. Forty quarters (10 years) is the most anyone needs to be fully insured, but the amount you get depends on your earnings.
- 8 False. You must earn Social Security through covered employment. Social Security is often confused with the Federal-State oldage assistance program, which does aid elderly people in real need.
- 9 Sometimes. Dependent parents 65 or over can get payments if there is no widow or child eligible for benefits.
- 10 False. Unemployment insurance is a separate program.
- 11 True.
- 12 Sometimes. A divorced wife is eligible for payments if she has a dependent child of the deceased wage-carner in her care and he had been contributing to her support. But she is not entitled to payments at 65 as is a wife. Children under 18 are eligible in any case.
- 13 False. Payments of monthly benefits can be made retroactively for only 12 months, and the lump-sum death benefit must be applied for within two years.
- 14 False. Social Security coverage is mandatory for self-employed persons except in a few non-covered professions, such as medicine.
- 15 False. Amended Federal income-tax forms can be filed at the nearest Internal Revenue office to secure credit for three years back.
- 16 Sometimes. Children are eligible for payments from a deceased mother's account even if the father is living, provided she had worked in a covered employment in six of the 13 calendar quarters before her death.
- 17 True. But self-employed people need to earn $400 in a year for Social Security credit.

  18 True.
- 19 Sometimes. A worker who reaches 72 can get payments even though he continues to work full time. Furthermore, an eligible beneficiary under 72 can earn as much as $2,080 a year and collect at least some benefits; even if he earns over $2,080 for the year, he can get payments for any month in which he earns

OUTBOARD MOTORS

Here's valuable new information on America's fastest-growing outdoor sport

by EDWARD D. FALES, JR.

Late this month the nation's newest craze
— outboard motors — hits fever pitch.
By Memorial Day, U. S. lakes, rivers and coastal waters will be humming with an incredible 5 million outboards. That means one family motor for every 12
automobiles.

Three or four seasons ago, an outboard meant a cranky, noisy put-put that turned the lakeside air blue with bedlam. Outboards were known vulgarly but generally as "stinkpots," and were avoided by all but the most avid fishing (or racing) fans.

Today's motors, costing $80 up, are vastly different: silky quiet, clean, easy to start. Many are frankly styled and painted to appeal to women. They no longer fight back when you try to start them, or shake your teeth out when you do get going.

Soundproofed, "whispering" motors became popular just last year. Today, along with relative silence, you can have:

Nearly twice as much power (30 to 44 hp) as was common five years ago.

Twin engines. Most boats built today are strengthened to handle two motors.

Gear shifts. Old models jumped like a jackrabbit when they were started. Your new one idles in neutral until you're ready for it.

Reverse gears.

Easy starting. You can even have pushbutton or ignition-key starters if you want to pay extra.

Built-in pumps. If it rained in your boat last night, your motor will pump the water out for you.

Remote control. You need no longer sit in the stern like a tail gunner to operate the engine. You sit up front with the family, start the motor there, steer with a wheel, shift gears, back up. Your gas lever looks like the knobbed "sticks" airplane pilots use.

Lift hoods. Replacing a sparkplug in some old motors was a problem. Today, you just snap the hood up to get at the works.

With this new luxury, boating has become the fastest-growing outdoor recreation in the U.S. (up 50 per cent in 10 years), and thousands of families have taken to the water for the first time. If you join them this summer, you'll discover an amazingly cheap, healthy way to have outdoor fun with your family. You don't have to buy a boat at first. Just buy a motor, tote it in your car and then rent a boat on any lake, river or bay you care to explore.

Even mothers who have never liked to fish will go along now.

Perhaps you already have a motor. Then you'll find it an advantage to do what many owners do now: buy a second. This gives you more power and speed, plus the same "twin-engined reliability" that planes have, in case one motor should quit. You can use two motors to get where you're going fast, then run on one motor for fishing, waterskiing or lazy cruising, and return home fast (or run away from a storm) on two motors, again.

But what kind of motor do you want? That depends on what kind of fun your family wants to have. It also depends on how much money you want to spend. Here are tips for motor shoppers:

Money: You can pick up a good used motor of medium power for $30 to $50.

New, a middle-sized (71/2-16 hp) job will cost you $200 to $360. Usually, motors can be financed over two years. When you're deciding how much to spend, figure how much you'll saye by vacationing on the water near home instead of taking a long trip. Your motor may pay for itself in a single vacation.

Kind of fun you want:

1) If you're just bored with sitting around the house, try inland fishing or puttering around in a small rowboat or canoe. For this a 1.7 hp motor ($80) or a 3 hp motor ($125-$150) is ideal.

2) For plowing around in a small rowboat at 8 or 9 mph, get a 5 to 7½ hp motor ($164-$250). Eight miles an hour in a rowboat may not sound fast—but you feel like you're really traveling.

3) For family "runabout" fun, use a motor of 7½ hp or more in a boat specially designed to plane on the surface. These can be rented at most lakes. A 10 hp motor that whisks along at 20 mph might cost $240 to $321.

4) For overnight, week-end or vacation cruising, 15 to 40 hp gets you there fast. You may not want all your power in one engine. Two 10s make a good combination if you want to spend the money ($240 to $321 each). A 15 hp job might cost $335; a 30 hp, $462.

5) For high-speed cruising, deepwater lake or ocean fishing, you'll want at least one 25 or 30 hp motor. A 10 hp "spare" is desirable. Many skippers now use boats strong enough for two 30 hp motors. A trip that takes 30 minutes with 10 horsepower can be clicked off in 7 minutes with 30 horsepower.

Buying a Boat

What about buying a boat? As with motors, your choice is limited only by your pocketbook. A used rowboat may cost you $25, a new one from $75 to $150. For $250 you can get a 14-foot, fast-planing runabout. A 16- to 21-foot family cruiser may run $450 to $2,400. One excellent 18-footer, tough enough for use even on the ocean, costs around $1,200. This is the "stripped" price; a toilet will cost $60 to $100 more, and incidentals another $150. Boats, like motors, can be financed.

How fast can you go? With a 30 hp motor, an 18-foot family cruiser will skim along at 24 mph. With two engines, it will hit 30 mph.

Do you have to live on the water? No. Sales of motors and boats are booming in desert-dry Phoenix, Ariz. Owners drive to lakes 100 miles away to use them.

Where can you go? There are thousands of lakes and rivers, and thousands of miles of bays, sounds and inlets along the seaboard and the Great Lakes. Then there's Canada, which contains half the world's fresh-water lakes. Some inland lakes have hundreds of miles of shoreline to explore. Sample: newly-opened Bull Shoals Lake in the Ozarks. Its shoreline measures 1,050 miles.

Suppose you want to buy a boat of your own and take it along? Then buy or rent a trailer. Cost: $80 to $200. The new models are dressy enough to put behind the classiest car, roll smoothly, can be pulled at reasonable speed.

What does it cost to run an outboard? A 3 hp motor holds .7 gallons of gas and oil. (Practically all outboards run on regular or marine gas mixed with a little oil.) It will hum along for four hours for $1. A 15 hp cruising motor will run three hours on six gallons of gas.

How much maintenance does an outboard need? Practically none. You don't have to be a mechanic: many small boys keep their own motors in excellent condition by checking (or having them checked) once or twice a season. Wash and polish yours now and then. Lubricate it and clean the sparkplugs. Once a year, usually as cold weather begins, your motor should be "serviced." This costs about $7.50 unless you do it yourself. Once a year, you may want to screw in new sparkplugs. Small engines have only one, medium engines two, a few big models four.

What choice of engines do you have?

This year there are about 105 models, and 19 or 20 makers.

Do you need boating experience? No. But have an experienced friend give you pointers and go along on your first couple of rides. Read a good boat manual. There are tricks to boating just as there are to driving a car.

Do you have to worry about getting "wrecked" or sunk? No. A boat, well-handled, is as safe as your home. Now and then your propeller may hit bottom. That's not dangerous. Most motors have "shear pins." These are little metal pins that snap when the propeller hits something, thus keeping the propeller from breaking. When this happens, you just paddle to deeper water, slip in another pin and go on.

When a Storm Comes

What about storms? Avoid them. Today's boats are tough, reliable, safe. But don't play with thunderstorms. Get ashore fast when dark clouds appear, even though they may seem far away.

Any other cautions? Yes. Don't drop your motor overboard. Sound silly? It happens. Learn the right way to attach motor to boat; once it's on, use a safety chain. Carry one life cushion (or jacket) for each person. Don't stand up, and don't allow hot-rodding.

What about "boat-camping"? Thousands of families are learning to do it. You can tie your boat to a tree, and tent ashore, or put up a "boat tent" in your boat. And many boats, of course, have cabins big enough for two adults and a child. You can rent camping equipment, but most outboard skippers buy theirs.

The only costs of a boat-camping vacation are for food, a few dollars for gas and some spending money. It's just about the cheapest vacation you can find. And it's fun!

Strawberry-Rhubarb Jam

Catch the sun-ripe flavor of fresh strawberries and rosy rhubarb in delicate jam of your own making

All the hard work and uncertainty of making jam or jelly disappeared long ago when natural fruit pectin was put on the market in easy-to-use liquid or powdered form. There's no more long boiling or "jelly test." And now, with new self-sealing half-pint jars, two more steps are climinated: no need to stir the finished jam for five minutes to prevent floating fruit, nor to melt and pour paraffin. Today, making jam is one of the greatest joys of accomplishment the kitchen offers. And this Strawberry-Rhubarb Jam is a wonderful kind to try.

STRAWBERRY-RHUBARB JAM

by BETH MERRIMAN PARADE FOOD EDITOR

- 1 lb. rhubarb
- 1 qt. ripe strawberries
- 1/2 bottle liquid fruit

Slice rhubarb. (Do not peel.) Chop or crush strawberries. Combine fruits; measure 4 cups into large saucepan or kettle. Add sugar; mix well. Place over high heat; bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard Exactly one minute. Remove from heat; stir in fruit pectin. Ladfe quickly into hot sterilized self-sealing half-pint jars, leaving about 14" head space. Remove lids from hot water; place on jars, When all jars are filled, screw bands tight. Let stand 30 minutes; shake each jar gently to distribute fruit through sirup. Makes about six half-pint jars.

KITCHEN HINT:

When you use liquid or powdered fruit pectin, you must follow timing directions to the second for perfect results.

not peel rhubarb; cut stalks into half-inch slices.

STRAWBERRIES should be washed in ice-cold water before hulling. Chop or crush. Cover jar lids and bands with hot water and bring to a boil.

BEFORE cooking jam, remove jars and lids from water and drain. After jars are sealed, let stand 30 minutes. Then shake each jar gently.

UP AT 13

by JOHN DEVANEY

LINDENHURST, N.Y. The grim fireballer at left is Bobby Anderson, a shy, soft-spoken boy who's got a problem no teen-age expert has ever been asked to solve: at 13, he's a has-been.

Apple-cheeked Bobby has been batted out of the pitcher's box by Father Time. In Little League games here last summer, Bobby's fast ball blurred by the hitters, his bat smacked the ball at a .360 clip. But this February he became 13 -- "Boy, that was one birthday, I didn't feel like celebrating" - and now he's too old for the Little League season that started this month.

To Bobby ("He lives for baseball," says his mother) and hundreds of thousands of other graduating Little Leaguers, that's much like having the world come to an end. Reason: In about three of every four communities with Little League baseball, there's nothing else in the way of a baseball program for kids below 16.

Made eager to play baseball by the Little League, boys like seventh-grader Bobby face an exasperating wait of three or four years before they can try out for high-school or American Legion téams. Yet there's nothing the Little League can do about it. Says Edward Kienle, a physical-education teacher in the schools here and head of the local Little League: "Our diamonds are two-thirds the size of a regulation field. That's fine for boys 8 to 12, our age limits, but keeping a boy over 12 on such a small field might hamper his development, besides not being fair to the smaller boys."

'There's not much

off the bases. Two leagues for kids hetween 13 and 15 have sprung up since the Little League program swept the country after the war. One, the PONY ("Protect Our Nation's Youth") League, uses a diamond about three-quarters the size of a regulation field, takes boys 13 and 14. The Babe Ruth League plays on a regular-size diamond, is for boys 13, 14 and 15.

But of the 500,000 boys now in the Little Leagues, only about 150,000 will get a chance to play in a Babe Ruth or PONY League. There are fewer such leagues because of a crying shortage of adults to set up and run the leagues in their communities. Explains Kienle: "It's very difficult to get people willing to volunteer their time, especially since most of the adults who would be willing are already tied up in Little League work."

Unless a Babe Ruth or PONY League can be formed here in the next few weeks—and that's just a slim possibility—Bobby Anderson will spend much of this summer watching instead of playing.

"A lot of people," he says, "can't understand why us kids just don't choose up sides and play a game in a lot by ourselves—like they say they did when they were kids. But there's not much fun for us in sandlot games after playing in the Little League. It's not because we won't have uniforms either. In the Little League, if there was a close decision, the ump said safe or out and that was the end of it. But when the kids play among themselves, there's always arguments and pretty soon you get tired of arguing and quit.

"There's another thing, too. In the sandlot games you can't learn much from the other kids, but in the Little League you know you're getting taught right."

One of Bobby's friends, Frank Romanelli, also 13, puts it this way: "The Little League games gave you something to look forward to. At night, when we didn't have anything to do, it was fun just sitting around talking about the games."

Catherine and Stanley Anderson find it hard to imagine their oldest son (they have three other children) without baseball games. "Sports — baseball, basketball and football — are Bobby's only hobbies," says Mrs. Anderson. "He's on the honor roll at school, but his teachers say he'd get higher marks if he thought less about baseball. He talks baseball morning, noon and night. His father's a Giant fan, while Bobby's for the Dodgers. Every night at the dinner table there's a battle."

Bobby will play a few games this summer in a league run by the Youth Council, a Lindenhurst group that governs summer recreation. "The only trouble," says Kienle, "is that we don't have enough adults to act as managers and umpires. As a result, the games just don't have the same interest for the kids as the Little League and not near as many show up."

With the shortage of adults ("Too many parents are too busy making money to give time to their kids," growls one Little League official here), Kienle has had his hands full operating the Little League. never mind starting a league for older kids. All told, he needs from 70 to 75 adults to supervise the 320 Little Leaguers; each man gives up at least two or three evenings a week, and often Saturdays as well.

One man, though, thinks he may have a solution — letting older high-school boys serve as umpires, thus freeing adults for managing the teams and running the league.

"My son turned 13 this year," says Arthur Ryan, 45, a Little League volunteer. "Like Bobby, he's the kind you can't get into the house to eat because 'I'm up next inning.' I talked to a number of fathers whose sons were also too old for the Little League and finally got 10 who offered to help. We got information on how to set up a Babe Ruth League from some people who were running one in another part of Long Island. Then we contacted merchants and service clubs, who put up the money for equipment."

As plans now stand, Ryan hopes to start his six-team Babe Ruth League—using older teenagers as umpires—by the middle of this summer.

If Ryan is successful, Bobby and dozens of other boys here will be has-beens no longer. (The hope that he'll play again this summer delights Mrs. Anderson: "My husband and I have gone to see nearly every Little League game that Bobby's been in.") But Ryan believes that more than baseball is involved. "Being kept active in the summer is important for an energetic teenager," he says. "Saying a boy is washed up at 13 may sound strange, but it's our washed-up teenagers — the ones we've left with nothing to do — who become delinquents."

How you can help 'washed-up' kids

SURPRISED Bobby is told by Ryan (l.) and Kienle that Ruth League may start.

As Arthur Ryan and Ed Kienle (left) are proving in Lindenhurst, there's no reason why any boy should be deprived of the chance to play baseball. To set up a Babe Ruth League, you must have four to six teams, with 15 players on each team; the PONY League allows four to eight teams, with 16 players on each. For complete information, write to:

TEEN-AGE TOPICS

There are no cut-and-dried rules for the handling of difficult social situations, but the truth generally is better than a "white lie" --- although courtesy still demands that we do everything we can to save the feelings of others. Here are some recent letters on various topics:

Q. I am 15, and have been smoking for a year ... without permission. My mother is by no means strict or ald-fashioned, but there are some things she has forbidden me to do, and smoking is one of them. I hate to sneak cigarettes behind her back, but 1 know she would be mad if I told her. I need your help badly. -- M.J., San Diego, Calif.

A. I suggest that you tell your mother the truth. Say that you are sorry you have been smoking without her permission; tell her frankly that you are going to continue to smoke, but don't want to be sneaky about it. Perhaps your mother, loving and kind as she is, will understand that if she does not take so firm a stand, then smoking may not seem so important to you, after all.

Q. A relative of ours uses our phone to make a number of long-distance telephone calls, and has never offered to pay us for them. How can we refuse further: telephone privileges? — F.B., Somerville,

A. Your family should be frank and tell this relative that the telephone bills have been very heavy lately and ask if he could make a note of any longdistance calls that he places and ask the operator for the charges. If he doesn't take the hint and pay you for his calls, write him a note after he leaves, stating the amount that he owes on the bill.

Q. A girl in my class had a pajama party last month. I was invited, but my guardian would not let me go. Both boys and girls attended the party. Was this right? — D.J., Fairfield, Conn.

A. No. I think this was a tasteless kind of party for parents to permit.

Q. I am a boy of 13. is it all right to write a girl pen pai as often as I want? — R.R., Quemado, N.M.

A. Yes, the boy may take the initiative in these things. However, the girl may feel he is overdoing it if he sends too many letters.

Q. I am a girl of 14 and go with a boy, 17, who is now in the Navy. My parents will not allow me to go out with him, although I am allowed to go out with other boys they have met. My pastor likes this boy. How can I make my parents understand he's a nice boy? — E.D., Long Beach, Calif.

A. From your letter, I gather that your parents and the boy have not met. Boys always should meet the parents of the girls they take out. Ask this boy to call on you at home; after meeting him, perhaps your parents will agree with your pastor.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS will be answered as space permits. (Miss Yanderbilt cannot answer letters personally.)

by DR. GEORGE S. STEVENSON MEDICAL CONSULTANT, NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR MENTAL HEALTH and HARRY MILT

Do you feel tense, worried, anxious, worn out most of the time? Do minor problems throw you into a tailspin? Do you find it difficult to get along with people? Do you go around with a chip on your shoulder? Do the small daily pleasures of life fail to satisfy you?

If you answer "No" to all or most of these questions, you're lucky. And you might almost consider yourself an exception; because millions of Americans are subject to frequent attacks of tension and anxiety (we used to call it "nerves") - and hundreds of thousands are almost never free of this distressing condition.

Today might be called the era of "no peace of mind." Many people's tempers are short, their anxieties great, their lives charged with ever-increasing tension. For many, the simple pleasures of life are inadequate, and there is a drive for the thrilling, the unusual, the dangerous. Instead of contentment, many of us are filled with feelings of fear and suspicion, of being trapped, cheated, deprived - mistrustful of ourselves, mistrustful of others.

What can we do about it?

Often I have heard people say, "If only there were a peace-of-mind pill!" Unfortunately, there is no such pill. But there are many things - practical things --- which you can do to gain relief from a tortured, anxiety-ridden state of mind.

Here are 12 suggestions:

1 When something worries you, talk it out. Don't bottle it up. Confide your worry to some level-headed person you trust - your husband or wife, a good friend, your minister. Talking it out helps relieve the strain, lets you see your worry in a clearer light.

- 2 Anger as a general way of behavior will most likely leave you feeling foolishand sorry. If your anger is provoked and you feel like lashing out at someone, try holding off for a while - let it wait until tomorrow. Meanwhile, do something constructive with your anger-pitch into some physical activity like carpentry, gardening or cleaning out the garage. Or you might even take a long walk. Working the anger out will leave you better prepared to handle real problems intelligently.
- 3 If you quarrel frequently because you feel defiant, remember: That's the way frustrated children behave. Stand your ground on what you are sure is right, but consider that you may be wrong. Even if you are dead right, it's easier on your system to give in once in a while. If you yield, others will, too. The result is relief from tension, a feeling of achievement.
- 4 If you worry about yourself all the time, try doing something for somebody else. You'll find this will take the steam out of your own worries and give you a feeling of satisfaction.
- 5 For people under tension, an ordinary work load may seem unbearable. But that is only a temporary condition. You can work your way out of it by taking a few of the urgent tasks and pitching into them, setting aside the rest for a time. Once in the swing of things, you'll find it wasn't such a "horrible mess" after all. The remaining tasks will go more easily. If you can't set some aside, maybe you are tackling too much.

Do you drive yourself or feel frustrated?

6 Some people worry constantly because they think they are not achieving enough. They seek perfection in everything - which is an invitation to failure. If you are such a person, put your major effort into those things you do well. Do everything else to the best of your ability. Give yourself a pat on the back for things well done, but don't try to break records in everything you do.

7 Some people feel frustrated or disappointed when another person does not "measure up." The "other person" may be one you are trying to fit into a preconceived pattern. or trying to make over to suit yourself. Remember, each person has his own virtues, shortcomings, values - and the right to develop as an individual. People who feel let down by the shortcomings (real or imagined) of others are really let down about themselves. If you are tolerant of your own shortcomings, you're likely to feel tolerant about others'.

When things go wrong, tense people often fly into tantrums. A more productive reaction is to recognize that things can't go well all the time - that disappointment and failure are part of life. It is much healthier to accept them and work on from there than to fly apart.

9 Sometimes, when things go wrong, it helps to escape for a while, to lose yourself in a movie, a book or a game. Making yourself "stand there and suffer" is a form of selfpunishment as well as punishment of others. It is realistic and healthy to want to escape pain, so escape - but be prepared to come back and deal with the difficulty when you are more composed.

How Do You See Yourself?

10 Many of us often feel that we are being "left out," slighted, rejected. Often we just imagine that, when in reality, it is we who are deprecating ourselves. Instead of withdrawing, it is much healthier and more practical to continue to "make yourself available," to make some of the overtures, instead of always waiting to be asked.

The opposite reaction to withdrawal is to push yourself forward on every occasion. This often is misinterpreted and may lead to real rejection. There is a middle ground between "withdrawal" and "pushing," Try it.

11 Many people drive themselves so hard that they have little time for recreation, an essential for good physical and mental health. Thus driven, they may find it hard to make themselves take time out. For such people, a set schedule definite hours during which they will not work but will engage in recreation - is helpful. In general, it is desirable to have a hobby which is absorbing and provides pleasure.

12 Those under emotional tension often feel they "have to get there first" --- to edge out the other person, no matterhow insignificant the goal. If enough of us feel this way (and many of us do), everything becomes a mad race. There can be no peace of mind, only fear, suspicion and hostility, in this kind of atmosphere. But the urge to edge out the other fellow can be controlled. Destructive competition is contagious, but so is cooperation. When you give the other fellow a break, you make things easier for yourself. If he no longer feels that you are a threat to him, he will stop being a threat to you.

One final point: Each of us is responsible for the other person's peace of mind. Troubled people are people in trouble. Many of the harmful things they do arise from fear, worry, emotional immaturity. In a troubled world, the least we can do for each other is to help with sympathy and understanding.

WHEN THE DOCTOR SAYS,

said,"Cut down on salt," you know how flat and insipid unsalted foods can be. Millions of Americans are discovering that a few drops of fresh lemon juice (itself virtually salt-free) transform tasteless, unsalted foods into delicious, appetizing ones. The taste of salt is replaced by the wonderful sharp tang and aromatic flavor of fresh lemons.

Overweight? Many reducing diets recommend cutting down on salt. Seasoning with fresh lemon instead of salt not only helps you shed pounds faster, but a squeeze of tangy, fresh lemon sparks lowcalorie foods. Ask your doctor.

These eight national organizations raised over million in 1954. Of this amount, 47 per cent went to the Infantile Paralysis Foundation. During that year only 38,714 new cases were reported.

It is pointed out that the cost of raising funds for polio is more than it spends on research. But because it has been so well publicized it has no trouble in getting volunteer workers. In St. Louis in 1954 40,000 volunteers turned out for the drive. Only 7,000 could be recruited for the Heart drive.

These eight organizations are but a few of those seeking money by mail or personal solicitation. No sooner is a Community Chest drive over than another drive starts. It is apparent the system is breaking down because of the overburdening of workers. Many work in several drives a year. At least one solicitation, of one kind or another, is going on in this city each week.

In Southern California the problem is being solved for many agencies by the AID program. Under that program all agencies willing to cooperate are included in the AID program. It operates in stores and factories. Workers are asked to sign up for payroll deduction of one-half of 1 per cent of their wages or salaries. When they sign up deductions are made until the worker caks to have it discontinued. The worker is given a receipt and window sticker for his home. All agencies participating agree not to make solicitations in the homes or place of work of the person contributing.

Most of the national agencies are a part of AID. They have found they get more money from the groups than they did under separate drives—and the cost is about half what it costs for separate drives. Polio is the only important national agency refusing to cooperate.

The funds collected are distributed to agencies by the AID board of directors made up of representatives of workers, employers and the public.

It is apparent AID or some such organization is the only answer to the terrible wastefulness of the multiple drives. All unions and business organizations should join in making such an organization successful. By no other means can these health organizations hope to be properly financed in the future.—L.A.C.

LOW PRICE POLICY NOW IN EFFECT SAVES WEARERS MONEY ON DENTAL PLATES

Some time ago Dr. Raymond announced a big savings offer and long-term easy-to-get credit plan of no money down, 21 months to pay. The response has been ever increasing until now Dr. Raymond announces a continuation of this big offer

"I find in this postwar period that people are greatly concerned with prices and value received, especially until further notice. those in the middle and lower income brackets," Dr. Raymond stated. "Therefore, in order to reach the greater mass of people. I am keeping my prices low and saving plate-wearers money. This is my policy in a nuishell, keep prices down and operate on a large volume." Dr. Raymond further stated, "the cost is so low on dental plates regardless of type or style selected. Your choice of teeth and materials are offered in a selection of gold or steel partials and full upper and lower dentures." The doctor suggested that all those in need of dental plates or removable bridgework or partials of any kind should come in now and see the samples of the newest

Revamped struction program. Aid Policy in View

WASHINGTON (A) - A revolutionary shift in United States foreign aid policy is foreshadowed by studies now being made in key agencies of the Eisenhower administration under prodding from the White House,

The switch, if carried through as now indicated, will mean s eduction in the military forces of some Allied countries, particularly on the frontiers of the ree world in Asia.

OFFICIALS SAY their thinkng tentatively indicates such reductions would be justified or wo grounds:

First, the real accurity of all Free World countries in the atomic age rests mostly on the protection of the United States nuclear striking power.

Second, the dangers of even small wars have been diminished by Russia's new policy of presenting a more friendly face to the non-Communist world,

THE IMPLUSE behind the new look at foreign aid policy lles in large part, however, in the field of cost, There is evidence that Congress and the country are becoming increasingly reluctant to vote the funds necessary to do the job the administration thinks necessary. The program now before Congress had a rough time this week at the hands of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the administration is being compelled to retreat from some of its posi-

For example, President Eisenlower and Secretary of State Dulles have laid heavy emphasis on a need for new authority this year to commit the United States to long term foreign aid spending on specific projects.

THE HOUSE committee enocked out that provision and substituted a general statement of intent to carry on foreign aid which gives no real new power to the president. The administration had decided, this reporter vas informed, not to make a further fight for the long-range pro-

islon in the Hou The problem of costs is simply defined. Eisenhower has stated that foreign aid spending should continue at about the same level -between four and five billion dollars-for a good many years. At the same time his principal advisors on cold war strategy are generally agreed that the United States must spend considerably more in the next few years than it has in the last six on economic assistance, especially to Asian countries.

Hoover Praises Sen. Kennedy's Reform Drive

WASHINGTON (UP) - Former President Herbert Hoover Saturday commended Sen. John F. Cennedy (D-Mass) and his Senate subcommittee on government reorganization for "carrying the ball" on government reforms. The subcommittee is considering many bills suggested by the bipartisan Citizens : Committee for the Hoover Report, of which Mr. Hoover is honorary chairman. The subcommittee aiready has reported five bills favorably and two have passed the Senate on records management and handling of non-military surplus property. "I just wish to express my appreciation for the way you have been carrying the ball," Mr. Hoover wrote Kennedy. "We may not always agree on secondary matters but that you are keeping the necessity of reform and economy before Congress and the public is the main thing."

More Salk Shots Released by U.S.

penses as a dentist if I am interested first in giving service," Dr. Campbell said. "I have found through trial and error that every one of my offices must give a lot of credit to be prosperous. In the past, when one of my offi-ces curtailed credit, this office became less prosperous. People are glad to pay for good service when you are thinking of them before the money. My records prove that insisting on immediate cash, even in small amounts, hurts my dental practice. No money down helps my dental practice."

Oregon Vote Adds Interest to June 5 California Primary

ONE OF THE QUESTION MARKS in the California presidential preference is what the state's Eisenhower Democrats intend to do in the primary June 5, when they'll find only the names of Estes Kefauver and Adlal Stevenson on their party ballot. Oregon voters may have given a hint as to what to expect. Many Democrats there just didn't fill in the part of the ballot pertaining to presidential preference.

Of course, the Democratic campaign in Oregon was a write-in affair. No names of presidential candidates appeared on the Democratic ballot. Eisenhower's name did appear on the GOP ballot. But there are two possible balancing factors: Republicans are outnumbered in the Oregon registration lists, and there was no warm contest such as that on the Democratic side,

WHATEVER the analysis, President Eisenhower got a vote far larger than the combined vote of Kefauver and Stevenson. It was another confirmation of the President's popularity, which has now been evidenced in primaries on both coasts and in the midwest.

A most notable event of the Oregon primary was the enthusiastic vote for Vice President Nixon, His name was not on the ballot, and he had not campaigned, so the reaction could have been nothing but spontaneous, Oregon Republicans went out of their way to indicate that they, like Republicans voting in previous primaries, resent the smear campaign against the Vice President.

On the Democratic side, Adlai Stevenson gave Estes Kefauver a sound trouncing. While it was not perhaps a turning-point victory in Stevenson's struggle for a comeback from previous painful losses, it helped a lot. Just what the influence, if any, on California voters might be is hard to say-though it has appeared that sentiment among California Democrats swings back and forth between the two men, depending on their showing else-

FORMER SECRETARY of the Interior Douglas Mc-Kay, who once held the post of governor in Oregon, demonstrated that he still has a following in the home state. He shouldered aside Phil Hitchcock to take the Republican senatorial nomination by a comfortable margin, while Sen. Wayne Morse was pilling up an overwhelming vote in the Democratic race in which he had but token resistance.

Sen. Morse is the man who was originally elected as a Republican, became an Independent, and finally moved over into the Democratic party. Oregon Republicans have never forgiven him and have waited for 1956 to plow him under. With Douglas McKay they have a good chance of doing just that to Morse, but the returns suggest it is going to be a close one in the final. In any event, McKay Republicans and Hitchcock Republicans have always been agreed on one principal point-whatever their own intra-party differences, the big target is Morse, and they will join hands in the effort to defeat

THE OREGON PRIMARY was one of the last of the series of primaries which are supposed to give some indication of popular sentiment on presidential candidates.

Elsenhower and Nixon have clearly been the Republlean choices, with no other GOP hopefuls emerging or making serious challenge. The pendulum in the Democratic campaigns has swung somewhat cratically. What happened in Oregon only served to heighten interest in the Florida and Callfornia primaries, which can be much more decisive for the political fortunes of "Adlai" and "Keef."

(R., Wis.)

THE PRESIDENT, to borrow a phrase from Sen. Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, is "fuil of spizzerinctum." Sen. Wiley explained to puzzled newsmen that "spizzerinctum" vas coined by a banker in his home town of Chippewa Falls to describe someone full of pep and vitality, Way back when, I had heard the word used by former Gov.

Kim Sigler of Michigan when he promised "to put spizzerinctum into the Republican party." But now comes the editor of the Portland Oregonian to remind me that Sen. Wiley may have committed a blunder, just as Kim Sigler blundered in the Michigan gubernatorial campaign

He points out there is no evidence to prove that the word, used for more than a century, originated in Chippewa Falls or that it describes a person full of energy and ambition.

When Michigan's Kim Sigler told reporters that "spizzerinctum" means "the old get-up-and-go," the nasty Democrats countered by saying that "spizzerinctum" also meant "tawdry adornment . . . as on a building; gim-crackery."

Wisconsin Democrats will be sure to bring this less favorable interpretation to the attention of the "Forward" state voters when Sen. Wiley begins his campaign for re-election.

BUT THIS IS NOT the time to argue over definitions. The President's medical checkup resulted in a most favorable report that was not only pleasing to his staff but re-assuring to Whatever "spizzerinctum" may mean, it's the Sen. Wiley version that we hope Ike will continue to be full of.

By now, though, the poor little fellow doing the measuring has had to get a longer ladder. But one thing we didn't have in those compromise of 1850.

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Party platform writers should be spared one slight chore this year—that of fashloning fresh pledges of statchood for Hawali and Alaska.

The old 1952 promises of "immediate statchood" will do just as well, for neither Democrats nor Republicans expect to redeem their pledges before Congress adjourns, according to a survey by Congressional Quarterly.

MEANWHILE, Alaska is taking matters into its own hands. On April 24 the territory's voters not only endorsed a draft state constitution, but approved a plan to elect two Senators and one Representative next October 9. If history repeats itself, these officials will arrive in Washington next January and demand in vain to be seated as members of Congress. They will then launch a high-pressure campaign to push a statehood bill through both chambers.

Almost 100 years have passed since a prospective state picked its Congressional delegation before being admitted to the Union. All told, six states-to-be have done so, the first being Tennessee in 1796. Others were Michigan (1835), Iowa (1846), California (1849), Oregon (1858) and Kansas (1859). In all cases, the states were admitted within two years of the premature elec-

In May, 1796, after the House had voted to admit Tennessee but the Senate had refused to concur, Senators-elect William Blount and William Cocke claimed their seats. But the Senate refused to recognize them and voted instead, 12 to 11, that they "be received as spectators, and that chairs be provided for that purpose," the other candidate. As the day of reckoning approaches, it may be the candidates and their aids will find it difficult to keep to this line.

IT IS HARD TO SEE how they can avoid, right to the end, discussion of the main issue of the contest. And it is certainly a question as to whether their present policy is serving the best interests of California Democrats who have to make an important decision June 5 and need to know more than just that Stevenson and Kefauver agree that the Republican Party, Eisenhower, Nixon and some others are just terrible,

In the U. S. Senatorial race on the Democratic side, State Sen. Richard Richards has been following about the same policy as that of the presidential candidates. Richards has been pounding at the Republicans, but he has studiously ignored Sam Yorty, the other Democrat who is fighting for the Senatorial nomination.

Yorty doesn't go for that type of pale campaigning. He has been lambasting Richards and has been trying to draw the State Senator out into a sparring match. Yorty wants to dehate Richards face to face here and there "to give Democrats a chance to make up their minds which of us they'd rather have representing the party in the general election."

Bitter, mud-slinging campaigning is not desirable. But certainly the public interest will be whetted, the turnout for the election will be larger, and the public will be better informed, if competing candidates have the courage to compare their qualifications and platforms in straightforward language, If the present pace continues, there's small chance of getting a majority of the voters to the polls any more about it.

Probably the biggest unplumbed paradox in our national life today is government subsidy, and where it is taking us. Many a thinking farmer feels a loss of individualism and self-respect as he sees his life vocation being put on the auction block to win an election. He has an ominous premonition that his destination is a loss of his freedom and eventually the "Welfare State."

Markind might well learn a lesson here from the animal kingdom. Some of them have had communistic or welfare state systems for millenniums. Dr. Horace W. Stunkard a distinguished biologist at New York University, made this observation some months ago in an article in the magazine Science. He sums the results of these systems in one word-"degenercy." Trading freedom for security, such animals have lost something far more precious than they gained.

Dr. Stunkard puts it this way: "Independence, with free-dom to explore new vistas, has been the essential condition of progress." He adds that "the welfare state - security with contingent subjection, offers an easy way of life, but it is a slippery path, which by a slow gradual process leads to loss of integrity, greater bondage, and eventual degradation."

It may not seem exactly fitting to press an uncomplimentary comparison of men to animals, but I incline with Dr. Stunkard to believe that there is a lesson here for mankind. Individual man has the in-, allenable right to freedom and self government. This is essential to his progress, and can be surrendered to a paternal state only at the risk where the candidates stand, we should check the backers. Walter Reuther, the gent who gave the citizens of India a scathing denunciation of American policy, is a member of that organization, Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt is the honorary chairman of the ADA.

As for the candidates favored by the ADA, poor Adlal without a doubt the most handleapped. He is forced to come from that high altitude of a cross between self-satisfaction and intellectual superiority in order to appear social to the masses of the people. He doesn't like it but after all socialism calls for a leveling of the classes and the masses.

AVERELL Harrimen, as Mr. Truman will tell you, is the best bet for he can take orders. He was a follower of FDR and continued to be a "Yes-man" with Truman. The ADA would really love him.

Estes Kefauver, a country boy with city instincts. A would-be reformer—if he knew what to reform. Like Averell would follow orders to a point, When that point was reached he would kick over the traces. A little too hard-headed for the ADA masters, still he really doesn't have enough on the ball.

HOT WEATHER SEASON HERE

Beware Poisoning at Potluck Affairs

Potluck can be unlucky in the form of food poisoning, now that the hot weather season is here. This warning was issued Saturday by Dr. I. D. Litwack, city health officer, who pointed out that the danger can be reduced greatly by observance of simple precautions.

He emphasized these seven rules for safe food: 1. Keep cold foods cold and hot foods hot. Don't let foods stand at room temperature.

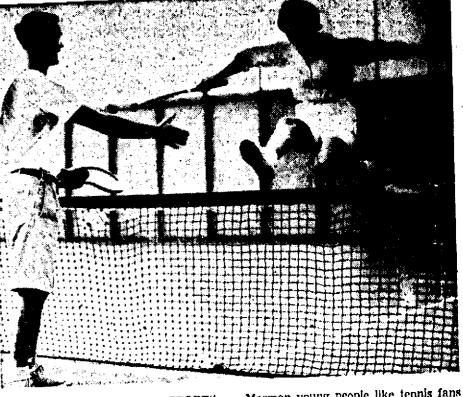

2. Keep hands clean and touch food with hands as little as

. 3. Don't let anyone with a skin infection or a cold handle possible.

4. Keep kitchens, dining rooms or food sale booths free from flies and other disease spreaders. 5. Protect foods from sneezes, handling and dust. 6. Be sure poisons are well labeled and kept far away from the place where food is prepared.

7. Wash dishes, glasses and silver by methods recommended by the Health Dept. Use paper service when possible. Anyone planning to serve food to a large crowd is invited to inquire at the department for advice from a sanitarian. Any serving of food to large groups by persons not skilled

In that activity is likely to be more or less dangerous, depending on the degree of care taken, Dr. Litwack noted. He pointed out that family meals can be prepared and served promptly, which isn't always the case with potluck dinners and similar events.

EMORIAL DAY is coming up, and presently the big campaign will start to combat the splurge of careless driving that will strew the highways with dead and injured.

And that brings from H. L. Jackson of Los Alamitos a most appropriate slogan for Memor-

"Don't honor the dead by joining them, DRIVE SAFELY!"

A LONG BEACH woman, who has just started working through her thirties, was speak-

"You know, I used to think of 40 as pretty aged. But now it doesn't seem that way at all. In fact, the closer I get to it, the younger it seems."

AND ROY MCMILLAN approached a prominent octogenarian on the street here. How do you keep so hale and your age?" he asked.

"My age," said the whitehaired gentleman. "Why I just don't think about my age."

THE DEATH of prominent Richard Dilday as a result of an explosion of a patie barbecue directs attention to this little-recognized hazard. Dilday had used inflammable fluid to soak charcoal in the barbecue, a common practice.

Deputy Fire Chief William A. Head says that this method is dangerous, because explosive fumes rise from the soaked material. People should figure out safer ways to start the stubborn charcoal burning, he avers.

There's an electrical charcoal starter on the market now. It may be slower than kerosene, alcohol, gasoline, lighter fluid, etc. but it is a lot safer.

Hap Park, an old hand at starting barbecue fires, tells mehe has good luck using the pasteboard from old milk containers. He cuts this material into strips and puts it in the bottom of the barbecue, piling the charcoal loosely on top until it gets going.

There have been few accidents here from barbecue fire starting, but the Dilday incident showed that a lot of us have been literally playing with DERHAPS you've wondered, as I have, just what is the purpose of the broad strips of metal installed flush with the pavement near some Long Beach intersections.

These are traffic detectors. Their function is to record when Ojeda was heading for relatives traffic moves up to an intersection, and to influence the traffic signal there to do its job properly to accommodate said traffic.

In some cases, according to City Traffic Engineer Bob Dier, the traffic actually accuates the signal, which would otherwise remain on the red for that street. Other detectors electronically memorize the amount of traffic passing over and shorten or lengthen the signal Interval.

Generally, the detectors are placed at intersections where the traffic runs heavily on one artery and there is only occasional need to interrupt it to let cars in from an intersecting atrect. There are several detectors at such intersections along Pacific Coast Hwy., for instance.

USUALLY at such intersections there are buttons for the use of pedestrians, and Dier said he is concerned that so few pedestrians use these.

The buttons, says Dier, have the effect of holding the green signal for a longer interval to give a pedestrian a chance to walk across the street.

Where the signal functions for motor traffic only, it may not hold the green long enough for foot travelers.

But many people, seeing the light turn green, regard it as unnecessary to push the button. Dier says he's considering setting out signs that more clearly explain the purpose of the

"Don't take my nightgown — that's all I've got left!" cried the lady from Wyoming.

That was her good-humored reaction to the California plant quarantine inspector rummaging through rear-seat parcels on the spoor of apple maggets, plum cerculio or European corn borer.

Her mock-serious declaration of bankruptcy also illustrated a moment of truth; thousands are hocking house and hearth to move here.

3. H. BAXTER & CO., 3450 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles S. Ephil.

It takes a heap o' livin' to know the good points and drawbacks in a home. Folks who've owned homes before know what to look for. Experience has shown them that a home is more than four walls and a roof. They've found how accumulated furniture and a growing family can make a home that once seemed adequate-too small, too soon.

They've discovered, too, how much easier it is to maintain a home that has been quality built-to last!

Practical experience is why so many second-home owners now live in KATELLA PARK. For here there is more room for living ... greater convenience...ensier accessibility to and from all sections of Greater Los Angeles ... and a sounder investment in a community of fine homes on custom sized lots on gracefully curving tree-lined streets that assures a high resale value in the future.

Visit Katella Park today and choose your home of tomorrow. Immediate occupancy if you hurry.

In a spirit of casual informality, typical of a friendly private club, the seventh annual party for wives of University Club members will be order of the day next Wednesday, Breaking from its usual pattern, this year's affair will be a coffee hour in place of a tea as in former years and will be from 10 to 11:30 a. m. in the University Club's new quarters on the ocean bluff

Mrs. J. Richard Shelley, wife of this year's club president, will be the hostess in the tradition of the affair. By ILKA CHASE

First Nighters Share Alohas

As romantic a graduation as anyone could imagine took place Saturday night beneath Japanese lanterns, fans and fragrant, satiny gardenias. A social graduation rather than scholastic, it marked that period when high school senior members of First Nighters trade their affiliation for a cap and gown to make way for younger high school members of the popular dance group.

First Nighters was organized 11 years ago to give high school young people the opportunity to enjoy dinner dances in a sultable environment heretofore possible only for adults, The function last n'ght took place in the Cavatter Room of

was Mrs. Sidney Extey, efficiently aided by patrons and patronesses, Messra, and Mmes. William II, Clemo, Lauren Conley, John Graye, Lynn Hossom, Jack Reld and Charles Stratton. First Nighters, who suddenly

If you're tired talking about the weather (its really gone from soup to nuts hasn't it?) then here are a few other subjects to take you out of the sky-watchers corps. Guests of Ruby List, Virginia Allen and Lorraine Root weren't the least concerned about thermometers, rain gauges, wind socks or fog horns Thursday. They had much too much fun at the three hostesses bridge luncheon to give a second thought to the unpredictable! Given in the Dubonnet Room (that may not be its official name, but that's its color!) at the Hacienda Hotel, with its elegant marine view, the hostesses planned the affair as a just for fun, informal

"Smash hit!" "Best movie we've seen in years!" "Terrific cast." These were some of the remarks heard around Betty and Wally Arntzen's home, 272 Granada last weekend when just about the entire membership of Singers Workshop had a get-together to see colored movies of scenes taken at random by Dr. Jim Kimber of the Workshop's last production, "Bittersweet." The movies were accompanied by wire recorded show excerpts. Jim has been making movies of all productions and these "movie nights" are among the most enjoyable the tal-Lasagna, as only those with warm bona fide Italian blood coursing through their veins can cook it, was served (hot, rich and wonderful) by Betty and Frank Riga to a gang of current and former neighbors the other night. The plays "How Did We Lose in the Ensenada Races." The time: Two Weeks Later. The cast: Gordon Dougherty, Don Hunter and THEIR ALL MALE CREWS. The scene: Alamitos Bay Yacht Club. As the curtain rises we hear the mumbling of male voices. Occasionally over the crowd noises a single voice emerges in puzzled anger: "How could a bunch of women beat us in that race?" or "Our sails were perfectly handled, why couldn't we catch them?"

For two weeks-ever since the annual yacht races to Ensenada, this scene has been repeated over and over. The bitter truth the men keep trying to digest is their defeat by Rolly Kalayjian's craft and his ALL WOMAN crew composed of Joan Bescos, Bunnie Riley, Nancy Carrol, Fran Dixon, Jean Norris, Ellis Ayr Law, Marge Hanson and Dodi Corono. Rolly, villian of this play or hero-skipper of his own boat, depending on how you look at it, really had an able crew!

Once upon a time 1 was married and very much in love. My wife left me for another man. Truth to tell, I still love her as much as I always did, but I guess this sort of deal can never be patched up.

I've been thinking that maybe if I could meet other girls and get around with more different people, I might be able to forget her. I wouldn't be so lonely either and I do mean lonely. (Unless you've really been lonely, you don't know what a lowdown feeling

You see, I'm terribly shy.

I clam up the minute I'm

I wonder if you have any suggestions for me. Would sure appreciate them.

I am sick over my problem. I have been going out with a very nice boy for the past five months. He has asked me twice to go steady, but I had to refuse him because of the problem I have at home.

This is my problem. My father is an alcoholic and comes home drunk three or four times a week. He sleeps in the living room on the couch, and when my boy friend comes over, my father is always asleep there.

Our Children

Susan's Window Shopping Consideration of Feelings Best Taught by Example

. By ANGELO PATRI

One of the ideas we impress upon children these days is that they must learn to get along smoothly with people. This means that we teach them to try to put themselves in others' places and be considerate of others' feelings. The best way to teach this is by example.

The parent or teacher who overrides a child's plea for help or consideration is setting in that child's mind quite the opposite from the idea he hopes to instill. If he listens, hears a child's story out, talks. She's human," it over with the child in the same good-mannered, considerate fashion he would assume . toward an adult, he has set the right idea of getting along

"Mother, why can't I have a new dress for the prom? Alice is getting one, and so is Bernice.'

"I know, dear. We would like to get you a new dress every time you wanted one, but Dad and I are planning to send you to the best college possible and that is going to cost a lot of money. We have to save it. You want to help, on your taffets. It will look fresh and nice. How about it?"

"Sure, Mother. It'll be fine. Thanks. You and Dad are just wonderful to me."

That child has taken long strides toward getting along with people, facing a fact and

I don't speak clearly, I don't pick up my feet, I stand wrong, everything about me is wrong with Miss Anne." "Let's sec. How about Miss

"Oh, she's a doll." "And Miss Katy?"

Children like, all the rest of us have to find ways of keeping the peace on all sides. Usually, with a little effort, that is possible. When it becomes impossible, the only thing to do is to control one's tongue and get out of the way as quickly as possible, remembering one always takes one's self along and it may be one's self who is causing the trouble.

Your Baby & Mine The 'Horse Phase'

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

This column has to do with the little girl who so hadly wanted to be a horse that she ate her food like one, galloped around on all fours most of the time and whinnied. Even the suggestion that she sleep in the barn was met with delight and she had to be coaxed back into the house by her parents. Mrs. D. P. writes, "I am the mother of a 412-year-old (this child was five) who loves horses to such an extent that most of her play involves horses and most of the time she is pretending she is one. "However, she confines this strictly to play, where it belongs. If a child insists on carrying this over into all her waking time, it could be that she finds it more desirable to be a horse than a little girl.

"A girl of five has a desire for grown-up, feminine things, so why not buy her perfume and jewelry, hubble bath, lovely, breath-taking, fancy dresses, an adorable hat, a purse set, or other things she could not resist? On the other hand, being a horse could have its drawbacks. The oatmeal or other horsy foods might become very monoto-

A GREAT MAN REMEMBERS

A light in the darkness

by DR. ALBERT SCHWEITZER

in my childhood, I heard many conversations about the Red Cross. At the time, this great international organization was relatively new. Yet people were already speaking enthusiastically about it. The hope they held that it would help put an end to the horrors of war, and thereafter to war itself, has not yet been realized. However, it has justified its existence in two horrible wars, and in peacetime moments of need.

To the Red Cross, millions of human beings owe their very existence. Thanks to it — and institutions like it — a humane concern for others continues to exist, even in the moral confusion of today.

For me, the Red Cross is more than an institution. It stands for an ideal — one in which humanity must think, feel and act with compassion toward the world's suffering peoples.

It encourages us to aspire to a happier world in which all are brothers — to continue to hope for this miracle.

To me, the Red Cross is a light in the darkness. We all owe a debt of gratitude to those who set it there so many years ago. And it is the duty of all of us to see to it that it does not go out.

How Tall Will Your Baby Grow?

Food tips for trips

Does your baby sit safely?

WHEN he's fully grown how big will your beby be? Growth studies answer this fascinating question with remarkable accuracy: The average 2year-old boy and 1½-year-old girl are about half as tall as they'll be when adults—given nourishing food and good health.

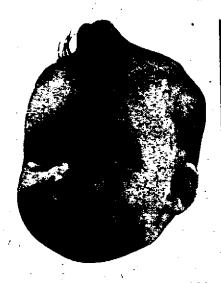

ME	SOYS	GGALS adult height
2 yrs.	49	52
1½ yrs.	46	49
1 yr.	42	47
6 mo.	38	40
1 mo.	30	32
Birth	29	31

- e How many inches long is your baby now? Add two zeros. Then divide by % shown for your baby's age and sex in chart above. For example, if your 6-month-old boy is 27' now, divide 2700 by 38. He'll be about 71' when fally grown—almost a 6-foster. This is an estimate based on approximate averages. Slow- or fast-growing babies may shoot up or slow down later.
- e He saits yea big or little—and he knows it! When you smile and talk happy-talk at mealtimes, that makes him feel good—helps him want to eat all his tummy can hold.

• No new foods on trips—good rule for travel-with-baby. Stick with his favorites. If your baby's tiny, try to go someplace and stay. Don't tour around. On trips, baby food in glass jars is handier than ever. Especially Heinz better-tasting dianers: Strained Vegetables and Lamb, Beef or Bacon—each a meal-in-a-jar.

Little haby, soft and new
The whole world smiles
because of you.

- If beby rejects cereal the first time your doctor suggests it, try another flavor next time. Heinz makes four precooked cereals—Rice, Barley, Oatmeal and Mixed Cereals (wheat, oats and corn)—all fortified with enriching iron that baby needs.
- u Giving baby a safe place to sit helps prevent falls. Safest: a sent-inatable. Next: a broad-based high chair. Let Dad feed haby sometimes. People get better acquainted fast over good food.

This daily diet for babies 6 to 9 months is merely a menu guide. Make your own substitutions. If baby is tired of vegetables, offer fruits for a while. Many better-tasting Heinz fruits contain similar minerals and vitamins and the same amount of roughage as vegetables.

6 Ths. Heinz Mixed Cereal
2 Ths. Heinz Strained Egg Yofk
1 Can Heinz Strained Orange Juice
1 Quart Milk - I Heinz Teething Biscuit
½ jar Heinz Strained Carrots

Weird craft anticipate atom-war needs

WASHINGTON.

Because atomic warfare offers so many new problems, U.S. Army planners here are coming up with some of the darnedest aircraft ever conceived. On this page are artists' conceptions of three which will be flying within 18 months (and which also may well be the forerunners of tomorrow's private planes).

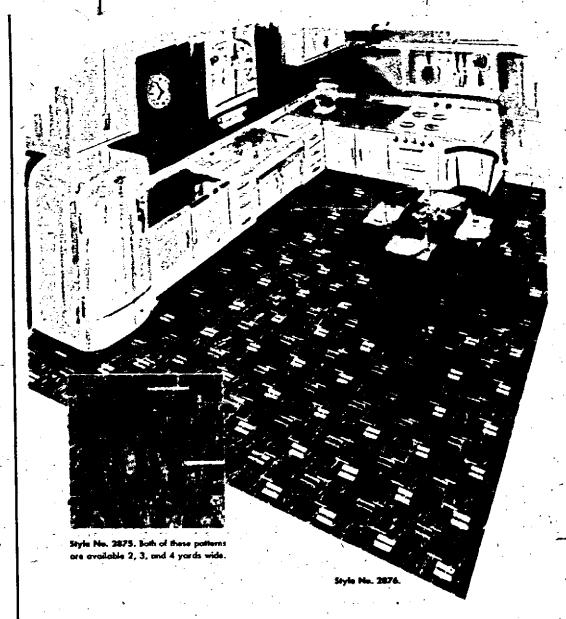

As Army strategists see it, future battlefields will extend for hundreds of miles; that means troops will be scattered over a vast area. "We must be highly mobile," a spokesman told PARADE. "To concentrate troops for any length of time could be fatal. If an atomic shell landed --- "He didn't need to finish.

Our new, dispersed atomic Army must be supplied by fast, lowflying planes freed from formal airfields with their long runways and fixed installations. Thus, Army designers have produced the weird but efficient "family" of planes illustrated here — the "jeeps" of atomic warfare. They will be rugged, maneuverable, versatile; cheap to produce, easy to operate and maintain. They will fly faster than a helicopter. For tactical purposes they will hug the ground, hopping over obstacles like giant grasshoppers.

Two scientific breakthroughs have made these new planes possible: 1) development of small gas-turbine engines which produce twice as much horsepower for their weight as conventional small piston engines; 2) development of high-lift devices, such as ducted fans and double-hinged flaps, which make possible near-vertical takeoffs. The planes may be made of nonmetallic materials, such as plastic or rubber, to speed up manufacturing time — and reduce odds of radar detection.

Such a plane can land in a small clearing, be hidden under the nearest available tree. Adds an Army colonel: "These planes could quickly move an artillery battery -- say, our guided-missile site. They could deliver agents behind enemy lines, fly medical supplies to isolated places, evacuate wounded, carry a TV camera to spot enemy targets, deliver atomic warheads to our atomic artillery sites."

Army officers stress: "These planes are no competition to the Air Force. We believe the top speed doesn't have to be more than 350 mph. At that speed and the treetop altitudes, they'll be immune from anti-aircraft fire. While the Air Force is flying as high as she can, we want to fly as low as we can. But we'll both be fighting the war in our own way."

Gregory Peck

You know him as the No. 1 star of 1956. Now meet the proud, shy, hard-working man behind the star... First of two parts

by LLOYD SHEARER

UDGING BY THE early box-office returns on The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit and the advance ballyhoo on the soon-to-be-released Moby Dick, the most popular motion-picture star of 1956 will almost surely be Eldred Gregory Peck.

The untold story of

And deservedly so. At 40, after 21 profitable films (not counting these two) and 13 eventful years in the movie game, this gaunt, inscrutable leading man has come to be recognized as one of Hollywood's most careful, conscientious and industrious actors.

During the filming of Flannel Suit, for example, Peck stayed awake nights devising what actors call bits of business — mannerisms, movements, even lines to make the characterization more interesting, more complete. If called upon to play a scene which he considered trite, he would politely insist that a more original approach be taken.

"Greg is one actor," says Nunnally Johnson, who wrote and directed the picture, "who simply refuses to take the easy way out. He just will not act a part in a hackneyed way. He tries to make it different, to infuse

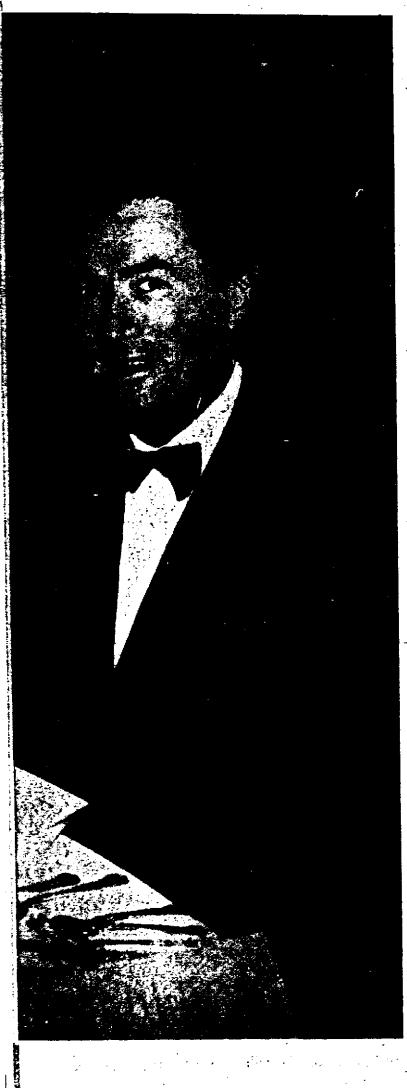

it with dimension. He's a meticulous craftsman.

"In Flannel Suit we had a flashback in which Greg hurls a hand grenade that kills his buddy. He refuses to believe the soldier is dead until he himself can carry him to a doctor in the rear area. Now, I was willing to let Greg carry his dead buddy in a Fireman's Lift, the body slung across his shoulders. He wouldn't have it. It would be much more effective, he insisted, if he carried the soldier cradled in his arms. It was backbreaking that way, but it also was more dramatic and more effective, and Greg sized that up instantly."

Peck's painstaking dedication to detail is famous here. Directors and players who have worked with him—John Huston, Alfred Hitchcock, Ingrid Bergman, Ethel Barrymore, Ava Gardner, Charles Laughton—agree with Johnson's assertion: "Greg Peck works harder than practically any other actor in the world."

An intelligent, somber and sensitive man with a simple credo — "I take my work very seriously" — Peck is so fiercely proud of his reputation as a cooperative and hard-working actor that the only time he ever threat-ened to sue anyone was two years ago when he felt that his reputation had been jeopardized.

The occasion was a Hollywood trade paper's erroneous report that Peck had been fighting with Johnson on the production of Night People in Munich, Germany. George Chasen, Peck's watchful agent, cabled him a quotation from the paper. Peck read it, and his face crimsoned. Marching to Johnson, he thrust the cable in front of him and demanded: "Have you and I ever fought?"

Johnson glanced at the cable, then advised Peck to forget it.

"Not on your life," Peck reportedly stormed. "I'm going to sue for libel. I think I can collect. They're damaging my reputation as a professional actor. I've never fought with a director or held up production in my life."

"If you feel that strongly about it," Johnson conceded, "I'll be your first witness."

Later Peck relented and reluctantly dropped the idea, but the item roiled him for weeks.

Just why he feels so strongly about this is something of a puzzler to his colleagues here. Some feel that Peck — a rangy, virile man who stands 6' 3", weighs 185 — is actually a complex, hedeviled personality, filled with self-doubt concerning his basic acting ability. They point to a significant fact: that no critic of recognized stature has ever described any Peck performance as truly great. "Good" and "adequate" are the two adjectives most frequently employed to praise his work. Inevitably, this must evoke a reaction in Peck himself.

Says one director who has seen Moby Dick, "It's a wonderful picture. But the role of Captain Ahab gave Greg one of the choicest dramatic opportunities of his life, and he flubbed it. He's good instead of being great."

"As Melville wrote him, Ahab is a terrifying, vengeful man with a mind as twisted as his one-legged body. He's drowning in his hatred for Moby Dick, the white whale that cost him his leg and scarred his face. It's a role that calls for fire, sweep, unbridled emotion. But Greg simply is not up to it. The man just cannot let himself go. There's a weight, a stone inside of him that holds him down. It's not that he underplays where underplaying is uncalled for, it's simply that he cannot break the stranglehold inhibition has put on his emotions.

Actor in Gray Flannel

"In The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit, he is much better. Better because it's a case of type-casting. Gregory Peck happens to be by nature the actor in the gray flannel suit. He's stolid, conservative, hard-working. He gets $300,000 a picture, has organized his own production company, picks the best properties, hires a high-pressure press agent, insists upon the top directors, plays it cool and calmly.

"Technically, mind you, he's a darn good actor. But he's not in the same acting league with Brando or Donat or Steiger or Tracy or March or any of the really first-rate people. And in his heart I think he knows that."

A dramatics instructor, who taught him the rudiments of acting in New York 16 years ago after Peck had finished working as a World's Fair "talker" and a Radio City sight-seeing guide, offers a succinct wrap-up of the actor's histrionic ability. "Peck's performances," he says, "are exactly like Peck—honest and workmanlike, humorless and uninspired."

The public, of course, views Peck differently. To the average film fan he represents a handsome cross between Abraham Lincoln and Gary Cooper. He is the romantic young American who dies gloriously or who surmounts all obstacles in a manner designed to stimulate the female while not antagonizing the male. He inspires confidence and trust.

As one Los Angeles theater manager puts it: "Peck's name on our marquee is the best box-office insurance we can have. Thousands of women in this neighborhood, I guess in every neighborhood, feel that here is one guy who would sooner chop off his right arm than cheat on his wife. He seems so romantically righteous."

The Hollywood View

In Hollywood, however, Gregory Peck the man is held in no such venerable light. He is considered an intelligent individual of quiet talent who lives within himself, a humorless actor who has few close friends, a wonderful father and a moody husband, an introvert who has never shared his pleasures or pains with the press or the public and never intends to.

When Alfred Hitchcock was asked if he knew or could recall anything warm or humorous about the actor, his reply was that Peck was "probably the most anecdoteless man" in the motion-picture industry.

"Nunnally Johnson, one of this town's leading humorists, when presented with the same question, hedged with, "Greg is not a gag or joke man. His outstanding traits are integrity, honesty and conscientiousness. While these are not the most lovable or quotable characteristics, they are extremely admirable."

Women interviewers for the fan magazines report that it is easier to mine diamonds than to get quotable sentences out of Peck. Usually they approach a star and say, "Do you mind if I ask you a personal question?" Peck's stock answer is, "Not at all, if you don't mind my not answering it." Currently he refuses to let his new wife, 24-year-old Veronique Passani (left and cover) — whom, ironically, he met when she interviewed him in 1953 as a part-time journalist for the Paris Presse—be interviewed at all. As one result, precious little truth is printed about his private life.

Yet there are those who know him well and don't mind venturing comment. One friend, who attended the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York with Peck, says, "The only time I recall this guy ever letting loose, I mean giving vent to his feelings, was years ago in Manhattan, around 1940 or '41

when he was a struggling young actor. He was in love for a week with a very rich and homely girl. I think her name was Betty.

"Anyway, he was riding on one of those Fifth Avenue double-decker buses. He was on the top deck. All of a sudden he slid down the pole to the bottom deck and started shouting, 'Look, Ma, I'm a blue-boid!' That saying was very popular at the time, and Greg felt so good, so much in love that he just had to sing it out.

That's the only time I ever remember his being genuinely exuberant. Ordinarily he's a fellow who keeps his emotions under lock and key. When Greta, his first wife, was pregnant with Jonathan, their first child, Peck figured out five ways on the map he could rush her to the hospital when the time came. He's that kind of methodical fellow who always keeps himself in check.

"My own opinion is that he's been carrying a monkey on his back for years." (This phrase, originally used to describe dope addiction, has become a show-business equivalent for "something is bothering him.") "It may be that he has a guilt complex about straying from the Catholic church, which he did when he married Greta. Or it may be that he resents his father, who was an outstanding athlete while Greg was not. Or maybe the monkey can be found in his childhood..."

It all began in La Jolla, Calif., a section of San Diego. Born there April 5, 1916—
"He was a big baby," claims his mother.
"Weighed 10 pounds"—Eldred Gregory Peck became the child of divorced parents when he was little more than 6.

Why Did They Split Up?

His father, Gregory, a former crack athlete at the University of Michigan who owned and ran a drugstore and captained the San Diego rowing team in his spare time, was a tall, good-looking pharmacist who somehow couldn't get on with his St. Louis-born wife. Some say the marriage foundered because Mrs. Peck had converted to Catholicism and then had come to resent the conversion. Of this, she herself maintains, "It's ridiculous gossip. Mr. Peck and I were just incompatible. Catholicism had nothing to do with it. One of Mr. Peck's brothers is a priest in Porterville, California. And my conversion was considered necessary by the family for our marriage."

Once the divorce was granted, in any case, Bernice Peck took young Eldred to Los Angeles. There she enrolled him as a resident student in St. John's Military Academy and got herself a receptionist's job in an advertising agency.

Of these formative years when he lived in military school, saw his mother on some week ends, visited his father on others, Peck understandably dislikes to speak. His father failed in business, later went to work for a drug house. His mother, living with a girlfriend to keep expenses down, earned very little money. At best, Peck's life was insecure and lacking in day-to-day affection.

At St. John's he was "an above-average student who liked to play baseball." One sister remembers him as "a little on the shy and moody side, tall for his age, with a high forehead, and his hair plastered straight back."

While still at St. John's, Eldred (he never called himself Gregory until he was 24 and had decided on an acting career) learned that his mother was marrying again. Her new husband, Joseph Maysucci (now Maysuch), took the family back to La Jolla. Eldred was sent to San Diego High School, where he played baseball, sang in the glee club and showed no dramatic ability whatever.

After graduation he enrolled in San Diego Teachers College. For two years he took premedical courses — his father wanted him to become a doctor — then quit to drive an oil truck and earn a (ew dollars. When he was told one day that after 20 years with the oil company he might earn as much as $300 a month, he followed his mother's advice, quit the job and returned to school. This time he enrolled in the University of California at Berkeley, where he waited on table, lived in an off-campus boarding house, went out for crew (making second string) and fell in love with a coed.

"When it came to girls," remarks a former college mate, "Peck knew nothing. Today, despite his position. I understand he knows only slightly more."

SOCIAL SECURITY

BY SIDNEY MARGOLIUS EXPERT IN FAMILY FINANCES

It's your money — but what do you know about it? Congress is considering further improvements in Social Security — but do you know what benefits you are entitled to now? This quiz is designed to tell you.

Social Security undoubtedly is the average family's biggest financial asset, with a potential value of as much as $40,000 to $50,000 to some people reading this. But Cornell University researchers found that in a representative industrial city, Elmira, N.Y., four out of five wage-earners had only a poor knowledge of Social Security, and the Government reports that some people entitled to benefits fail to apply for as long as 10 years after they become eligible—losing out, in many cases, on badly needed payments.

So test yourself on the questions below. Have your wife try them, even your older children. For this is one quiz that really will win you a prize some day if you know all the answers.

QUESTIONS

- 1 Social Security pays benefits only to people over 65.
- True False _____ 2 Your Social Security checks are sent to you automatically when you become eligible.
- True False _____ 3 Even if you don't need the money, you can collect Social Security benefits on the retirement or death of the family breadwinner
- 4 Even if there is no survivor eligible for monthly payments, Social Security pays a lump sum on the death of every covered wage-earner.
- True—False

  5 A widow with two children, whose husband earned an average of at least $4,200 a year, can get monthly payments for her family totaling: (a) $90 (b) $150 (c) $200—

ANSWERS

1 False. This is the most costly misunderstanding. Besides retirement benefits, Social Security makes monthly payments to the surviving widow and dependent children, or dependent parents, if a covered wage-earner dies.

2 False. You or your family must apply for payments.

3 True. Benefits are payable no matter how much savings or investment income you have. But there are limits on how much you can earn through employment.

4 True. A funeral reimbursement of up to $225 is payable to the spouse — or, if there is none, to whoever paid the funeral expense.

5 $200 a month.

6 True. The length of coverage needed to be fully insured for most retirement and survivors' benefits depends on the wage-earner's birthdate, ranges from 1½ to 10 years of covered work. But a widow with children under 18 can get payments even if the wage-earner was only currently insured; that is, had six calendar quarters of coverage within the three years preceding death.

7 False. Forty quarters (10 years) is the most anyone needs to be fully insured, but the amount you get depends on your earnings.

8 False. You must earn Social Security through covered employment. Social Security is often confused with the Federal-State oldage assistance program, which does aid elderly people in real need.

10 False. Unemployment insurance is a separate program.

11 True.

12 Sometimes. A divorced wife is eligible for payments if she has a dependent child of the deceased wage-earner in her care and he had been contributing to her support. But she is not entitled to payments at 65 as is a wife. Children under 18 are eligible in any case.

13 False. Payments of monthly benefits can be made retroactively for only 12 months, and the lump-sum death benefit must be applied for within two years.

14 False. Social Security coverage is mandatory for self-employed persons except in a few non-covered professions, such as medicine.

15 False, Amended Federal income-tax forms can be filed at the nearest Internal Revenue office to secure credit for three years back.

16 Sometimes. Children are eligible for payments from a deceased mother's account even if the father is living, provided she had worked in a covered employment in six of the 13 calendar quarters before her death.

18 True.

19 Sometimes. A worker who reaches 72 can get payments even though he continues to work full time. Furthermore, an eligible beneficiary under 72 can earn as much as $2,080 a year and collect at least some benefits; even if he earns over $2,080 for the year, he can get payments for any month in which he earns less than $80.

OUTBOARD MOTORS

Here's valuable new information on America's fastest-growing outdoor sport

by EDWARD D. FALES, JR.

Late this month the nation's newest craze
— outboard motors — hits fever pitch.

By Memorial Day, U. S. lakes, rivers and coastal waters will be humming with an incredible 5 million outboards. That means one family motor for every 12
automobiles.

Three or four seasons ago, an outboard meant a cranky, noisy put-put that turned the lakeside air blue with bedlam. Outboards were known vulgarly but generally as "stinkpots," and were avoided by all but the most avid fishing (or racing) fans.

Today's motors, costing $80 up, are vastly different: silky quiet, clean, easy to start. Many are frankly styled and painted to appeal to women. They no longer fight back when you try to start them, or shake your teeth out when you do get going.

Soundproofed, "whispering" motors became popular just last year. Today, along with relative silence, you can have:

Nearly twice as much power (30 to 44 hp) as was common five years ago.

Twin engines. Most boats built today are strengthened to handle two motors.

Gear shifts. Old models jumped like a jackrabbit when they were started. Your new one idles in neutral until you're ready for it.

Reverse gears.

Easy starting. You can even have pushbutton or ignition-key starters if you want to pay extra.

Built-in pumps. If it rained in your boat last night, your motor will pump the-water out for you.

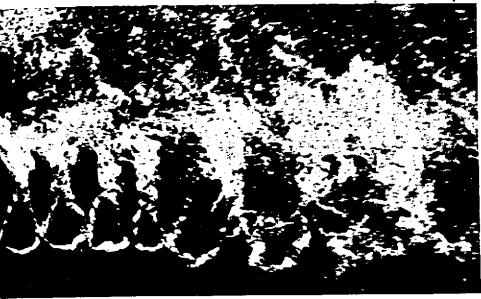

Remote control. You need no longer sit in the stern like a tail gunner to operate the engine. You sit up front with the family, start the motor there, steer with a wheel, shift gears, back up. Your gas lever looks like the knobbed "sticks" airplane pilots use.

Lift hoods. Replacing a sparkplug in some old motors was a problem. Today, you just snap the hood up to get at the works

With this new luxury, boating has become the fastest-growing outdoor recreation in the U.S. (up 50 per cent in 10 years), and thousands of families have taken to the water for the first time. If you join them this summer, you'll discover an amazingly cheap, healthy way to have outdoor fun with your family. You don't have to buy a boat at first. Just buy a motor, tote it in your car and then rent a boat on any lake, river or bay you care to explore.

Even mothers who have never liked to fish will go along now.

Perhaps you already have a motor. Then you'll find it an advantage to do what many owners do now: buy a second. This gives you more power and speed, plus the same "twin-engined reliability" that planes have, in case one motor should quit. You can use two motors to get where you're going fast.

then run'on one motor for fishing, waterskiing or lazy cruising, and return home fast (or run away from a storm) on two motors again.

But what kind of motor do you want? That depends on what kind of fun your family wants to have. It also depends on how much money you want to spend. Here are tips for motor shoppers:

Money: You can pick up a good used motor of medium power for $30 to $50.

New, a middle-sized (7½-16 hp) job will cost you $200 to $360. Usually, motors can be financed over two years. When you're deciding how much to spend, figure how much you'll save by vacationing on the water near home instead of taking a long trip. Your motor may pay for itself in a single vacation.

Kind of fun you want:

1) If you're just bored with sitting around the house, try inland fishing or skim along at 24 mph. With two engines, it will hit 30 mph.

You can pick your motor from 100 models

Do you have to live on the water? No. Sales of motors and boats are booming in desert-dry Phoenix, Ariz. Owners drive to lakes 100 miles away to use

Where can you go? There are thousands of lakes and rivers, and thousands of miles of bays, sounds and inlets along the seaboard and the Great Lakes. Then there's Canada, which contains half the world's fresh-water lakes. Some inland lakes have hundreds of miles of shoreline to explore. Sample: newly-opened Bull Shoals Lake in the Ozarks. Its shoreline measures 1,050 miles.

Suppose you want to buy a boat of your own and take it along? Then buy or rent a trailer. Cost: $80 to $200. The new models are dressy enough to put behind the classiest car, roll smoothly, can be pulled at reasonable speed.

What does it cost to run an outboard? A 3 hp motor holds .7 gallons of gas and oil. (Practically all outboards run on regular or marine gas mixed with a little oil.) It will hum along for four hours for $1. A 15 hp cruising motor will run three hours on six gallons of gas.

How much maintenance does an outboard need? Practically none. You don't have to be a mechanic; many small boys keep their own motors in excellent condition by checking (or having them checked) once or twice a season. Wash and polish yours now and then. Lubricate it and clean the sparkplugs. Once a year, usually as cold weather begins, your motor should be "serviced." This costs about $7.50 unless you do it yourself. Once a year, you may want to screw in new sparkplugs. Small engines have only one, medium engines two, a few big models four.

This year there are about 105 models, and 19 or 20 makers.

Do you need boating experience? No. But have an experienced friend give you pointers and go along on your first couple of rides. Read a good boat manual. There are tricks to boating just as there are to driving a car.

Do you have to worry about getting "wrecked" or sunk? No. A boat, wellhandled, is as safe as your home. Now and then your propeller may hit bottom. That's not dangerous. Most motors have "shear pins." These are little metal pins that snap when the propeller hits something, thus keeping the propeller from breaking. When this happens, you just paddle to deeper water, slip in another pin and go on.

When a Storm Comes

What about storms? Avoid them. Today's boats are tough, reliable, safe. But don't play with thunderstorms. Get ashore fast when dark clouds appear, even though they may seem far away.

Any other cautions? Yes. Don't drop your motor overboard. Sound silly? It happens. Learn the right way to attach motor to boat; once it's on, use a safety chain. Carry one life cushion (or jacket) for each person. Don't stand up, and don't allow hot-rodding.

What about "boat-camping"? Thousands of families are learning to do it. You can tie your boat to a tree, and tent ashore, or put up a "boat tent" in your boat. And many boats, of course, have cabins big enough for two adults and a child. You can rent camping equipment, but most outboard skippers buy theirs.

The only costs of a boat-camping vacation are for food, a few dollars for gas and some spending money. It's just about the cheapest vacation you can find. And it's fun!

UP AT 13

by JOHN DEVANEY

LINDENHURST, N.Y. The grim fireballer at left is Bobby Anderson, a shy, soft-spoken boy who's got a problem no teen-age expert has ever been asked to solve: at 13, he's a has-been.

Apple-cheeked Bobby has been batted out of the pitcher's box by Father Time. In Little League games here last summer, Bobby's fast ball blurred by the hitters, his bat smacked the ball at a .360 clip. But this February he became 13 -- "Boy, that was one birthday I didn't feel like celebrating" - and now he's too old for the Little League season that started this month.

To Bobby ("He lives for baseball," says his mother) and hundreds of thousands of other graduating Little Leaguers, that's much like having the world come to an end. Reason: In about three of every four communities with Little League baseball, there's nothing else in the way of a baseball program for kids below 16.

Made eager to play baseball by the Little League, boys like seventh-grader Bobby face an exasperating wait of three or four years before they can try out for high-school or American Legion teams. Yet there's nothing the Little League can do about it. Says Edward Kienle, a physical-education teacher in the schools here and head of the local Little League: "Our diamonds are two-thirds the size of a regulation field. That's fine for boys 8 to 12, our age limits, but keeping a boy over 12 on such a small field might hamper his development, besides not being fair to the smaller boys.

'There's not much

in the Little League'

off the bases. Two leagues for kids between 13 and 15 have sprung up since the Little League program swept the country after the war. One, the PONY ("Protect Our Nation's Youth") League, uses a diamond about three-quarters the size of a regulation field, takes boys 13 and 14. The Babe Ruth League plays on a regular-size diamond, is for boys 13, 14 and 15.

But of the 500,000 boys now in the Little Leagues, only about 150,000 will get a chance to play in a Babe Ruth or PONY League. There are fewer such leagues because of a crying shortage of adults to set up and run the leagues in their communities. Explains Kienle: "It's very difficult to get people willing to volunteer their time, especially since most of the adults who would be willing are already tied up in Little League work."

Unless a Babe Ruth or PONY League can be formed here in the next few weeks — and that's just a slim possibility — Bobby Anderson will spend much of this summer watching instead of playing.

"A lot of people," he says, "can't understand why us kids just don't choose up sides and play a game in a lot by ourselves—like they say they did when they were kids. But there's not much fun for us in sandlot games after playing in the Little League. It's not because we won't have uniforms either. In the Little League, if there was a close decision, the ump said safe or out and that was the end of it. But when the kids play among themselves, there's always arguments and pretty soon you get tired of arguing and quit.

"There's another thing, too. In the sandlot games you can't learn much from the other kids, but in the Little League you know you're getting taught right."

One of Bobby's friends, Frank Romanelli, also 13, puts it this way: "The Little League games gave you something to look forward to. At night, when we didn't have anything to do, it was fun just sitting around talking about the games."

Catherine and Stanley Anderson find it hard to imagine their oldest son (they have three other children) without baseball games. "Sports — baseball, basketball and football — are Bobby's only hobbies," says Mrs. Anderson. "He's on the honor roll at school, but his teachers say he'd get higher marks if he thought less about baseball. He talks baseball morning, noon and night. His father's a Giant fan, while Bobby's for the Dodgers. Every night at the dinner table there's a battle."

Bobby will play a few games this summer in a league run by the Youth Council, a Lindenhurst group that governs summer recreation. "The only trouble," says Kienle, "is that we don't have enough adults to act as managers and umpires. As a result, the games just don't have the same interest for the kids as the Little League and not near as many show up."

With the shortage of adults ("Too many parents are too busy making money to give time to their kids," growls one Little League official here). Kienle has had his hands full operating the Little League, never mind starting a league for older kids. All told, he needs from 70 to 75 adults to supervise the 320 Little Leaguers; each man gives up at least two or three evenings a week, and often Saturdays as well

One man, though, thinks he may have a solution—letting older high-school boys serve as umpires, thus freeing adults for managing the teams and running the league.

"My son turned 13 this year," says Arthur Ryan, 45, a Little League volunteer. "Like Bobby, he's the kind you can't get into the house to eat because 'I'm up next inning.' I talked to a number of fathers whose son's were also too old for the Little League and finally got 10 who offered to help. We got information on how to set up a Babe Ruth League from some people who were running one in another part of Long Island. Then we contacted merchants and service clubs, who put up the money for equipment."

As plans now stand, Ryan hopes to start his six-team Babe Ruth League — using older teenagers as umpires — by the middle of this summer.

If Ryan is successful, Bobby and dozens of other boys here will be has-beens no longer. (The hope that he'll play again this summer delights Mrs. Anderson: "My husband and I have gone to see nearly every Little League game that Bobby's been in.") But Ryan believes that more than baseball is involved. "Being kept active in the summer is important for an energetic teenager," he says. "Saying a boy is washed up at 13 may sound strange, but it's our washed-up teenagers—the ones we've left with nothing to do—who become delinquents."

How you can heip 'washed-up' kids

SURPRISED Bobby is told by Ryan (1.) and Kienle that Ruth League may start.

As Arthur Ryan and Ed Kienle (left) are proving in Lindenhurst, there's no reason why any boy should be deprived of the chance to play baseball. To set up a Babe Ruth League, you must have four to six teams, with 15 players on each team; the PONY League allows four to eight teams, with 16 players on each. For complete information, write to:

TEEN-AGE TOPICS

There are no cut-and-dried rules for the handling of difficult social situations, but the truth generally is better than a "white lie"—although courtesy still demands that we do everything we can to save the feelings of others. Here are some recent letters on various topics:

Q. I am 15, and have been smaking for a year—without permission. My mother is by no means strict or old-fashioned, but there are some things she has forbidden me to do, and smoking is one of them. I have to sneak cigarettes behind her back, but I know she would be mad if I told her. I need your help badly.—M.J., San Diego, Calif.

A. I suggest that you tell your mother the truth. Say that you are sorry you have been smoking without her permission; tell her frankly that you are going to continue to smoke, but don't want to be sneaky about it. Perhaps your mother, loving and kind as she is, will understand that if she does not take so firm a stand, then smoking may not seem so important to you, after all.

Q. A relative of ours uses our phone to make a number of long-distance telephone calls, and has never offered to pay us for them. How can we refuse further telephone privileges? — P.B., Somerville, Mass.

A. Your family should be frank and tell this relative that the telephone bills have been very heavy lately and ask if he could make a note of any long-distance calls that he places and ask the operator for the charges. If he doesn't take the hint and pay you for his calls, write him a note after he leaves, stating the amount that he owes on the bill.

Q. A girl in my class had a pajama party last month. I was invited, but my guardian would not let me go. Both boys and girls attended the party. Was this right? — D.J., Fairfield, Conn.

A. No. I think this was a tasteless kind of party for parents to permit.

Q. Lam a boy of 13. Is it all right to write a girl pen pal as often as I want? — R.R., Quemado, N.M.

A. Yes, the boy may take the initiative in these things. However, the girl may feel he is overdoing it if he sends too many letters.

Q. I am a girl of 14 and go with a boy, 17, who is now in the Navy. My parents will not allow me to go out with him, although I am allowed to go out with other boys they have met. My paster likes this boy. How can I make my parents understand he's a nice boy? — E.D., Long Beach, Calif.

A. From your letter, I gather that your parents and the boy have not met. Boys always should meet the parents of the girls they take out. Ask this boy to call on you at home; after meeting him, perhaps your parents will agree with your pastor.

Do you feel tense, worried, anxious, worn out most of the time? Do minor problems throw you into a tailspin? Do you find it difficult to get along with people? Do you go around with a chip on your shoulder? Do the small daily pleasures of life fail to satisfy you?

If you answer "No" to all or most of these questions, you're lucky. And you might almost consider yourself an exception, because millions of Americans are subject to frequent attacks of tension and anxiety (we used to call it "nerves") - and hundreds of thousands. are almost never free of this distressing condition.

Today might be called the era of "no peace of mind." Many people's tempers are short, their anxieties great, their lives charged with ever-increasing tension. For many, the simple pleasures of life are inadequate, and there is a drive for the thrilling, the unusual, the dangerous. Instead of contentment, many of us are filled with feelings of fear and suspicion, of being trapped, cheated, deprived - mistrustful of ourselves, mistrustful of others.

What can we do about it?

Often I have heard people say, "If only there were a peace-of-mind pill!" Unfortunately, there is no such pill. But there are many things - practical things which you can do to gain relief from a tortured, anxiety-ridden state of mind.

Here are 12 suggestions:

1 When something worries you, talk it out. Don't bottle it up. Confide your worry to some level-headed person you trust - your husband or wife, a good friend, your minister. Talking it out helps relieve the strain, lets you see your worry in a clearer light.

2 Anger as a general way of behavior will most likely leave you feeling foolishand sorry. If your anger is provoked and you feel like lashing out at someone, try bolding off for a while - let it wait until tomorrow. Meanwhile, do something constructive with your anger - pitch into some physical activity like carpentry, gardening or cleaning out the garage. Or you might even take a long walk. Working the anger out will leave you better prepared to handle real problems intel-

3 If you quarrel frequently because you feel defiant, remember: That's the way frustrated children behave. Stand your ground on what you are sure is right, but consider that you may be wrong. Even if you are dead right, it's easier on your system to give in once in a while. If you yield, others will, too. The result is relief from tension, a feeling of achievement.

4 If you worry about yourself all the time, try doing something for somebody else. You'll find this will take the steam out of your own worries and give you a feeling of satisfaction.

5 For people under tension, an ordinary work load may seem unbearable. But that is only a temporary condition. You can work your way out of it by taking a few of the urgent tasks and pitching into them, setting aside the rest for a time. Once in the swing of things, you'll find it wasn't such a "horrible mess" after all. The remaining tasks will go more easily. If you can't set some aside, maybe you are tackling too much.

Do you drive yourself or feel frustrated?

6 Some people worry constantly because they think they are not achieving enough. They seek perfection in everything - which is an invitation to failure. If you are such a person, put your major effort into those things you do well. Do everything else to the best of your ability. Give yourself a pat on the back for things well done, but don't try to break records in everything you do.

7 Some people feel frustrated or disappointed when another person does not "measure up." The "other person" may be one you are trying to fit into a preconceived pattern, or trying to make over to suit yourself. Remember, each person has his own virtues, shortcomings, values - and the right to develop as an individual. People who feel let down by the shortcomings (real or imagined) of others are really let down about themselves. If you are tolerant of your own shortcomings, you're likely to feel tolerant about others'.

When things go wrong, tense people often fly into tantrums. A more productive reaction is to recognize that things can't go well all the time - that disappointment and failure are part of life. It is much healthier to accept them and work on from there than to fly apart.

9 Sometimes, when things go wrong, it helps to escape for a while, to lose yourself in a movie, a book or a game, Making yourself "stand there and suffer" is a form of selfpunishment as well as punishment of others. It is realistic and healthy to want to escape pain, so escape - but be prepared to come back and deal with the difficulty when you are more composed.

How Do You See Yourself?

10 Many of us often feel that we are being "left out," slighted, rejected. Often we just imagine that, when in reality, it is we who are deprecating ourselves. Instead of withdrawing, it is much healthier and more practical to continue to "make yourself available," to make some of the overtures, instead of always waiting to be asked. -1

The opposite reaction to withdrawal is to push yourself forward on every occasion. This often is misinterpreted and may lead to real rejection. There is a middle ground between withdrawal" and "pushing." Try it.

11 Many people drive themselves so hard that they have little time for recreation, an essential for good physical and mental health. Thus driven, they may find it hard to make themselves take time out. For such people, a set schedule definite hours during which they will not work but will engage in recreation - is helpful. In general, it is desirable to have a hobby which is absorbing and provides pleasure.

12 Those under emotional tension often feel they "have to get there first" - to edge out the other person, no matter how insignificant the goal. If enough of us feel this way (and many of us do), everything becomes a mad race. There can be no peace of mind, only fear, suspicion and hostility, in this kind of atmosphere. But the urge to edge out the other fellow can be controlled. Destructive competition is contagious, but so is cooperation. When you give the other fellow a break, you make things easier for yourself. If he no longer feels that you are a threat to him, he will stop being a threat to you.

One final point: Each of us is responsible for the other person's peace of mind. Troubled people are people in trouble. Many of the harmful things they do arise from fear, worry, emotional immaturity. In a troubled world, the least we can do for each other is to help with sympathy and understanding.

PAUL HOOVER Olde English Tradition

THE ENGLISH have always had a talent for good food and drink so that's why there's a ruddy British character to the new oil paintings in the Stag Room at Paul's of Lakewood Restaurant, Carson St. at Bellflower Blvd.

Recently redecorated, the Stag Room features three paintings of merry olde England painted by the versatile brush of Allan Woods, a local artist. Included are gentlemen with fat, full stomachs, voluptuous blond barmaids and contented dogs munching bones on the floor. Paul Hoover, owner of the restaurant, has added other new touches to the room, such as a smart green-Recently redecorated, the Stag the room, such as a smart green-figured wallpaper, Hi-Fi music and a six-foot high display of fine wines.

The food at Paul's is right in keeping with that olde English tradition. One of the house specialties is choice roast prime rib served au jus with a palatepleasing mixture of creamed horseradish. The prime rib slices are thick and hirry—medium or rare according to the guest's choice—and positively delectable. Also served with the lectable. Also served with the rib (which is $2.50 per person) are large crisp salads with Roquefort dressing, mammoth baked potatoes with melted cheese sauce and chives, another vegetable and hot fresh rolls.

EQUALLY POPULAR at Paul's is tender grenadine of beef at the same price. It consists of generous portions of choice meat prepared with wine and then grilled. It is served on toast with a rich mushroom sauce. All the trimmings of a big complete dinner go with it, such as fruit cocktail or tomato juice, choice of soup or salad, potato, another vegetable, rolls, choice of beverage and dessert.

A long time favorite of the patrons is old-fashioned chicken and dumplings served on Sundays and Thursdays. It is real, grandma-style chicken, served with tremendous fluffy dumplings, It's $2 on the large complete dinner, The foregoing items, and numerous others, are also featured at Paul's of Santa Fe Springs Restaurant, Telegraph Rd. at Orr and Day Rd.

the new adaptation of Horace Greeley's traditional admonotion to young men.

Back in the East and Midwest, many folks are planning for that vacation of a life-time.

After months of eager planning, they'll be chugging off in the family jalopy or buying tickets on a train, bus or plane for that cross-country trek.

British Columbia's.

WHILE OUR EASTERN friends must travel for days, most of these vacation attractions are within a 1,000-mile radius of our homes here.

So varied are these western attractions that it would be nec-essary to travel around the world to many lands to duplicate

You could spend days vacationing in San Francisco, with its cosmopolitan flavor and its big bridges, Chinatown, Golden Gate Park and Fishermen's Whatf.

NORTHWARD STRETCH the redwood trees, which were old when Jesus was teaching in Palestine. Shady paths, lined with ferms and moss, lead beneath the trees to the ocean.

The Oregon coastline is famous for its pine trees alongside the cean and its scenic bays. Inland is Crater Lake National Park; there you see the clear blue waters of the lake 2,000 feet deep with or the lake 2,000 feet deep which formed thousands of years ago when a great volcano ex-ploded.

UTAH PRESENTS many attractions. The Mormon Tabernacke in Salt Lake City is a show place. In the southern section of the state are Bryce Canyon Na-tional Park, with fantastic, viv-idly clored pinnacles, and Zion National Park, with its beautiful gorge dropping to 2,500 feet.

GUIDE TO VACATIONLAND

By Vivien Keatley

SOUTHLANDERS are fast discovering a new trip to Mexico, almost in their own back

With the completion of the paved highway from Nogales, Ariz, to Mexico City, some are making a "circult tour" Mexico, entering at Nogales and visiting much of the land below the border, including the capital, and then taking one of the central routes to El Paso, Brownsville or Laredo, Texas, for re-entering the U.S.

The west coast route intro-duces some of Mexico's lesser known tourists attractions, in-cluding the sports fishing capital of Guaymas 260 miles below the border, and old Alamos, one of Mexico's most beautiful and almost forgotten cities.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS of the rip are Mazatlan, Sinaloa, "the Pearl of the Pacific," San Blas, Nayarit, a fishing jungle on the Pacific where tropical plantations grow almost at the water's edge, and Guadalajara. Mexico's second largest transfer of the second largest strength o edge, and Guadalajara. Mexico's second-largest city, and capital of Jalisco, Guardalajara is the true "gateway" between the better known, populated plateau of Mexico, and the "new West" which is opened up by the new highway. Its magnificent "hospitality gate" on the western entrance to the city commemorated, in 1942, the city's 400th anniversary on it present site.

The trip is best made any time of the year except during the late summer rainy season. All bridges are in except at three miners. All bridges are in except at three rivers. For two of these the rail-road bridge is being used temporarily, At the other, when water is low the river is forded; when water is high, a ferry operates for a nominal charge.

THROUGHOUT THE STATES of Sonora, Sinaloa, Nayarite and Jalisco tourist accommodations are being rapidly developed. New gasoline stations, medern motels with every modern convenience including air conditioning are being built. Good restaurants are operated in connection with the hotels and motels, and others are operated as just good places to eat. In most of the restaurants both American and Mexican dishes are served.

To make the trip to Mexico a "turista" permit is required, costing $3. This can be obtained at the nearest Mexican consulate, or in Nogales, where one may be subject to considerable delay in case of an accident. When rentering the U.S., proof of recent 3 year smallpex vaccination may be required. be required.

If you are going to Mexico, when you cross the border (between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.) your luggage will be inspected by Mexican customs officials, and you'll get your automobile tourist permit. This is free, but you'll need certificate of ownership of your ear. If you intend to take expensive foreign cameras—and you'll certainly find your self trigger-happy with a camera in Mexico—it is well to register them with U.S. customs before crossing the border. That way crossing the border. That way you'll make sure you aren't charged duty on them when you come back.

IF YOU STAY in Mexico 12 full days or more, not including the day of leaving or returning, you may bring back $500 in merchandise for yourself or for gifts without paying any duty. If you stay less than this, you can bring back $200. back $200.

The Long Way Up the Coast

1. One of California's spectacular vistas on way north is Golden Gate Bridge, San Francisco.

World renowned as a vacation resort, the tri-state sweep of America's west coast—California, Oregon and Washington—beckens the seeker after leisurely, comfortable, variable recreation. An abundance of outdoor activities—surf bathing, hiking, riding, beachcombing, fishing, bicycling, golling, swimming in heated resort pools, rivers and sea, hunting—these are a few—await the casual traveler. Trailer parks, hotels, motels, camping sites, top-flight resort facilities and plain—all these after a choice that can be altered as the vacation goes along. Scenic beauty abounds in ever-shifting panoramas and of the vast scope only the West knows.

P. Rugged shores and jutting headlands lend variety to the seascapes of Oregon's green coast. A restless suri picks out beautiful patterns.

Rock fishing is a recreation enjoyed the year around along Oregon's shore. Here, family enjoys the sport in coastal area near Depos Bay.

Vacations Are for Children, Too

By Nancy Vogel

F YOU HAVE children, You are familiar with the limiting of vacation time to the summer months, when the schools are closed. You are probably familiar, too, with some of the inconveniences and annoyances that seem to be inevitably connected with taking children out of their accustomed routine to strange and exciting places.

They get tired; sometimes they become ill. Discipline and good habits seem to disappear along with the first spurt of dust under your tires as you set out. If the children fought occasionally at home, in this new close and constant proximity to one another as soon as the initial novelty and exuberance of being on vacation wear off — they begin to quarrel almost constantly. A vacation is not always a time of real pleasure for them.

tening in eagerly, craning their necks for a glimpse at the road maps under discussion, and be-ing shushed if they interrupt. Mother has always wanted to visit the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City; this will be a good time to do it. Daddy has always had a yen to go through Hoover Dam; there's no reason for not taking it in this trip! Mother wants to start out by way of Phoenix, because she has a cousin there whom she hasn't seen for 15 years.

THAT SUITS Daddy fine, be cause he has an old friend fust outside of Phoenix that he'd like to look up, too. And there's another old buddy in Spokane that he wants to look up some time before they come home, too.

A vacation can be a lot more fun, not only for the children but for the parents as well, if it is deliberately planned as a vacation for the children. In the first place, the children can share in ecstatic weeks of prepashare in ecstatic weeks of preparation, with each child, regardless of his age, being given an equal voice in the planning.

Whatever they want to do on this "children's vacation," why not let them do it? This is the time for all those vague someday-I'd-like-to's to find fulfillment. Inevitably, a lot of the children's desires will coincide with those of their parents, any way. Boys have just as keen an interest in Hoover Dam and other supreme works of human engineering as their fathers have. Children, like adults, are thrilled and enticed by the mystery and beauty of underground caves and caverns, the icy crystalline sta-tacites and stalagmites, like fangs in giant gaping jaws. Children love fairlyand wonders like Yellowstone National Park, where for miles the ground steams and bubbles, shooting up geysers here and there, seeming to be about to end its long simmering by going up in one vast and giorious explosion.

COMPROMISES can be worked out, of course. There may be a few things that parents won't want to miss which would be unsuitable or boring for children. This is the time for a babysitter, but the eve-ning's program should include special treats, papearn, ice cream, games, a late bedtime.

A children's vacation — planned, but casual and careless — can mean for everyone in the family a vacation that is more genuinely enjoyable and relaxing than any has ever been before.

Library Books Need Surgery, Too

FEW OF the thousands who daily seek knowledge, mental stimulus and reading enjoyment from the shelves and racks of the Long Beach Public Library are aware of most of the activities that go on behind the scenes. They are appreciative of the excellence of the cataloguing system, the courtesy and efficiency of the staff, the completeness of its many divisions of research, science in all its forms, drama, literature, fiction (including widely circulated whodunits and hoss operas), biography, history, religion, statistical data of all kinds; in short, the works.

Some of them know there are well over 300,000 volumes available to card holders, who pay nothing for the wonderful privileges of reading. And also for their use are hundreds of news-papers from all over the world, magazines, maps, charts, pamph-lets, etc. If one limited himself to two to four books a day—and some of the weightier tomes would require a 40-hour week to consume — it would take him more than four centuries to go through the library provided no new books were added during that vast span of years. That would be a period approximating the time that Coronado sought the gold-paved streets of Quivera down to the Eisenhower regime and the upsurge of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Oklahoma Sooners and the belated fame that has come to Bridey Murphy.

THE MAIN OFFICE of the Bbrary, as everyone here knows, is in Lincoln Park, and there are nine branches, with the tenth at Los Altos coming up soon. All these are under direction of Li-brarian Edwin Castagna and his

are two bookmobiles.

In the basement of the main library is a department essential to any such institution. This is where ailing books are cured and where sad last rites are performed on well-thumbes to make and where sad last rites are performed on well-thumbed tomes that are sick beyond repair. This department is supervised by Mrs. Yvonne McCune, assisted by Mrs. Lillian Powers, Miss Elizabeth Hathaway and (part time) LeRoy Byrd. Here in a typical month (January 1956): 698 books were stripped, repaired or recased, and 170 were sent to the bindery for new covers. new covers.

THOSE THAT COME into Mrs. McCune's surgery the oftenest are, of course, the ones most widely circulated. These are not necessarily best sellers in the fiction and nonfiction books; it is amazing how many people take out more scholarly works. Al-though virtually all library read-ers take average care of the things they torrow, the wear and things they borrow, the wear and tear on a book may exceed by 100-fold or more the wear and tear on a privately owned book, read by members of the family and occasionally loaned out to friends. Threads break, pages come koose and many other things happen that send the books down to Mrs. McCline. to Mrs. McCune, to Mrs. McCune,

When a page, for instance, can't be reinserted, a typed copy is placed in the book; if it contains a chart or a map, a photostat is made of hie page. Incidentally, Mrs. McCune observes that books are not as well bound as they were before World War II. And books, like small children, have to be cleaned from time to time.

MAGAZINES AND newspa-pers often must be rebound, and these are saved, many going back far beyond 1963 when the Long far beyond 1963 when the Long Beach library was established. Want to read up on the cele-brated murder case that rocked the nation in the early 1890s, that of Lizzie Borden? Or the Cook-Peary North Pole contro-versy of the early 1900s? Or the assassination of President Me-Kinley? You'll find them all there.

Eventually all periodicals will be placed on microfilm, thus dispensing with a huge storage area.

Park Ridge Penthouse

By Winifred Bell Fletcher

COULD YOU LIVE alone and like it on a mountain top all your own?

"Who wouldn't?" you ask.

Marie Richter does, though her house is a target for every lightning bolt that strikes. It is the "crow's-nest" of the Park Ridge Fire Lookout in Kings Canyon National Park, where she has manned the fire finder for eight years.

"I call it my summer pent-house," she says, her brown eyes crinkling with quiet fun. "I come up Decoration Day and don't go down again till October."

TO REACH HER cyrie, turn off the General's Highway be-yord the forest ranger station. A nine-mile road stretches toward Panoramic Point, then twists south up the ridge to a 7,500-foot elevation. The last part is unpaved, rough and extremely nerrow. Edging past a down-coming car is precarious. The motorist holds his breath skirting hairpin curves under overhanging bluffs, clinging to the trail between earth and sky. But Marie's cordial welcome is worth it.

"I'm always glad when people come," she smiles.

Her slight figure precedes you up to the tiny, glass-enclosed room where she and her invalid husband, Occar, live four months of the year. Housekeeping is primitive, with camp stove, of the year. Housekeeping is primitive, with camp stove, cots, table, a chair or two. Clothes hang on nails. An old style "cooler," with water dripping over burlap, hangs outside. Twice a week the ranger delivers supplies by truck.

IN THE MIDDLE of the room is the "fire finder," set on a sturdy table bearing a topo-

NEVER SAW a foreign airport without an exchange desk or a branch bank. Also all the porters seem to know where to get tip money changed so you could use American money.

The French franc curter that the prently is selling in the advance. The French franc curadvance. The French franc currently is selling in the States at about 390 to the U. S. $1. ### THE ROCKET'S EXTRA MARGIN OF POWER MEANS AN EXTRA MARGIN OF SAFETY!

HIGH HORSEPOWER . . . high torque . . . high compression. It takes all three to describe Oldsmobile's Rocket! But there's still another important side to the picture.

It's reserve power—in abundance! In fact, at normal cruising speeds the Rocket still has more than 175 horsepower left . . . beyond what it takes to propel the car! It's this reserve that whips you through a passing cituation to quickly, to effortlessly.

That means economy, too! The Rocket just cases along, when lesser engines are straining. You can see the result in Oldsmobile's double victory in the 1956 Mobilgas Economy Run!

The Rocket's modern "big bore, short stroke" design cuts friction and power loss. The Rocket's design made high compression practical . . . and today's Rocket hits a high 9.25 to 1 compression!

For the most vivid proof of what this means to you, come take the wheel of a Rocket Engine Oldsmobile. You will feel a distinct difference in performance, in riding and handling qualities . . . a glamorous difference in Oldsmobile's beauty. Come in soon!

Half the passengers on luxury flights reported incomes of more than $15,000, and of the total number of passengers in that in-come bracket, more than half were flying Sky Tourist Constellations.
ANOTHER sociological item is revealed in the survey. In line with today's family slogan of "togetherness" more families are flying together more often. TWA's survey found nearly half its passengers travel as a family in the peak summer season, and only about a third in thrift season. However, TWA's new "Discount Fare Plan" is narrowing the gap by offering thrift season discounts for family air travel. The TWA survey also reveals that air travelers go overseas more often than others. Passengers who had flown to Europe before made many more trips abroad during the past eight years than those who had previously traveled only by ship. ously traveled only by ship.

GUIDE TO VACATIONLAND

Lovely Green Island of Thrills

SUMMER IS COMING, and to many residents of the Long Beach area that makes a trip to Santa Catalina Island a MUST.

The lovely green island lies 20odd miles from Long Beach, with steamer service now offered daily, and with accommodations to suit practically any purse.

Visitors to Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, often compare it with the Mediterranean, The trip over has the thrill of an ocean voyage because it IS an ocean voyage. Avalon Bay is the bluest of blue, the charming town lies from seashore to high up the hills.

A VARIETY of entertainment is offered at Avalon. Principal entertainment of course is swimming, and Avalon boasts that the island lies so that bright sunshine never glitters in the eyes of swimmers. A small pool offers splashing sports for the small fry.

Fishing is the sport for many, and as one walks out on the fish-ing pier and back, one meets practically everyone he knows ashore. There is a glass-bottom boat ride synonymous the world over with Santa Catalina Island, and boats of various sizes may be hired or borrowed for exciting trips.

CATALINA GOLF COURSE is popular and there also is tennis. Horses may be obtained for trips into the hills. And trails lure hikers to high points where the island and the far coastline may be seen. At night the lights of Avalon and the Isthmus, Long Beach, San Pedro, Wilmington and Palos Verdes glitter like a million jewels.

The Country Club has been remodeled and the golf course is in good shape and green after the spring rains.

St. Catherine Hotel has made many improvements and has added the Mirror Room which serves as a banquet room, a meeting room or ballroom for up to 400 people.

THE CATALINA Visitors Country Club restaurant and the Chi Chi Cafe have been remodelled.

We have a fine selection of European conducted tours still available for this summer via both steamer

A House Adjusts to Changing Times

Bar, built in conjunction with new family room, adds pleasure to entertaining: has a sink, refrigerator.

By Eileen Ball

SEVEN YEARS AGO John and Joyce Dixon built a pretty, 1400-square-foot home on pretty, 1400-square-foot home on a Belmont Heights hill where they since have enjoyed south breezes and view.

The house, located at 776 Ha-vana Ave., enjoyed from the start an efficient kitchen and a large living room which the Dixons outfitted with comfortable modern furniture. Dining room, two bedrooms and bath complete the plan. Landscaping complemented the architectural lines and provided outdoor space for casual entertaining in the rear garden.

But with the passing of time, changes came about in the living pattern of this family and these had the effect of shrinking the house to the extent it no longer functioned adequately.

Two years after the comple-tion of the house, a second

Bus Tours Ready

The escorted bus tour is one Greyhound's contributions to the 1956 vacation picture, and advance reservations for tours announced show that this type of vacation has a strong appeal. For instance, escorted tour leaving San Francisco for the Canadian Rockies and Glacier National Park on July 9 has been almost completely sold out, and reservations are now being made for the Aug. 6 departure from San Francisco. Canadian Rockles-Glacier Park escorted tours from Los Angeles leave that city July 22 and Aug. 19. and reservations for these spe-cial tours are also being made rapidly. No additional tours to this area can be arranged be-cause the hotels have set aside for Greyhound only enough ac-commodations for the four tours.

The situation on other escorted tours is better, chiefly be-cause there are more of them. The 18-day Mexico tour, for example, leaves Phoenix every other Monday through Sept. 24. The tour of the Pacific North-west, Vancouver and Victoria, which is described as Greywhich is described as Grey-hound's most popular escorted vacation, will leave from both San Francisco and Los Angeles every Sunday, beginning June 24 and centinuing through Aug. 26, a total of 20 escorted tours from the two cities. In addition there are six escorted tours from Los Angeles to Yellowstene and Grand Teton national parks. Five escorted tours to Utah Parks and Grand Canyon are scheduled from Los Angeles.

Colorful new folders describ-

Planning Makes Picnics 'Click'

By Mildred K. Flanary

the outdoor grill and plan some meals for dining in the sunshine or under the stars. The meals can be just as glamorous as those served in the dining room and much more fun.

Picnics, whether in your own backyard, patio, at the beach of atop a mountain, are the most fun when they're properly planned. Here's a good picnic tip: plan out the things you want to take with you the night before. Otherwise, somebody will forget something that will put a damper on the whole day.

Or, "Honey, didn't you put any salt in the basket?"

Yes, systematic planning pays big dividends, so today we're devoting the column to the fundamentals of picnicking. At a later date, we'll do another article and include recipes you'll like,

ORGANIZING: It's the little things that are easiest to forget, but big or little, there's no need to forget anything if you plan your pienic in a systematic way:

1. Planning on hamburgers? Make them into patties the night before. Get out an insulated picnic bucket such as the one in the picture, and in the morning all you have to do is pack the hamburger patties on the bucket's plastic tray. Don't forget the small cans of frozen refrigerant to keep them cold and fresh.

If you're planning on having a picnic where stone grills are not provided, you'll want a handy, easy to manage pertable grill that will cook a good supply of hamburgers. The grill in the picture contains an enclosed charcoal fire, weighs only a few pounds, and is one of the cleanest, safest you can buy. You carry the charcoal right inside it, so there's no mess.

2. PUT YOUR BOTTLED goods on ice the night before. Along with the refrigerant, pack them in the morning in an insulated bucket so they'll be nice and cold when you want them. If you want hot coffee or if you want to take along unbottled lemonade, make them fresh and pour them into an insulated jug with a built-in pump dispenser. No need to carry them in an old-type jug that you have to lift or tilt to pour from. A rubber bulb is squeezed and the liquid is pumped through a spout at the top. Even a child can get a drink when he wants it without danger of tipping over the jug.

3. Make sure you have enough of everything. Appetites go up as the result of strenuous outdoor activity. Best way to estimate how much to bring is to calculate more than you think anyone can possibly eat, then multiply by two.

4. Maybe you really want to get fancy. You can prepare individual portions of chilled chocolate mousse the night before, wrap them in aluminum foil, and pop them Into the insulated bag where they will stay firm and cold. Or maybe an ice-cold potato salad or coleslaw. Put them in a sealed plastic container and store them in with the soda in the cooler.

The food supply should now be sample.

NOW MAKE A CHECK list; your planning has got to be careful in taking along enough of those little items that are important to making a picnic a success. Include the following:

1. Plates, cups and silverware. Put them in the insulated bag if you like. There's plenty of room.

2. Salt, pepper, sugar, mustard, cream or milk, catsup. Put the cream in the cooler with the other bottled beverages.

3. Don't forget a bottle opener, a good sharp knife, and a flash-light (it's liable to be dark when you pack up to leave).

4. Take along a can of charcoal lighter. It will help the fire get going ever so much faster.

That's all there is to it. If you think of anything else that you usually like to take along on a picnic, by all means add it. But plan it out.

kiki Beach while in Hawaii? Then you can have the fun of exploring some of Oahu's 32 lesser-known public beach parks. Spotted around the 40-mile-long, 26-mile-wide island of Oahu (site of Honolulu), each beach has its own following of islanders who picnic and sun themselves on serene, uncluttered sands.

Very few visitors get to know Oahu's excitingly varied range of beaches because Waikiki surf laps the doorsteps of big resort hotels. But anyone adventurous enough to rent a U-drive car or hon a bus can whize out to Hanauma Bay beach park in half an hour from Waikiki proper.

THE SEA-HUGGING, modern, paved highway winds by some of Honolulu's most handsome homes, surrounded by giant monkeypod (rain trees), golden showers and plumerias. Below, a palm-shaded crescent of white sand is walled at one end by black lava cliffs adjoining Koko Head crater.

If it's Saturday or Sunday, you'll probably follow a queue of laughing, barefooted Hawaiian and Oriental youngsters — burdened with swim fins, fishing gear and lunches, down the 300-foot ramp to the beach. If it's a work day you may share the week day, you may share the view with the black scabirds of

Like to take one of the most scenic two-hour drives in the world? Then you might plan to picnic at Hauula beach park on the windward side of Oahu. # Highways Progress

YHEN the Southern California motorists heed the call of the open road this vacation season, they will find California highways more open than ever before as the state's stepped-up highway construction program begins to show results in the form of long continuous stretches of modern freeways and expressways,

This will be in spite of the disastrous floods that hit the northern part of the state last winter and caused nearly $14,000,000 in damages to state highways alone.

The State Division of Highways reports that since this time last year 170 miles of multilane divided highway have been completed, bringing the statewide total to 1,474 miles, with another 310 miles of multilane divided highway under construction.

DURING THE PAST YEAR several important units of the Los Angeles freeway system were completed, bringing the total of full freeways row in use there to 75 miles.

Major completions since this time last year:

Almost a mile of the Colorado Freeway in Eagle Rock from Avenue 61 to Eagle Rock Blvd., connecting to the new Pasadena Pioneers Bridge over the Arroyo Seco; extension of the Harbor Freeway south to 42ml St.; extension of Fourth St. easterly over the Harbor Freeway to Hill St.; a section of the Golden State Freeway (U. S. 99) from Sepulveda Blvd. three miles to the north city limits of Los Angeles; a 2.4-mile extension of the geles; a 2.4-mile extension of the Santa Ana Freeway from First St, Santa Ana, to Browning Blvd., east of Tustin; a portion of the Long Beach Freeway from Olympic Blvd. to Washington Blvd., one mile in length, including extensive bridge construction in order to provide an interin order to provide an inter-change with the Santa Ana

New York Plans Gala Summer

A SUMMER RESORT that of-fers its visitors music festi-vals, art festivals, drama festithat claims some of the vais—that claims some of the world's wonders as it top sight-seeing attractions — that boasts some of the country's finest hotels, restaurants and stores — that promises visitors — main that promises visitors major league baseball, horse racing, deepsea fishing, swimming and boating—such a resort offering all these things and more for the entertainment of its visitors is unique.

And that's just what New York City is—unique. This summer there will be a thousand and one events to entertain visitors to the city during the third Annual New York Summer Festival

The New York Convention and Visitors Bureau has announced elaborate plans for the 1956 Summer Festival, a three month period during which the city as a whole will go all out to wel-come visitors and prove to them the truth of the Bureau's claim that New York City is the greatest vacation bargain in the world.

IF SIGHTSEEING is at the top of the list, wonders are to be seen in New York! The Empire State Building, the United Nations Buildings, Ecckefeller Center, the Statue of Liberty, and the amazing lights of Times Square, to name just a few attractions that are at the top of everyone's list.

New York in summer offers pleasures not usually associated with the world's biggest city, too, such as swimming at beautiful beaches, deepsea fishing, or relaxing on a three-hour boat cruise around Manhattan. Outdoor concerts are on the sum-mer schedule, the Visitors Bumer schedule, the Visitors Bu-reau reports, ranging from the magnificent Lewisohn Stadium concerts under the stars to band music in Central Park to musical extravaganzas at Jones Beach

FOR THOSE on the trail of culture, New York offers some of the world's greatest art treasures displayed in beautiful mu-seums, the annual Greenwich Village Outdoor Art Show, and fascinating and educational ex-hibits at the American Museum of Natural History and the Hayden Planetarium.

New York City's new Coliseum, the world's most modern convention and exhibition hall, figures in Summer Festival plans figures in Summer Festival plans also, according to the Visitors Bureau. Two of the shows scheduled for the Coliseum this summer will be of great interest to visitors. They are the Sewing Fashion Festival in June and the National Baby and Children's Chemics Avenue. Show in August.

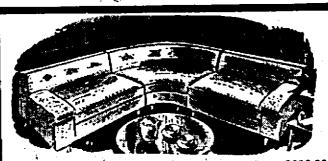

Because New York City will offer such a wide variety of events during its Summer Festi-val period, it's a good idea to do a little advance planning before arriving in the city. The Visi-tors Bureau will mail a free Calendar of Events, covering all the activities during June, July and August, and a Visitors Guide to New York, complete with map, to help visitors plan a holiday. The address to write to is 90 E. 42nd St., New York 17, N. Y. Visitors are urged to stop in at the Bureau's Official Visitor Information Center to get more free information, and a friendly welcome, after arrival in the city.

IF YOU PLAN to travel to New York with a group this summer — co-workers, members of your club, school or church group—the Convention and Visi-tors Bureau can be of great assistance in helping you obtain money-saving group rates. Just drop them a postcard, saying how many people will be in your party, how long you plan to stay, what sort of things you would like to do.

The Bureau will see to it that your request reaches many hotels, restaurants and sightseeing companies who will write to you directly, giving information on their rates, and you can choose from a variety of offers the one that best suits the needs of your tracts are now in progress covmiles and completion by the fall of 1957.

On the San Bernardino Freeway four contracts, extending over a 15.3-mile length, are nov in progress and are due for comin progress and are due for com-pletion by late summer this year. Their completion will mean a continuous full freeway 41 miles long from the Los Angeles Civic Center to east of Ontario. The first unit of the San Diego

Freeway, formerly known as the Sepulveda Freeway, which will eventually enable motorists to bypass the downtown area of Los Angeles, has been completed. The completed unit is in the West Los Angeles section and includes the large grade separation bridge carrying Sunset Blvd. over the freeway.

IN SAN DIEGO COUNTY. work is being concentrated on the east-west connections to Highway 101 and the city of San Diego. The final unit of a 7-mile expressway from Oceanside to Vista was completed last

On almost two miles of U.S. 395, north of Mission Valley through the Linda Vista area of San Diego, conversion of the present expressway to a full freeway is scheduled for completion by this fall.

U. S. 395 is a high-standard, two-lane limited access highway with short stretches of four lanes from Linda Vista in San Diego to south of Perris, and from that point to Riverside the highway is now a four-lane expressway.

IN RIVERSIDE COUNTY a relocation of State Sign Route 71 between Elsinore and its intersection with U. S. 395 south of Murrieta is now completed. The road from Elsinore to Per-ris (State Sign Route 74) has been widened and resurfaced.

The present bottleneck through Banning will be eliminated when a new 3.5-mile freeway on U. S. 60-70-99 is opened for traffic this summer. East of Banning another 11½ miles of four-lane expressway between west of Garnet and Thousand Palms on U. S. 60-70-99 will also be completed and opened to traffic this summer. Widening to four lanes divided is also under way northwesterly of Indio for a distance of 2.7 miles.

In San Bernardine County, a 17.3-mile section of U. S. 66-91-395 has been widened from two lanes to four lanes divided and 3.8-mile freeway bypass of Victorville was recently completed. There is now an unbroken 30-mile expressway from Devote, north of San Bernardino, over Cajon Summit to the Victorville

NORTHWARD into the High Sierra country, work has started on an 11.8-mile relocation of U. S. 395 in the Sherwin Hills area north of Bishop. The work is scheduled for completion some time next year.

Almost all of the 360 miles of U. S. 99, the main north-south inland route, between the San Fernando area of Los Angeles County and Sacramento have been completed or are under construction as divided highway.

Along the coast much of the current construction activity is centering in the Santa Barbara County area where every effort is being made to develop U. S. Highway 101 to full freeway or expressway standards.

WEANING of pupples is not or insufficient, or she may be too nervous to feed them, And sometimes pupples are orphaned and must start life on cow's milk if no foster mother is available.

The most difficult thing in raising orphans is to find a nipple they will accept. Doll bottle nipples, baby bottle nipples and chinchilla bottle nipples can be tried. These failing you will have to resort to a medicine dropper. If the orphan swallows the milk as it is slowly squirted into his as it is slowly squitted into the mouth, no harm will come, but should he hold the milk in his mouth then cry or wheeze and inhale the liquid, he may develop pneumonia. So watch this factor carefully.

A NEW-BORN ORPHAN of a small breed needs about five dropperfuls six times daily. A large orphan needs twenty dropperfuls six times daily. Pups in between in size need to be fed accordingly. Orphans under one week usually must be fed every three or four hours.

three or four hours.

For the orphan, a spray-dried baby milk may be used. Mix one ounce with six ounces of water and add one ounce fresh cream for a stock solution. Older puppies can usually digest a solution of one cup good milk, one tablespoon time water, and one teaspoon of Karo syrup. Keep any solution refrigerated, shake when ready to use, and warm to body temperature.

PUPPLES SHOULD NOT be fermitted to nurse after six weeks, or they may ruin the appearance of the dam. And the babies' needle-like teeth and growing toenails can make life exceedingly miserable for the mother. In protestation, the dam may regurgitate her own meals as a signal for you to start her offspring on solid foods.

Young pupples (and kittens)

Young puppies (and kittens) readily learn to lop milk from a saucer. Only a little milk should be offered at first, othershould be offered at first, otherwise vomiting may occur or the digestion become more seriously upset: When accurioned to the milk, the pets may have frequent feedings still in small amounts.

SOLID FOODS to be offered gradually include scraped raw beef, cooked meat, commercial puppy foods and biscuits, baby pablum, raw egg yolk or soft-boiled eggs, cooked non-starchy vegetables, with the addition of wheat germ oil or cod liver oil and recommended minerals. Some salt is needed, but at no time feed sweets, chicken, fish or rabbit bones, potatoes, chocolate or any rancid fatty food.

If the puppies need a good stomach tonic, acid neutralizer or slight laxative, give milk of magnesia. For diarrhea, give milk of bismuth twice daily, a teaspoon or more according to size of animals, and be certain the meat for the pup is cooked. Fresh water must always be available.

The mother's milk secretion will diminish naturally as you wean her puppies. If milk does remain in the teats, give her a full purgative dose of milk of magnesia every other day until she is dry.

By the Shutterbug

A FOREIGN VACATION is an irresistible magnet for many camera fans. For those who want to cut the expenses, time and red tape involved in making the big hop overseas, there are many foreign lands to visit right here noreign lands to visit right here in our own Western Hemisphere. In today's air age, many of these Old World outposts are only hours away from several Ameri-can cities.

Camera fans who plan an extended vacation trip of any sort should heed several precautions and remember time tested rules for all-around successful picture results:

Before going away the camera should be examined and cleaned to make sure it's working prop-erly. If the camera is new or borrowed, it should be tested in advance so that you are familiar with its operation.

YOU SHOULD CARRY an ample film supply . . . and a little more . . . to avoid local shortages. In black-and-white, you should carry one type with which you are familiar from past experience. In color, too, have only one spare roll in your pocket when you're out with the camera.

With color film especially, a light meter is a wise investment.

EN ROUTE, the camera should be handy, not tucked safely away in the baggage. Road markers, local signs, landmarks make good titles and easier identification of people and places later.

Picture interest is heightened by variety: 1. Get low and high angles besides the normal eye level view. 2. Use side and backlighting as well as front lighting. Shoot long, medium distance and close-up.

USE PEOPLE and get personal-yourself or your family—in your pictures. Let them look at the view, read signs, study maps—anything except look at the

Don't put off shooting because "there's lots of time!" Start immediately and tell a story in pic-tures of where you are, what you do and whom you meet. Some-times you can improve pictures later with better angles or better lighting.

Names, dates and data about the pictures should be written down as they are taken . . . don't trust to memory.

Hot Spell Lawn Care

By Bob Gilmore

THE CRITICAL season for lawns is rapidly approaching.
Warm weather is usually tough on the average grass plant, Weeds, worms and wind will account for much destruction. In addition, extensive heat and maximum evaporation are bound to take their toll.

Bermuda or devil grass is per-Bermuda or devil grass is perhaps the only exception. It thrives on neglect and is at its best during warm weather. However, Bermuda grass is not the kind of lawn that most home owners desire. But, unless your present lawn receives a little endling during the months ahead, you may end up with a Bermuda lawn.

PERHAPS THE TWO most important cultural factors at this time are proper watering and in-telligent moving. Other cultural tactics, comparatively speaking, are less important. This, of course, refers only to lawn culture during the warm months.

How you water is perhaps more important than when you water. The time of day seems to make little difference. One possible exception is bent lawns which are susceptible to fungus attack on wet or muggy nights. Therefore, water bent lawns early in the morning. Other varieties are less susceptible to attack from brown patch, dollar spot and other comparable dis-

WATERING AT MIDDAY has watering at MIDDAY has been frowned upon on the basis that scalding may result. This presumably is caused by the sun shining through the drops of water, the latter acting as tiny magnifying glasses. It is also argued that evaporation is then at its peak. ## Now's Time for Asters here are a few tips on varieties to plant.

If you want the biggest, flufflest flowers of all, then look for "Super Giant" wilt-resistant strains. They are named for California cities, such as El Monte, Los Angeles, Beverly Hills and so on. These giants have only recently attained wilt resistance, and it is a good idea to check the packet to make sure you are retting the new, wilt-resistant getting the new, wilt-resistant type. The plants are large, sturdy, and produce long, heavy stems to go with the giant, ostrich-feathered flowers. Maturity is on the late side, with I blooms appearing in late summer and continuing to frost.

IF YOU WANT earliness, it is still hard to beat Queen of the Market asters. Plants and flowers are not so large as the giants named above, but you can expect to have good double blooms for cutting at least a month earlier. Heat doesn't seem to bother this

Another type that resists heat and has a wonderful plant and flower type is a new one called Powderpuffs. These asters grow in a very distinctive manner which makes the class known as Bouquet esters, and Powderpuffs is a mixture of colors in this class. The Bouquet name comes from the fact that you can pick an entire plant at one time, and the flowers are arranged nat-urally on the plant in ideal bou-quet form. The flowers themselves are medium sized, with an extremely double characteristic extremely double characteristic that creates centers so dense that they are actually quilled. The plants are upright in nature, about 2 feet tall, with as many (Continued on Next Page)

SQUARERIGGER sailing ves-sels ply the seas no more but they nurtured a breed of men whose tradition still lives, Such a man is Hjalmar Rutzebeck who ran away from home in his native Coperhagen to become a sailor. The story of his life, as told in his book, "Mad Sea" (Greenburg, $3.75), is an almost unbelievable yarn that bears out the old saying that "truth is sometimes stranger than fiction." The facts bear out the author's story, and one who is inclined to dispute them should remember that he is a man of gargantuan Nordie build with many a water front and shipboard fight behind his fists, which a columnist once a man is Hjalmar Rutzebeck who his fists, which a columnist once described as "made for throwing paving bricks."

Rutzebeck, who tells his story Rutzebeck, who tells his story in the eyes of an alter ego, Svend Norman, who has been with him all of his life, had a penchant for getting into trouble. But his life for 10 years under sail and ashore is typical of the men who followed the sea. He knows the brutality afloat, the boarding-bone matters in legane with the house masters in league with the police, the women of far ports, the IWW, life-and-death struggle of a castaway, in fact, the whole intolerable life of the men who followed the sea and sail. He quit the sea to rise to respectability as an administrator for former Gov. Olson of California and to Gov. Olson of Cantornia and to become the author of four books. He now resides at 10538 Art St., Sunland, Calif., and is a former resident of San Pedro, where he came ashore at the end of his last cruise in "Mad Sea."-G. S.

THE METAMORPHOSIS of a shy, puny, wife-dominated gov-ernment clerk into the reincar-nation of one of Napoleon's most reckless and swashbucking gen-erals makes for top entertain-ment. But in "Double Exposure," (Vanguard, $3.50) a new novel by the Belgian writer Theo Fleischman, is to be found a penetration into human nature that might be compared with the talent of Aldous Huxley. Here is a farce that is not a farce; is a farce that is not a farce; a fantasy based on such profound psychology that it becomes a brilliant study of human emo-tions and motivations. The story moves from beginning to end with a swiftness that almost unnerves the engrossed reader. Translation from the French is by Elizabeth Abbott.—P.F.

CHARLES BLACK WELL'S father had murdered his mother. This fact clouded the young man's life, created a burden that staggered him. Frank Rooney's
"The Heel of Spring" (Vanguard,
$3.95) tells Blackwell's search for self assurance and his own identity. Like "The Courts of Memory," Rooney's first novel the ory," Rooney's first novel, the story is tender and penetrating, deeply concerned with personal relationships and evaluations.

THE STORY of Ruby McCollum, sensational murder case in Suwannee County, Ga.—in which Ruby McCollum, Negro, shot an i killed her white lover—is the latest expose by William Bradford Hule (Dutton, $3.95). Hule's

A BEAUTIFUL movie star is kidnaped. While both kidnapers fall in love with her, and she suddenly finds herself in love with one of them, the net of the law begins to tighten around law begins to uginen attended their hideout in Playa del Ray. That's the substance of 'The Fuzzy Pink Nightgown' (Harper, $3.50), by Sylvia Tate. The kind of novel that makes reading a pleasure.

previous works include "The Revolt of Mamie Stover" and "The Execution of Pvt. Slovik."

"YOU CALL THAT a House?"
(Day, $3.50) is a novel by William Manners depicting the semi-humorous problems that come about when a family builds a contemporary house in a neighbor-hood of traditional homes. It is not too entertaining except, per-haps, for people who have done the same thing.

PLEASANT READING for those who like armchair travel-ing is "European Datelines" (Vantage, $2.75), which is the diary kept by Mark Smith of North Hollywood on a trip through the Continent,

Make Two Sturdy, Low Plant Boxes and Add Mobile Beauty to Gardens

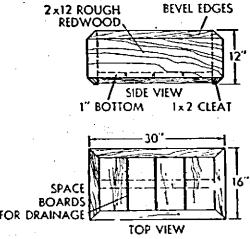

YOU DON'T NEED DEEP, heavy boxes for shallow-rooted plants. With careful attention to atering, you can even grow perennials such as daylilies with only 6 inches of soil. For extra ease in moving, add casters to your box (right). You can then move planter where you need its color or where it can take a full advantage of sun.

AS ILLUSTRATIONS ABOVE show, a good plant box doesn't need to be elaborate. But strength is needed to hold 75 pounds or more of soil, so don't skimp on bracing. Drainage is neatly solved here, by spacing bottom boards about %-inch apart. Inch layer of gravel will keep soil from washing out. Calk or tar all seams but those for drainage.

DASH is Proctor & Gamble's great new detergent for automatics...gives you low suds that really clean!

Important news! The makers of Bendix Automatics tested all leading detergents in their famous Tumble-Action Automatics at their Home Laundry Institute and enthusiastically recommend Dash. That's why Bendix named Dash as number-one choice for use in their automatic washers. Think what that means to you and your automatic! Dash is the only low-sudsing detergent with so much cleaning power... gives really high level selections with low lovel saids for best meshing action.
